Treasury Acts as World Figure Hits 71⅝ Cents Per Ounce.

Backing for Full Restoration Seen

Wide Belief Policy May Lead to $1 Mark by Summer.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

In an effort to keep in advance of rapidly mounting world silver prices, the Treasury last night boosted from 71.11 to 77.57 cents an ounce the price it is willing to pay for the white metal, newly mined in this country.

It was the second time in two weeks that the Treasury price for newly mined silver has been increased. On April 10 the price was raised from 64.64 cents, set December 23, 1933, to 71.11 cents an ounce.

The two price boosts by the Treasury, approximately 6 cents greater than the prevailing world price in each case, were regarded as indicating the Roosevelt Administration was fully sympathetic to the aspirations of the silver States for an eventual restoration of the statutory price of $1.29 an ounce throughout the world.

New Rises Likely.

The world price of spot silver yesterday reached 71⅝ an ounce, the highest since 1925. Expectations that the price would go much higher were indicated by trading on the Montreal silver exchange, where silver futures for December delivery closed at 75 cents.

In fact, the belief is widespread in financial circles that silver prices will approximate $1 an ounce this summer, unless the Treasury abandons its purchase program and its policy of paying more for newly mined metal than the world prices.

The new Treasury price of 77.57 cents an ounce—forecast in The Washington Post yesterday—was fixed after President Roosevelt issued a proclamation directing the mints and assay offices to accept such silver at the statutory price of $1.29 an ounce, less a seignorage charge of 40 per cent.

Third Proclamation.

The proclamation was the third issued by the President to give effect to the silver agreement negotiated by this country at the London Economic and Monetary Conference in July, 1933. The first proclamation, issued December 23, 1933, fixed the seignorage charge at 50 per cent, making the price paid for the silver 64.64 cents an ounce.

The second proclamation, a fortnight ago, fixed the seignorage charge at 45 per cent, making a price of 71.11. As the seignorage charge—the sum collected by the sovereign in the coining of money—gradually decreases, the Treasury makes less and less profit out of the silver program. Seignorage or profit accruing from silver acquired since last June 14 has not been utilized by the Treasury.

Although the artificial boosting of the silver price by the Treasury is mildly inflationary, it has not yet been reflected in the prices of

Trader's Bankruptcy Stills the Pits; Selling Due to Resume Today.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 24.—The Board of Trade was closed today while officials sought to adjust problems raised by the $6,000,000 bankruptcy petition of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation in time for reopening the market tomorrow.

Activity also ceased in the Kansas City, St. Louis and Toledo markets, but quotations at Minneapolis and Winnipeg suffered only moderate setbacks and stocks on the New York exchange exhibited slight nervousness because of the Chicago situation. The Chicago Grain Market will be open at the usual time tomorrow, board officials announced, and it was expected the other affected markets would follow suit.

Federal Judge William H. Holly, who received a petition for reorganization under the amended Federal bankruptcy law from the Rosenbaum concern Tuesday, met counsel for the board and the corporation in his chambers today. The jurist declined to modify his injunction restraining the board from suspending the trading privileges of the mammoth corporation, but it was understood the corporation agreed to undertake no further trading under its own name until the reorganization had been effected.

The board announced that the Rosenbaum accounts with the Board of Trade clearing house would be closed out and liquidated.

452 Stricken in Flood Of Poisoned Pastries

Doctors Fear Toll May Mount to 1,000 Cases; 10,000 Eclairs, Cream Puffs and Pies Traced to Single Bakery; Police Air Labor War Rumor.

By the Associated Press.

White Plains, N. Y., April 24.—With 452 cases of food poisoning already reported and as many more estimated, health authorities tonight hurried chemical analyses in an effort to determine what contaminated 10,000 pieces of cream-filled pastries.

The pastries—cream puffs, eclairs and cream pies—were sold in four Westchester County cities and ten villages from a chain-bakery plant yesterday.

County Health Commissioner Matthias Nicoll, jr., said that while violent symptoms developed among those who ate the delicacies, none was expected to die.

Dr. Nicoll, former chief health officer of the State, halted deliveries from the bakery as soon as source of the poisonings was traced and the company cooperated by sending out fleets of trucks to pick up unsold stocks and to warn those who had made purchases.

Dr. Edward H. Marsh, health department inspector, said dozens of physicians with one or two cases had not reported them, leading to the estimate that nearly 1,000 persons had been made ill. One physician in Larchmont had not reported nine cases.

In Yonkers, where police were investigating rumors that labor trouble may have been responsible, a health inspector returned from a tour of investigation to find his two children had been poisoned.

Dr. Marsh, after a preliminary study, expressed belief the cream filling could not have spoiled sufficiently to produce the violent symptoms.

He said the poisoning was due either to chemical or bacterial contamination from some outside source and mentioned an insecticide as a possibility. The bakery ordered all of its employes examined.

A special price of three for ten cents had spurred sale of cream puffs yesterday.

Atterbury Ill, Makes His Aid 'Pennsy' Head

General to Stay Director, Selects M. W. Clement as President.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 24.—William Wallace Atterbury today retired as president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., after serving nearly ten years in that position, and Martin W. Clement, vice president, was elected as his successor.

In impaired health since last summer, Atterbury, who will be 70 next January, and would have retired at that time under company regulations, placed Clement in nomination when election of officers came up at regular organization meeting of the board of directors.

Atterbury will remain as a director.

The retiring president in a statement expressed his highest regard for Clement, referring to him as "unquestionably the ablest railroad executive in the country."

With the Company 34 Years.

Clement will be 54 years old next December. He entered the company's service in 1901 as a rodman, after being graduated from Trinity College. He filled many minor positions and steadily advanced until he became vice president in 1933, succeeding Elisha Lee, who died in that year.

From that time on he was looked upon as Atterbury's successor and this belief was strengthened by the fact that Atterbury assigned to him much important work usually taken up by the head of the company.

Atterbury's retirement was not unexpected by those who have followed his recent activities. Last August he submitted to a serious operation and in the fall went South on his yacht and spent most of the winter in Florida waters. Meanwhile Clement was acting president.

In his statement Atterbury said that Clement since October, 1933, "has been intimately associated with me in conducting the company's affair and in our relations with other railroads and with the Government. The remarkable results achieved by the company last year, one of the most difficult periods the railroad has ever experienced, was largely due to Mr. Clement's leadership.

A Native Pennsylvanian.

"His manifest capabilities have commended him not only to his associate directors and officers, but also to the executives of other railroads with whom he has been working in recent years in the interest of the railroad industry as a whole."

Clement is a native Pennsylvanian, having been born in Sunbury December 5, 1881. He comes from a military family. His father, Maj. Gen. Charles W. Clement, who died last September, was in the

Fr. Coughlin Leads Union Into Politics

Nye, Thomas, Lemke Attend Session With Crowd of 17,000.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 24.—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin made his opening bid tonight to whip the forces of his National Union for Social Justice into a tangible force for political action in support of banking an an economic change.

The militant radio priest opened his campaign at a meeting of the Michigan unit of his organization at Olympia Stadium, with the indoor bowl, seating 17,000, practically filled.

Louis Ward, close associate of the priest, presided at the meeting. Cheers and applause greeted Ward's reference to reform of the national banking system, with abolition of the Federal Reserve Bank, but boos mingled with applause as he referred to the "time when Father Coughlin was under attack by a certain kept general, Hugh S. Johnson."

Ward outlined 16 principles on which he said the league was founded and then introduced the Rev. Herbert Bigelow, of Cincinnati.

United States Senators Gerald U. Nye and Elmer Thomas, who came by plane to attend the meeting, took places on the platform unnoticed by the crowd as the Rev. Mr. Bigelow was speaking.

"I am glad this gospel against the slaveries of man is being preached to us by this Catholic priest," Bigelow said, adding that he believed "the National Union for Social Justice is the liberation of the Nation's soul."

Referring to the present Congress,

Judge and Wife Shot, Son Reports

Holdup Story Reported by Wounded Youth.

By the United Press.

Austin, Tex., April 24.—Howard Pierson, 21, son of Justice William Pierson, of the Texas Supreme Court, reported to officers tonight that he and his father and mother had been shot in a holdup.

The youth, suffering with a bullet wound in his arm, staggered into the Seton Infirmary and reported the shooting.

He said that he and his parents encountered the holdup men near Austin.

He said he was unable to get his parents into the car and was forced to leave them lying beside the road.

Irish Sweepstakes Drum Burns As Fire Destroys Dublin Plaza

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, Irish Free State, April 24. Fire reduced the famous Irish Sweepstakes "Drum of Fortune" to a blackened mass today and destroyed the noted Plaza which housed it. The Derby draw will be held as usual, however.

Police said a humble employe named Lawlor was the possible innocent cause of the blaze, as they pursued clews to incendiaries.

The investigators wove a tenable incendiarism theory around Lawlor, former railway employe, who was the innocent cause of the city's two-month long railway strike. There was a row over his dismissal, in a wage dispute, and a minor post in the Sweepstakes organization was given to him recently in hope of settling the tram strike. The action, however, served only to aggravate the situation.

The result was that a police guard was mounted on all Sweepstakes buildings in Dublin and the police hold to the theory the fire was the work of strikers.

The fire will not interfere with the Derby draw of the Hospital Sweepstakes. Only blackened walls of the Plaza remained after the firemen fought for eight hours, but Joseph McGrath, managing director, said the drawing would be held.

The flames were discovered in the early morning, before 800 girls who work there reported for duty. The elaborately decorated drum in which the counterfoils are placed was found in the wreckage. Many of the girl workers among the spectators wept as the walls collapsed.

Bonus Crisis Faced Today In Test Vote

Harrison Will Seek to Report Out His Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

Cold figures served up by Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, reemphasized to Congress yesterday that bonus payment legislation may bring Administration demands for from $558,000,000 to $1,622,112,000 in new taxes.

Their ears still ringing with Secretary Morgenthau's warning that extra-budget outlays must be accompanied by more revenue, members of the Senate Finance Committee heard Hines testify the Harrison bond-redemption compromise would cost $558,000,000 more than the present law and that the Patman or Vinson full cash payment plans would cost an additional billion.

Hines' testimony completed the brief three days of hearings on the controversial bonus issue. Chairman Harrison called an executive session of the committee for today to vote and if possible report out a bill.

Patman Fights On.

The only other witness yesterday was Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, author of the bill passed by the House providing for payment of the bonus in new money. He contended Morgenthau's warning did not apply to his measure, because it would pay the certificates with a new issue of currency instead of creating an obligation.

Talking in a conversational tone, Hines filled the record with a mass of figures on the cost and effect of the various bonus proposals. They were so complicated that members of the committee had difficulty grasping them.

Harrison asked if his compromise bill, to authorize payment of the redemption value of the veterans' certificates in negotiable bonds, would require any new taxes.

"Well, you heard the testimony of Secretary Morgenthau yesterday," Hines replied, adding, however, that he thought the money now in the adjusted service certificate fund would take care of any immediate cash outlays required by the Harrison bill.

Harrison agreed a sinking fund would have to be set up to take care of the bonds.

Hines estimated the Patman bill would call for an appropriation, or a currency issue, of $2,201,934,000; the Vinson bill, $2,263,545,000, and the Harrison bill, $1,119,686,000 in currency or bonds.

Admits Cash Plan Easier.

Under the three bills, he said, the amount actually turned over to veterans would be: Patman bill, $1,954,000,000; Vinson bill, $2,016,000,000; Harrison bill, $950,000,00.

Hines added that the average veteran who had borrowed up to the full amount allowed under his certificate would receive $487 under the Patman bill, $500 under the Vinson bill, and $180 under the Harrison measure.

Answering questions, Hines agreed the veteran would be better satisfied if he got cash instead of the bonds contemplated by the Harrison bill. He said cash payments would make administration of the law easier and would make the Treasury's ultimate obligation no greater. But he explained that 3 per cent Government bonds are selling at a premium, which the veteran might be able to get if he took bonds instead of cash.

Site on Point As Air Field Voted Down

D. C. Committee Decides on Commission to Select a Place.

Action Against Gravelly Termed Unfair by Civic Leader.

Despite public support of Gravelly Point as the site for a municipal airport, the House District Committee yesterday adopted the report of the sub-committee condemning Gravelly Point and authorizing the appointment of a commission to select a site for the city.

Meeting in executive session, the committee heard Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, attack the sub-committee's report and plead for his substitute bill authorizing establishment of an airport at Gravelly Point.

The committee also voted down proposals of Chairman Mary T. Norton to change the personnel of the proposed commission in order to include representatives of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Washington Board of Trade.

Much Opposition Impends.

While the committee's action will place the sub-committee's bill on the House calendar for action on next District day, the measure unquestionably will encounter serious opposition and an effort will be made to substitute the Smith bill.

It is understood that the District Committee's action was agreed to by opponents of the sub-committee report chiefly because of the committee's general policy not to override a sub-committee. Some of the committee members, however, intend to fight at least for amendments to the bill on the House floor.

The sub-committee, headed by Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of Virginia, denounced Gravelly Point as a site for a municipal airport and then proposed a commission of seven to select a site, after which another commission of three would operate it.

Representative Smith at a previous hearing said the first commission is "stacked" with representatives who would be expected to favor the purchase of Washington-Hoover Airport.

The Aero Club of Washington yesterday informed the committee of its action reiterating an indorsement of Gravelly Point. The club, in a letter to Mrs. Norton, listed the following advantages of the site:

Gravelly's Advantages Listed.

It is the largest available site in or near the District; it offers facilities for seaplanes; its cost per acre is less than any other practical site; it has unobstructed approaches and allows for runways of 4,000 feet, and it offers an opportunity for almost unlimited expansion.

Representative Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), Indiana, a member of the committee, later in the day issued a statement explaining that she did not support the sub-committee and that she would not do so until testimony is obtained from transport pilots and hostesses.

Quoting a speech she had made to the committee, she said:

"Let us not be swayed or influenced in our opinion by real estate promoters or lobbyists."

Noticeably absent at yesterday's meeting was Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, who suggested the delay until hearings on the airport bill could be printed.

Miller Criticizes Decision.

Clarence A. Miller, chairman of the aviation committee of the Washington Board of Trade, last night criticized the action of the committee. He also criticized the composition of the commission which would be authorized to select a site.

Miller said: "No fair-minded person could read the 235 pages of testimony presented to the sub-com-

Cochran Scores Babcock, Denies Companionate Marriage Story

Missourian Hastens to Assure Mothers 'Back Home' That U. S. Girl Workers Are Not Leading Improper Lives.

Testimony before the House Civil Service Committee that the marriage clause of the Economy Act is leading to companionate marriages among Government employes yesterday drew a sharp reply from Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri.

A staunch supporter of the law, Cochran directed his attack against E. Claude Babcock, who had made the assertions, and demanded that Babcock resign as president of the American Federation of Government Employes.

"Men have been tarred and feathered in this country for saying less than Babcock said," Cochran told the House.

"I want to send a message back home, not only to the mothers, but to the friends of the women employed here, that while a case might be found here and there, just as such condition will be found any place in the land, and that one can rest assured that if such a situation does exist, there are only a few and that your daughter and friend working in Washington is leading a proper life."

Cochran asked whether Babcock "gave any thought to the mental anguish he has caused, not only to the ladies employed by the Government, but to their families back home.

The Missourian did not mention Mrs. Edwina Avery, president of the Women's Bar Association of the District, who made the original charge in hearings on the Celler bill to repeal the marriage clause.

Yesterday, the committee asked Mrs. Avery for specific instances of the companionate marriages she said had been brought about because employes feared the effect of the marriage law.

Cochran said that Babcock "looks at one side of the picture" and that "he would be willing, if a reduction in force was necessary, to see a man who has a wife and five children at home furloughed, while both a husband and wife would be retained."

3 New Work Agencies Planned by Roosevelt; Tugwell to Direct One

Thousands Headed Here to Aid On Relief Add Housing Worry

Roosevelt's Program Will Require New Army of Federal Employes to Do Clerical Work, Assist Agencies—Where Shall They Find Homes?

Thousands of additional employes must be placed on the pay rolls of Government agencies in Washington and hundreds of others must be employed by new agencies as the work-relief program gets under way.

President Roosevelt said yesterday he did not consider these additions as increases in the Federal pay roll, but felt that they were just another way of giving employment under the relief plan.

As an indication of the magnitude of the program, it was stated at the Treasury yesterday that 1,000 extra persons must be employed to do nothing but write checks.

If the relief workers are paid twice a month, as are other Government employes, it will be necessary to write 7,000,000 checks every month.

In view of the President's assertion that additions to the pay rolls are a part of the job of aiding unemployed, the question has arisen as to whether these new employes will be paid $50 a month—specified relief wages—or whether they will be paid salaries comparable to those of other employes.

Officials at the Treasury indicated they would ask the Civil Service Commission for the needed 1,000 additional people. This would indicate that civil service salaries would be paid and that these people would not be taken off relief rolls.

As a further indication of the necessity for adding Government workers, the President listed among work relief projects yesterday:

Clerical help in handling works program disbursements.

Preparation of checks for paying all employes.

Printing checks for paying works program employes.

It was expected that this last item would require employment of additional workers at the Bureau of Engraving.

Besides, the President has named 43 agencies to have charge of various sections of the program. Most of these agencies will require additional help.

Added to this, will be the division of applications and investigation, an entirely new organization that will be faced with the job of investigating all applications for allotments; the new rural resettlement division, the new grade crossing division and the new rural electrification division. Each of these has a big task and must be staffed with perhaps hundreds of employes.

All of which leads to the question:

Where will they live?

Allotment Board Details Out Today

Most of $4,000,000,000 to Be Spent by 43 of Existing Groups.

Projects assigned under relief plan—page 3.

By Felix Bruner.

The vast governmental machine designed to put 3,500,000 men to work at a cost of $4,000,000,000 began to take definite form yesterday as President Roosevelt added another installment to his series of announcements revealing work-relief plans.

The President disclosed that three new administrative agencies would be formed, but that most of the money will be spent through existing Government departments, divisions and bureaus. The President listed 43 existing agencies that will participate in the works program.

The three new organizations will be:

A division of "rural resettlement," to be administered by Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, independently of the Agriculture Department.

A division of rural electrification, the head of which has not been selected.

Announcement Today.

The President deferred until today announcement of the most powerful group in the new set-up, the allotments board. This board will decide who gets the money and where it will be spent.

Two of the three most discussed personalities in connection with the program were given definite assignments. Tugwell's duties have been outlined and it was revealed Secretary Ickes will continue to supervise housing projects and work projects similar to those now administered by PWA.

The part that Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, will play remained something of a mystery, although the President indicated that his announcement today would reveal Hopkins in a prominent role. It is expected that he will have an important place on the allotment board.

Formation of the allotment board, however, has deprived Ickes of one of his most important duties, that of deciding where money will be spent and on what projects it will be spent. It is possible Ickes will be a member of the allotment board, but in that position he would have only one vote, instead of being a virtual czar over allotments.

Tugwell Limited.

Tugwell's authority apparently will not be quite so broad as had previously been indicated. He will have no part in the vast relief and soil erosion projects growing out of the Western dust storms except as they affect housing and homestead work.

Rural rehabilitation work, now under the FERA will be transferred to Tugwell, as will subsistence homestead projects now under PWA and AAA. The President said Tugwell would have charge of such relief work as involves individual families and groups of people in rural communities. The work would involve moving families and groups from unprofitable to profitable land, such as the present movement of a group of farmers to Alaska. It also would involve the rehabilitation of so-called stranded communities and the movement of families from cities to rural communities.

Incidentally, the transfer of subsistence homestead work, in which Mrs. Roosevelt is particularly interested, from Ickes to Tugwell relieves the former of the burden

Cotton Exports 'Need a Break,' Davis Thinks

By Leon Dure, Jr.

AAA Administrator Chester C. Davis yesterday expressed, as his personal conviction, the belief that the United States should regulate American exports in order to assure agricultural products, particularly cotton, a "fair share" of the world market.

He gave this opinion when questioned about a statement by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which yesterday set forth that last year the United States increased automobile exports by 120 per cent, while exports of cotton slumped 30 per cent.

It was his contention that some Government machinery should be created to restrict, if necessary, American exports of industrial products so that other nations will retain enough dollar exchange to buy from our huge stocks of farm products.

Plan at Cross-Purposes.

This idea—regarded as one of the most novel to emanate from Administration quarters—is at direct variance with the purposes of the State Department in negotiating trade pacts with other countries. For months, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his assistants have been seeking to modify foreign trade restrictions and exchange controls.

In taking what he apparently regards as a more realistic view of nationalistic conditions, however, Davis argued that "it is a great deal more important that other countries should buy our farm commodities, especially cotton, than autos."

He predicted the time will come when "the Government will have to apportion exports "to preserve a fair share of our export market for agriculture." He emphasized that he was giving only his own opinion,

Ickes Launches Move to Usurp Wallace Units

By Robert C. Albright.

Departmental rivalry between two New Deal pals, Secretary of Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, yesterday cropped up—of all places—in the United States Senate.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, the majority whip, introduced a bill to bring under his friend Ickes' portfolio the "conservation" agencies of Government.

In fact, Lewis asked that the Interior Department's name be refurbished and done over into the "Department of Conservation and Works."

Modestly, Senator Lewis admitted Ickes had handed him the measure, that it had Administration backing, that it was introduced "by request."

Now, it happens, Secretary Wallace's department has "conservation" functions, and is anxious to hold to them—is anxious even to acquire a few more.

It caused some pangs at Interior when soil erosion work was transferred by executive order some time ago to Wallace's domain. Wallace already has the Forest Service, a "conservation" function Mr. Ickes thinks logically belongs under his department.

Of course, Mr. Wallace has other ideas about the matter. He is expected to express a few of them after he reads the Lewis bill, which gives the President discretionary power, with the consent of Congress, to do a little more reorganizing.

Maybe some other departments will be heard from. Mr. Ickes already is casting envious eyes at the Bureau of Fisheries, now housed in the Commerce Department, and a few other odds and ends of "conservation" lying around loose.

"Interior Department" is a misnomer, anyway. Mr. Ickes will tell

Bandits Get $72,000 Currency In Mail Truck Holdup in Ohio

By the Associated Press.

Warren, Ohio, April 24.—A machine-gun robber who wore shell-rimmed glasses and two accomplices held up a United States mail truck here today, forced the driver to proceed to a garage on the outskirts, and then escaped with four pouches of mail, one containing $72,000 in currency.

Although the truck driver, Burl Villers, carried a pistol, not a shot was fired during the holdup, and he was left by the robbers inside the truck, uninjured, when they fled.

Hours later, although all available Warren police and sheriff's deputies searched highways in this vicinity, no trace of the robbers had been found.

Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the State highway patrol, expressed belief the robbers were the same as those who last night held up a filling station at Columbus and this morning raided the State Savings Bank, at Woodville, near Fremont.

Two men entered the Woodville bank, pointed a sawed-off shotgun and revolver at three employes and two carpenters inside, forced them into a rear room, and then fled in an automobile with $1,000.

The money taken in the Warren holdup had been sent by registered mail by the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland to the Second National Bank of Warren, to meet a Republic Steel Corporation pay roll.

Villers was driving a load of mail from the Erie Railroad station here to the postoffice, when, he told police, two men boarded his truck, pointed pistols at him, and forced him to drive to the edge of the city

Warburg Rakes Banks Measure, Sees Red Trend

Former Roosevelt Adviser Asks Senate to Scrap Control Clause.

Visions of Communism, toward which the pending banking act of 1935 was pictured as moving, were conjured up before the Senate Banking Committee yesterday by James P. Warburg, New York banker and former Administration adviser.

In by far the most vehement assault on the bill to come from the banking community, Warburg supported Senator Glass, chairman of the Senate sub-committee which is holding hearings on the measure.

Warburg urged that Title II of the bill be scrapped and a commission set up "to study the entire banking and currency problem thoroughly and at leisure before any basic legislation is attempted."

Warburg, who is vice chairman of the Bank of the Manhattan Co., read a printed brief which included a letter he had written to Rudolf S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers Association, sharply disagreeing with the "strategy" of the A. B. A. in seeking to amend instead of defeat the contested Title II.

Eccles Theories Assailed.

He also assailed theories which, he said, were held by Gov. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, whose appointment was confirmed late in the day by the Senate.

As Warburg conceives the theory underlying the bill, it presupposes that business activity can be controlled by the supply of money—though Gov. Eccles has not advanced this theory in his testimony.

Warburg also charged that the bill would convert the Federal Reserve Board permanently into a creature of politics. He said the Reserve system "is today the obedient servant of the Administration, even though by law it is intended to be an independent authority."

In challenging the views which he attributed to Gov. Eccles, Warburg said those views might be described as "Curried Keynes," consisting of "a large half-cooked lump of J. Maynard Kynes—the well-known British economist, whose theories find more support in this country than in his own—liberally seasoned with a sauce prepared by Prof. Laughlin Currie."

Keynes' Theory Discarded.

"As already stated," he continued, "I do not believe in the Keynes theory, upon which the bill is founded.

"Apart from this theory, I do not believe that the country's best interests would be served by vesting the control over the people's money in the political administration.

"I say 'the people's money' because that is what it is. And I am certainly not pleading for a bankers' control of the people's money.

He cited that now Reserve banks may invest the public's money in Government bonds or not, as they deem wisest, but that under the pending measure the banks would be subject to the will of the Treasury.

"I am not one who sees a Communist under every bed," he continued, "but I sometimes wonder if the authors of these bills realize whose game they are playing."

He quoted Lenin's statement that a first step toward communism lies in "such measures as the nationalization of banks" under control of the state. He quoted G. D. H. Cole, British Socialist, to the same effect.

"Not for one minute," he added, "do I attribute to the authors of the bill anything but the highest motives of patriotism. Not for one minute do I suggest that they would willingly undermine the American order. But proposals like these are charged with dynamite—no matter how innocent their origin."

Wants Board Strengthened.

He advocated strengthening of the Reserve Board but under public, disinterested authority free alike from political or banker domination. He echoed the opinion that politicians would be the least likely of all to exert adequate controls.

He assailed also proposals to remove virtually all restrictions, especially on real estate paper eligible for discount with the Reserve banks.

"I believe," he said, "that the whole subject matter of Title II of the banking act of 1935 is ripe for legislation and should be referred to an appropriate body for expert study and analysis.

"We have at present a currency system which is no currency system at all. We have discarded the gold standard of the past and adopted instead a currency dictatorship which, no matter how well it may be suited to an emergency, can in no sense be termed an adequate system to meet the needs of modern economic life.

"We have no banking system. What we have is a hotch-potch of remnants of partially discarded systems, upon which there is superimposed the Federal Reserve System and, latterly, an emergency structure designed to meet the crisis that arose in 1933. Underneath the Federal Reserve System we have 49 different banking systems, each with its own idea of law and supervision."

Deficiencies Outlined.

These illustrate the deficiencies which, he said, should be remedies, but are "not even recognized by the present proposal."

The banking system must be rebuilt from the bottom up, he contended. He recalled his previous recommendations for banking reform.

Senator Glass was the only one to question the witness at length, and then only to elaborate agreement, for the most part. The Virginian stressed repeatedly that the Reserve System is now capable of exercising all the necessary controls, if given good administration. It was not the system, but administration of it, that broke down, he insisted.

Senators Couzens and Byrnes briefly questioned Warburg, both reflecting a favorable view of the bill. Byrnes, particularly, favored it and clashed with Glass on that account.

Warburg, the first banker to take up the cudgels against the bill, is to be followed by other critics, many of them, however, seeking to moderate instead of defeat Title II. As yet insufficient opposition has developed to indicate that the bill will fail of enactment. Glass will lead a strong attack on it, however.

Reconsideration Shut Off.

The Virginia Senator's opposition to the confirmation of Governor Eccles was overcome in the Banking Committee and was insufficient to hold it up in the Senate yesterday. It went through without opposition or vote when Senator Fletcher, chairman of the Banking Committee, called it up. Likewise Fletcher obtained consent for immediate notification to the President which would shut off the possibility for further consideration.

The Utah banker, one-time Republican, whose nomination was delayed in Senator Glass' sub-committee, is thus finally installed as head of the Reserve Board.

Eccles is but 44. He is a native of Utah, a Mormon, who headed a chain of Utah and Idaho banks before coming to the Treasury as a New Deal special assistant.

Last fall President Roosevelt advanced him to the important post as governor of the Reserve Board. Eccles has subscribed to much of the Keynes pump-priming theory, and holds that the taxing power must be used to divert and direct the flow of investment and expenditure by the Government as a means of averting or moderating "capitalistic crises."

Between You and Me

By Raymond Clapper

THERE are so many things to see and hear in Washington that at times a bewildered reporter can take in more of it if he spends a day hiding behind his desk and just sits there, staring out of the window at the Pennsylvania avenue traffic.

Then he can let the great parade go marching by. He looks on it from a distance, with detached eyes, and seems to see more than if he were out in the middle of it, furiously asking questions and taking notes, as he weaves among the marchers, most of whom furthermore, look more impressive at a distance.

It is like watching a dizzy, fast-sweeping newsreel of the past, with quick flashes of Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson, marching troops, Harding standing deeply moved before hundreds of flag-draped coffins on the Hoboken pier where the man came back from France, grinning Coolidge, the small Spirit of St. Louis with a lanky, curly-haired young man climbing out, frowning Hoover, Al Smith and his derby, and the mob scene at the Chicago Democratic national convention where a tall, smiling man waves to the cheering crowds to the strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again." Your blood begins to tingle and each fleeting glimpse brings back whole rich chapters of the great modern epic of America, and in sharper focus and more colorful detail than when you saw them in the flesh.

So it is with the Washington scene, in the warming spring sun. You ride through Rock Creek meadows tinted with drifts of spring beauties. In the woods behind white dogwood begins to show through. You land downtown in mid-afternoon, saying good morning and feeling foolish afterward. You are a little surprised to find the afternoon newspapers out, as if anything worth telling had happened on a day like this.

But sure enough, President Roosevelt has spent an hour telling 150 reporters—"where the hell were you?" the managing editor asks—that 43 government agencies had been assigned to plan work for 3,500,000 unemployed, and jokes with the reporters about giving white-collar relief to the White House quartet to keep them from singing any more . . . No, that's wrong. He's going to provide a works relief orchestra so they can sing. This works program will wreck the Administration yet . . . Frank Walker, the mystery man, is back again as head of the National Emergency Council and everyone recalls his previous arrivals amid loud trumpeting and his quiet fade-out each time . . . James M. Moffett, the rich young man, whiles away the time before leaving FHA to go on his honeymoon by putting on overalls and standing on a steam shovel to dig the first dirt for the Clarendon, Va., housing project . . . $6,000,000 bankruptcy closes Chicago wheat pit temporarily . . . A strike of 2,300 at Toledo . . . Another judge gives NRA a kick. Senators wrangle over the bonus torn between Mr. Roosevelt's opposition and the votes back home . . . James P. Warburg, one of the bright monetary boys in the Administration until he refused to believe in some of the magical tricks that Prof. Warren was doing right before his eyes, comes back from private life to tell the Senate Banking and Currency Committee that the tricks are only optical illusions . . . A man dies who sold newspapers the night after the Battle of Bull Run, who was a doorkeeper at Ford's Theater when Lincoln was shot 70 years ago tomorrow night, and who worked for the Government 67 years.

"Is that the way you do your work?" All right. The office mail. Nothing but the Congressional Record and press releases. The National Economy League is holding a dinner May 7 "to insist upon economy in government." That's mildly funny.

Hon. Alben W. Barkley, keynoter for the convention that nominated Mr. Roosevelt, sends a copy of a speech, "not printed at Government expense," it says. Subheads: "Mythical Millions," "Proposes Panacea," "Deluding the Destitute," "Futile Hopes," "Other People's Money," "Budgeting With Bubbles," "Whimsical Pipe Dreams." So he has turned on the Administration! That looks like a story. But no, he is only talking about the Townsend plan.

The National Press Club moves "Princess Alice" from the lounge to the poolroom and none of the reporter members miss her until the "Goldfish Bowl" reports it. "Princess Alice" is a wooden totem which a gang of Washington correspondents swiped in Alaska when they were there with Harding. Legend is that she was smuggled back on the Harding funeral train, but newspaper reporters wouldn't do anything like that. More likely they let her come back on the transport by way of Panama.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports automobile exports jumped 120 per cent last year, while cotton exports dropped 30 per cent . . . Chester Davis, of AAA, wants to license exports to keep a better balance. Pull down the big exports to match the small ones? No, it's something more complicated . . . The State Department announces voluminously that Brazil has agreed to reduce the tariff on colophony. No use guessing—it's resin or rosin. . . The House foreign affairs sub-committee investigates the tin situation and produces a printed volume 1,111 pages long and 2 inches thick. Nobody knew there was that much tin in the world.

Just about the time this column was being started and nobody knew where it would come out, the telephone rang.

"If you need anything to put at the end of your column tomorrow maybe you can use this: Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, was asked about the proposal of Roger Babson, the economist, to pension Senators and Representatives for life. Van Nuys replied, 'Just another damn fool suggestion, which added to the multitude of other damn fool suggestions, makes just a litle bit more.'"

That's enough. Pretty soft, what?

Neutrals' Curb If War Comes Urged in House

Sweeping Plan Offered on Eve of Legal Conference on U. S. Policy.

On the eve of an important three-day discussion here of neutrality, the most sweeping legislation yet suggested to restrict the activities of Americans in the event of a war abroad, with the object of making invulnerable this country's neutrality, was laid before Congress yesterday.

The legislation was proposed to the House during debate on the Navy appropriation bill by Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), of Texas. In introducing his resolution Mr. Maverick told the House the measure was written by a group of international lawyers and had been approved by 10 or 12 of that profession. He did not name those who had collaborated with him.

The resolution would make it unlawful to make any contract with a belligerent nation or one of its citizens to furnish any munitions of war or article declared to be contraband or to make any loan to a belligerent. It would be made unlawful to export munitions or contraband to a belligerent, while the President would have authority to restrict the travel of American citizens in war zones.

Exceeds Other Proposals.

This proposal goes far beyond measures pending in the Senate and House. Its provisions, however, are in line with those made a year ago by Charles Warren, former Assistant Attorney General, whose recommendations on the subject inspired a State Department study.

Mr. Maverick's proposal was another indication of the movement which has developed on Capitol Hill, with the encouragement of President Roosevelt, for formulation of a sweeping neutrality policy in advance of a foreign conflict. The basis of such a policy is a restriction of the right of Americans to trade with and travel in countries at war.

Due to the widespread interest aroused in proposals for a neutrality program, partly resulting from the war clouds over Europe, the American Society of International Law has dedicated its annual meeting, which opens at the Willard Hotel tonight, to a discussion of all aspects of the problem.

Neutrality to Be Topic.

The meeting will be opened with an address by Dr. James Brown Scott, president of the society, on "The Neutrality of the Good Neighbor." He will be followed by Fred K. Nielsen, former solicitor of the State Department, who will discuss "The Future of Belligerent Rights on the Sea."

These topics will be discussed further by Frederic R. Coudert, New York lawyer; Dr. Edwin M. Borchard, professor of law at the Yale Law School, and Mr. Charles G. Fenwick, professor of political science at Bryn Mawr College.

Aspects of the neutrality problem will be discussed at three sessions tomorrow and on Saturday morning, while several speakers at the society's annual banquet Saturday night are expected to make it the keynote of their addresses. Although Secretary of State Cordell Hull is listed on the program as a speaker at the banquet, it was explained at the State Department that a previous engagement will make it impossible for him to attend.

In Protest of Navy Bill.

Mr. Maverick introduced his neutrality plan as part of his protest against the pending Navy appropriations bill. He asserted he objected to the "psychology of grandeur—the desire of the United States to be the biggest cock on the walk." He said he had no objection to preparation for defense, adding that "if we are going to be a defensive nation let us be a defensive nation."

"The whole world today is in a maelstrom of horror," he asserted. "They are getting ready for war. I hope that in our desire to become a defensive nation we do not become an offensive nation."

His resolution was entitled, "To define a national policy of peace and neutrality; to prohibit certain transactions with belligerent nations; to protect American sovereignty."

In a declaration of policy, the resolution stated that the armed forces of the United States "shall not be used in aid of or against any foreign nation except to protect the United States and places subject to its territorial jurisdiction against armed invasion thereof," and that no part of the country's armed forces should be transported to foreign soil for the purpose of "engaging on behalf of or against any foreign nation in armed conflict."

The resolution defines the term "belligerent foreign nation" not only as one that has declared war against another nation, but any foreign nation engaged in armed conflict with another nation or one "which the President of the United States determines and proclaims is engaged in armed conflict with any other foreign nation."

Restrictions on Nationals.

Enter into any contract with any belligerent foreign nation or national thereof to furnish, or to furnish such parties any munitions of war or article declared to be contraband of war by it or by any foreign nation with which it is engaged in armed conflict.

Make any loan or otherwise extend credit to any belligerent foreign nation or national thereof, or acquire during the time such nation is a belligerent any evidence of indebtedness of such nation or national issued during the period of belligerency.

Export from the United States, directly or indirectly, to any belligerent foreign nation or national any munitions or any article declared to be contraband.

Charter any vessel of American registry to or for the uses of any belligerent or its nationals.

Citizenship Loss Provided.

In addition to these prohibitions, the resolution provides that any American enlisting in the armed forces of a belligerent shall immediately lose his citizenship, while recruiting of men for a belligerent nation on American soil is forbidden. Military vessels and aircraft or armed vessels or aircraft would be denied admittance to United States ports, waters or any air space subject to this country's jurisdiction.

The courts of this country, as well as all executive departments, would be forbidden to take jurisdiction of any dispute arising out of any contract or transaction between any person in the United States and a belligerent foreign nation.

The resolution provides fines not in excess of $100,000 and jail sentences for not longer than five years or both for violation of its provisions.

Sherrill Office Termed Lobby, Probe Ordered

An investigation of the newly organized American Retail Federation was ordered yesterday by the House.

Only this week, Col. Clarence O. Sherrill, former military aid to Presidents Harding and Coolidge and former director of public buildings and parks, returned to Washington as president of the federation to open headquarters here.

Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, champion of the inquiry, described the organization as a "super lobby," and said that it intended to influence legislation. He said the investigation would be inexpensive and would be completed in three weeks.

The resolution directed appointment of a committee to delve into the federation's activities.

Already, the resolution charged, "the gigantic sum of $750,000" has been contributed or pledged to the organization, and its organizers plan to raise $2,000,000 a year for use "in its lobbing activities and for the further purpose of permitting it to disseminate propaganda among the consumers and producers of the United States."

Another contention of the resolution was that the organization was "designed for the purpose of intimidating and influencing the members of Congress through direct and subversive lobbying activities as well as through coercing hundreds of thousands of underpaid employes throughout the Nation to flood the respective members of the United States Congress with letters, petitions and propaganda designed to improperly and untruthfully represent the public sentiment of the respective constituencies of the said members of Congress."

Convicts Run Gantlet Of Guns, Flee in Auto

Sugarland, Tex., April 24 (AP).—Four convicts ran a gantlet of guard's guns at the imperial state prison farm near here late today and escaped in a motor car to a wood near Richmond, into which they fled with bloodhounds on their trail.

Two of the fugitives were armed with pistols.

Colorado & Southern Financing Supported

New York, April 24 (AP).—Assents have been received from holders of more than 86 per cent of the Colorado & Southern general mortgage bonds to the proposed extension of the refunding and extension mortgage bonds maturing May 1, 1935, it was announced today by Ralph Budd, chairman of executive committee.

Final action by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Interstate Commerce Commission on a program providing for refunding or other means of caring for this security is hoped for in the next few days, he said.

3 New Agencies Will Form Part Of Work Set-up of criticism which has arisen over these projects.

Work Under Division, Only.

The President made it clear Tugwell would remain as Undersecretary of Argiculture, but he also made it clear Tugwell would be solely responsible for the "rural resettlement" work in his capacity as head of the division, rather than as an official of the Agriculture Department.

Under the President's plan the FERA would slowly dwindle. With rural rehabilitation work turned over to Tugwell and with persons on relief transferred to work, this division will gradually cease to function. The President said, however, that it probably would be necessary for it to continue to care for some persons who can not be put on work relief. Unemployables, however, under the plan, are to be cared for by the States. The President pointed out many of the projects would not be started immediately and that it would be necessary for FERA to carry on for a time. For this purpose the $880,000,000 included in the works bill is being used. There also are some work relief projects that may be continued under FERA.

Long-Time Work Out.

While much of the program involves housing, grade elimination and other slow-moving work, the President said that he did not want money allotted to be spent over a period of several years. This may block some of the major proposals such as canals, power plants and many other undertakings that would require a long period for completion.

The President listed eight subdivisions under which the program will operate. They are:

1. Highway construction and the elimination of grade crossings.
2. Aid to persons in stricken agricultural regions and a general program of rural rehabilitation.
3. Rural electrification.
4. Construction of low-cost houses in both country and city.
5. Assistance of "white collar" workers.
6. Expansion of the Civilian Conservation Corps.
7. Loans to counties, cities and States.
8. Soil erosion prevention and reforestation.

These points follow in a general way the provisions of the works law, which earmarks funds for specific purposes, but gives the President considerable leeway in transferring money.

Explains for Hour.

As the President explained his plan, talking for an hour to 150 newspapermen at his weekly press conference, he had before him a list, covering many typewritten pages, of possible forms of employment. Some of the items were reminiscent of the CWA "made work" experiment.

Among other things, the list indicated the Government is committed to "boon-doggling" and similar much-criticized projects for "white collar" unemployed.

Among the proposals for putting "white collar" men and women to work are art projects, making of charts, maps and graphs, dramatics, education, orchestras, research, surveys and traffic studies. Under the heading of surveys will come the proposed census of the unemployed to cost $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 and to employ 100,000 persons.

Influx to D. C. Likely.

Many "white-collar" workers are expected to be absorbed in administration of the works program. It was indicated the personnel of most of the agencies handling the relief program will have to be increased, probably bringing many more people to Washington. President Roosevelt said these increased pay rolls will be met from the works fund and should not be considered added Government expense, but a part of the job of putting people to work. He pointed out these jobs will be temporary, on the same basis as other relief jobs.

Expansion of the CCC already is under way and President Roosevelt pointed out that the PWA has examined and ready for approval $1,000,000,000 in projects that could be started within a short time.

All of these plans, under the new set-up, must be turned over to the Division of Applications and Information, headed by Frank C. Walker, who was appointed by the President Tuesday. All plans, either from Government agencies, States, cities, counties, or whatever their source, must pass through Walker's department. There they will be examined and turned over to the allotment board for action. No project will be considered that hasn't first passed through Walker's hands. Walker arrived from New York yesterday to take up his new duties. He went directly to the White House.

Would End Grants.

Another important departure from the present PWA arrangement will involve the handling of money to go into State, county and city projects. President Roosevelt said he favored making loans to these subdivisions covering 100 per cent of the cost of the projects, rather than the present plan of part loan and part direct grant. This follows his policy of insisting that the Government eventually get back as much of the works money as possible.

In the list of governmental agencies assigned parts of the task of work relief, President Roosevelt gave jobs to all the departments except State and Postoffice. One of the most important assignments, that of supervising purchasing and construction of Federal buildings, went to the procurement division of the Treasury, headed by Admiral Christian J. Peoples. Admiral Peoples is expected to be a general purchasing agent for the program.

Agriculture Gets Tasks.

To the Agriculture Department was assigned a great amount of work, separated according to various bureaus, but not made a part of the new Tugwell organization. This department, which will include road work and reforestation under its direction, probably will spend more of the works money than any other individual agency.

Under the PWA was listed merely "projects involving loans to States, municipalities and subdivisions thereof."

Persons to be employed in the works program will be only those on relief rolls. President Roosevelt said that when the country is divided into the proposed areas for works administration, officials will be called upon to supervise "certified" relief rolls from which workers will be taken. The FERA has been working for some time on the task of obtaining accurate lists of persons on relief and actually needing relief. In many instances names have been removed from the rolls.

CCC Recruiting.

The CCC already is under way with its part of the program, recruiting its membership up to 600,000 men. The War Department yesterday sent instructions to commanding officers of all corps areas directing them to begin enrollment of new men June 15 and to have all men in forest work camps by the end of August.

To carry out the program it will be necessary for the Labor Department and the Veterans' Administration to select and for the War Department to enroll 250,000 new men and an estimated 100,000 replacements in June, July and August.

As a preparatory move, the War Department has initiated plans for building at once 1,276 new CCC camps at a cost of approximately $25,000,000. In some instances men will live in tents until barracks are completed.

Rules Changed.

One change has been made in eligibility rules. The age limit for "juniors," which had been 18 to 25, has been changed to 18 to 28, and the time during which they may stay in camp has been extended from 12 months to 18 months.

To command the new camps the War Department will call to active duty 3,000 additional reserve officers, bringing the total number of reserve officers on CCC duty to nearly 10,000. The Agriculture Department will supervise 400,000 men instead of 225,000, as at present, and the Interior Department 140,000 men, instead of 90,000.

1,500,000 Aliens Seen On U. S. Relief Rolls

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The number of aliens on the Nation's relief rolls was estimated at 1,500,000 today by Edward Corsi, former New York immigration commissioner.

Corsi, now director of the city's home relief bureau, made the estimate toward the end of his afternoon's appearance as a witness before the municipal relief inquiry.

In New York City alone, he asserted, 16.40 per cent, or about 33,284 of the families on relief, are aliens.

Mayor Makes Apology For Liquor Displays

Springfield, Mo., April 24 (AP).—Show-window liquor displays were embarrassing today to Mayor Harry D. Durst—what with the Southwest Missouri Conference of the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society getting under way.

"We are not responsible for such displays," he apologized in welcoming the delegates. "We are limited in the amount we can tax them * * * If you see anything unpleasant, try to forget it."

Princeton Seniors Hurt In Baltimore Accident

West Chester, Pa., April 24 (AP).—Three Princeton seniors were critically injured and two women were hurt today in a head-on automobile collision on the Baltimore pike near here. The students are James Calloway, 22, New York; Richard Whitney, 22, New York, and Norman Welch, jr., 22, Charleston, S. C.

The women, whose car collided with that in which the three youths were riding, are Mrs. Joseph Zeritz, 43, and Mrs. David Lansman, 34, both of Baltimore. Neither was seriously hurt.

Cotton Exports Deserve Break, Davis Thinks

and that he had no suggestions as to how the shipment of exports should be regulated.

"George Peek (the President's special foreign trade adviser) has frequently suggested one agency to control exports," he added.

Since foreign countries can buy from the United States only in proportion to what they sell to this Nation, only a limited amount of trade is available, is Davis' view. Hence, he theorized, the amount of dollar exchange held by other countries should be allotted to take care of farm products, "especially cotton."

The Department of Agriculture has insisted, throughout the cotton controversy, that the drop in farm exports has been due more to a shortage of dollar exchange than to artificially maintained prices in this country. Davis' theory, however, was the first suggestion that restrictions might well be placed on certain exports in order to force other countries to buy agricultural commodities.

6 Per Cent Drop Noted.

The Chamber of Commerce report on 1934 trade movements noted that, whereas cotton exports constituted 24 per cent of total exports in 1933, they amounted to only 18 per cent last year. The United States shipped only 5,943,000 bales last year, the smallest amount since 1923.

"The reduced exports," said the Chamber of Commerce, taking issue with the Agriculture Department, "are attributable to the artificially higher prices for American, relative to foreign, cotton, increased foreign mill consumption of large stocks of American cotton bought at lower prices and considerable substitution of foreign growths.

"Consumption abroad by foreign mills of American cotton in the calendar year 1934 amounted to 7,346,000 bales, or 1,089,000 bales less than in 1933. On the other hand, mill consumption of foreign cotton totaled 12,313,000 bales, an increase of 1,564,000 bales over the 1933 figure."

At the same time, the report noted that exports of agricultural machinery and implements, potentially competitive with American agriculture, advanced sharply. The value of farm machinery exported was placed at 76 per cent above the 1933 figure, which was 16 per cent above the 1932 value.

Export trade as a whole, the chamber reported, "showed further extension of the improvement which began in 1933." Total exports were valued at $2,133,000,000, 27 per cent above 1933. Exports of automobiles and trucks led the field, totaling 145,157 and 92,723, respectively.

The cotton textile debate, meantime, continued to rage on Capitol Hill; the President's special Cabinet committee on cotton prepared to begin its survey, and cotton manufacturers of the South converged on Augusta, Ga., for the annual convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association today.

Schultz Prosecution Rests.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 24 (AP).—The Government rested its case today against Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flengenheimer, former bigwig of the Bronx beer racket, on trial in Federal Court for income tax evasion.

mittee and reach the conclusion set forth by the sub-committee in its report. The evidence, on the contrary, clearly sustains the position which the Board of Trade has taken for a number of years advocating the Gravelly Point site."

Nine years have elapsed since Gravelly Point, then a desolate area on the Virginia side of the Potomac River about a mile below Highway Bridge, first came in for serious mention as the site of a Washington municipal airport.

In 1926 it was recommended by the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations. Three years later the site was indorsed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which still remains one of its most militant defenders.

Since the Gravelly Point fight began the Mount Vernon Memorial highway, which crosses the disputed area, has been built and Washington Airport has been developed. Numerous complications have arisen in the interim, involving principally the boundary between Virgina and the District, which are still far from settlement.

Boundary Issue Involved.

An important factor in the controversy will be the findings of the commission now holding hearings in an attempt to fix the Virginia-District boundary. Whatever recommendations it makes will have to be ratified by Congress and the Legislature of Virginia before being put into effect.

Practically all of the land on which Washington and Hoover airports are situated is within the District, according to Supreme Court rulings. The same is true of the greater part of the land, both submerged and above water, which would be occupied by the Gravelly Point airport.

Supreme Court rulings have not, however, ended the venerable boundary dispute. If the commission decides that Virginia begins at low-water mark rather than at high water, as the Supreme Court held, and its decision is properly ratified, the Federal Government will lose its Washington airport and Gravelly Point land claims.

A suit instituted by the United States to determine title to two sections of marshland at Roaches Run, which would be utilized in the proposed airport development, has been pending about two years. The defendants are four Virginians, who claim ownership by virtue of patents granted by the Governor of Virginia.

Perkins Moves To Bring Peace In Auto Strike

Union Reveals It Spurns Wolman Labor Board in Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Perkins last night sped Thomas J. Williams, Labor Department Conciliator, to Toledo, Ohio, to attempt to halt the strike in the Chevrolet automobile plant there.

Earlier, Miss Perkins conferred with Francis J. Dillon, American Federation of Labor organizer for the auto industry.

With Dillon were four members of the United Automobile Workers, federation affiliate, from Janesville, Wis., who presented 37 complaints of discrimination for union activity at the Chevrolet and Fisher Bodies plants at Janesville.

Dillon also handed the secretary 87 other complaints against General Motors Corporation subsidiaries, charging discrimination. Seventy-four were from St. Louis, seven from Atlanta, one from Flint, Mich., and five from Norwood, Ohio, a Cincinnati suburb.

Dillon told Miss Perkins the Federation Union no longer was submitting complaints to the Wolman Auto Labor Board, and asked her help in obtaining reinstatement of the discharged and laid-off men.

"We made it plain that the Wolman board was out and, as far as we are concerned, that we'd have nothing more to do with it," Dillon said after the conference.

He left for Detroit, saying he would go to Toledo for a mass meeting of Chevrolet strikers tomorrow night to vote on the company's peace proposals. If the workers accept them, Dillon said the union would abide by their decision.

The labor organizer expressed fear the Toledo strike would spread to Detroit before the week-end, adding:

"They're sitting on a keg of dynamite."

Chevrolet Strikers Will Vote on Peace

By the Associated Press.

Toledo, Ohio, April 24.—Striking employes of the local Chevrolet plant will vote Friday on peace proposals made by the management.

Fred Schwake, business agent of the United Automobile Workers Federal Union, announced the call for the meeting and said Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of General Motors, would be invited.

The company advanced its proposed agreement yesterday. A clause provides for a blanket 5 per cent increase in wages. Schwake said he was "confident" the plan would be voted down by the union.

The union issued a statement denying an assertion by Sloan that the principal issue involved the question of a closed shop. The union statement said a closed shop was not asked; that the principal request was for a signed contract.

Criticism against the Automobile Labor Board came in the same statement by the union, in reply to a company proposal to enforce seniority rules in the plant as laid down by the board. The union's statement said: "The workers in the union have their own seniority rules and have no faith in the so-called Automobile Labor Board headed by Mr. Wolman (Dr. Leo Wolman)."

The local Chevrolet plant remained idle today and tonight with all but a few of its 2,340 employes temporarily out of their jobs as the strike, which started yesterday, continued.

Labor Board Finds 68% Unaffiliated

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 24.—The National Automobile Labor Board, completing a canvass of 163,150 workers in the Nation's automobile plants, reported tonight that 68.6 per cent showed no affiliation with any labor organization.

The board said its work of setting up bargaining agencies was now complete and the machinery ready for collective bargaining between workers and employers.

The first break in the set-up of the bargaining agencies came today when employes of the Hudson Motor Co. petitioned for the recall of Arthur Greer as their representative on the Hudson agency. Under board rules an agency member may be recalled by the majority of employes in the affected plant.

The Automobile Labor Board is also keeping close watch on the developments at the Toledo plant of the Chevrolet Motor Co., where a strike is in progress. In the absence of Francis J. Dillon, A. F. of L. organizer, labor leaders here refused to say today whether the Toledo strike might spread to other Chevrolet and General Motor plants.

The Toledo plant turns out transmissions for Chevrolet and Pontiac cars, but William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, said the strike was not impeding production schedules.

Relief Situation Here Discussed at Meeting

The local relief situation in the light of the new $4,880,000,000 works bill was discussed last night at the quarterly conference of officers of the Volunteers of America at its relief station, 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Adjutant H. Mills Eroh, commander of the Washington Volunteers, predicted drastic changes will be necessary in relief agencies here in the next few months as a result of the huge appropriation for works relief.

The conference was attended by Mrs. Kate Flick, member of the Volunteers advisory board in Toledo, Ohio; Capt. B. C. Downs, Lieut. L. V. Eroh, Capt. Paul B. Kelly, the Rev. George W. Kains and Brevet Capt. Clyde Parker.

Coughlin Opens Drive to Forge Political Club

Nye, Thomas Lemke Present at Meeting Attended by 17,000.

Bigelow said "if this Congress does not give us what we want, we're not going to ask it of the next Congress. We're going to take it."

The Cincinnati minister hailed Father Coughlin's movement as an agency for "people to vote as they pray."

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman, of St. Louis, declared that the program of the union projected by Father Coughlin would "become a great instrument in establishing a new order of social justice in the United States and thus blaze a trail of hope for the children of men everywhere."

Senator Thomas declared that Congress hesitated to act on such measures as the banking bill, the silver bill, the farm refinancing bill and the soldiers' bonus until public opinion has made itself felt.

"The passage of these bills depends very largely upon the demands made by the people," he said. "Congress hesitates to act until public sentiment crystallizes back of the pending proposals."

"The cause of this depression," said Thomas, "has been and still is a famine of money. The only cure is a supply of money.

Lemke Attacks AAA.

"I have been and am demanding that more actual money be placed in circulation, and as money becomes more plentiful money will become cheaper and the prices of commodities will rise."

Edward Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers Union, declared that the national union was backing Father Coughlin's plan for a central bank of issue to provide complete congressional control of money.

"This Nation is still in agony," said Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, whose Frazier-Lemke bill is being backed by the national union.

"The great Secretary of Agriculture," he said, "cut the throats of 6,000,000 pigs so that the packers could profit.

"My farmer friends got 2 cents a pound for their meat and you are paying 45 to 60 cents a pound. The farmers are not getting the benefit of the Triple A."

Steel Workers' Union Backs A. F. of L. Action

Pittsburgh, April 24 (AP).—Members of the 60-year-old Amalgamated Steel Workers Union today adopted a resolution expressing unanimous accord with the promulgation of the American Federation of Labor calling for "complete organization of the steel industry."

The convention of 101 delegates got under way, with 40 members of the self-styled "rank and file" delegates meeting in another hall a block away after losing a court fight for an injunction under which they might have been seated.

Slayer of Pastor Gets 1 to 10 Year Sentence

Lebanon, Ind., April 24 (AP).—Theodore Mathers was sentenced today to serve one to ten years for the slaying of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, former Wabash, Ind., minister.

The sentence was imposed on an involuntary manslaughter conviction. Mathers, 21, former resident of Coalmont, Ind., was charged with killing the former pastor at the instigation of the minister's wife, Mrs. Neoma Saunders. Mrs. Saunders, tried here several months ago, was acquitted on grounds of temporary insanity.

Chicago Man Indicted In Children's Death

Chicago, April 24 (AP).—William Gardner, 56, a bank employe, remained in the Cook County jail today while the son and daughter he killed with a gun Monday "because I have been sick" were buried in suburban La Grange.

Gardner, reported indicted today for the murder of the children, Rita Jane, 20, and Donald, 14, expressed his inability to "face the tragedy of their funeral." Another son, Kenneth, 17, who was seriously wounded by his father, is still in a hospital.

4,000 Called in Chicago Hunt For Firebug After 25 Blazes

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 23. — Policemen, janitors, legionnaires, vigilantes and aviators patrolled the sedate Rogers Park district tonight in an effort to apprehend a pyromaniac accused of setting 25 apartment house fires.

Four thousand janitors were ordered by their union to join 50 extra officers, 60 American Legion members and uncounted residents of the terrorized area in guarding against a new attack by the arsonist. At the same time an air transport company (Northwest Airlines) instructed its pilots to radio ground stations immediately if they detected any signs of flames.

The Rogers Park Chamber of Commerce offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the incendiarist, who kindled ten blazes in quick succession early Tuesday. An aged woman met death in one of the fires and her granddaughter was burned severely.

Capt. Patrick Harding, of the Rogers Park police, announced he was convinced the firebug was responsible for 25 fires that broke out in the residential section in the last week.

State and city investigators were handicapped by the fact only one person saw the pyromaniac. She was Mrs. Alice Heffern, who saw a man hurry from her apartment building at dawn and a moment later discovered a blaze under a stairway. She described him as about 30, tall, thin. He had a small moustache and wore a gray topcoat.

Teacher Training 'Racket' Charged

Normal Schools Accused by Barnard Dean.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—A charge that the best educated young women of the Nation are being shut out of public school posts by a growing "racket" in teacher-training was voiced today by Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College.

Speaking at the Women's Faculty Club of Columbia University, Dean Gildersleeve declared it was "rapidly becoming impossible for graduates of our best liberal arts colleges to teach in the public schools of this country."

To illustrate her conception of the "racket" she cited an imaginary case of a normal school which arranged a complicated curriculum of certain specific subjects and then persuaded the State Board of Education to require all those subjects from candidates for teaching jobs.

This would enable the school in question to exercise a virtual monopoly on all public school positions in that particular State, she pointed out.

Las Vegas Ready To Go 'Wild West'

Annual 'Helldorado' Festival Opening Today.

By the Associated Press.

Las Vegas, Nevada, April 24.—Las Vegas will go wild, woolly and strictly Western tomorrow when it inaugurates an annual four-day "Helldorado" celebration.

Recalling the epoch in which fortunes were plucked from creek beds and hillsides and cattle roamed free of fences, Las Vegans, in costumes of the period, will tramp the streets of a specially prepared frontier village—a synthetic "Helldorado."

Along the main street "Pay Streak trail," is the Last Chance Bar, dance halls and the home of the Flaming Follies. On the outskirts is a mining scene.

For the celebration women will have long flowing dresses and perky hats or divided riding skirts, boots and high hats. Men with month-old beards, achieving the personal "hanging -garden" effect of the olden days, will wear cowboy and miners' outfits. Others will be garbed as desert rats.

you. It originally was intended to promote conservation—that's what it is doing and intends to keep right on doing.

Then, too, a "Department of Conservation and Works" might provide a home for some of these emergency agencies, when and if they become permanent—the PWA, the National Resources Board and the Petroleum Board, for example.

Holding Company Bill Topic.

Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, will speak tonight over a Nation-wide radio hook-up on the Rayburn-Wheeler holding company bill. The broadcast will be made at 9:45. The title of his talk is "A Policy of Regulation or a Policy of Ruin."

Doubled Army Rushed; Funds For Navy Sped

Ship Appropriation Bill Is Expected to Pass in House Today.

With passage of the almost unprecedented $460,000,000 Navy appropriation bill expected late today in the House, the Army yesterday moved to double its fighting strength.

A last-minute fight probably will revolve around efforts of big Navy advocates to restore in full an item of $29,000,000 for construction of 24 new ships, which was cut in half by the appropriations committee.

As the measure now stands the Navy would have authority to go ahead and lay down all of the vessels, but would have to demand the additional funds at the next session.

Representative Delaney (Democrat), of New York, said he would seek immediate restoration of the full amount because the construction had been approved by the Administration, the Navy Department and the Budget Bureau.

Army Plans Enlistments.

Indications were that bad feeling which developed in the committee over the construction program would be reflected in floor debate when Delaney raises the issue.

Secretary Swanson, obviously chagrined over the move to cut the item in half, declined to say whether he intended to order work started on all 24 ships should only half of the funds requested be appropriated.

The War Department announced it would begin a drive to enlist 31,700 men July 1. That will increase the roster of the Regular Army to 149,700. A bill recently signed by the President authorized an Army of 165,000. The maximum probably will be attained later.

2,237 More Here.

The ultimate total increase of 46,250 men, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, told congressional committees, will mean almost a 100 per cent increase in fighting strength.

Officials announced the Third Corps area, including Washington, Maryland and Virginia, would get 2,237 additional men. Efforts will be made to recruit the men close to the stations to which they will be assigned.

Existing infantry, cavalry and engineers' units will get the rookies. The number of men to be allotted to the Medical Corps, Air Corps and Signal Corps will be announced later.

Bremer RansomSuspect Is Identified in Court

St. Paul, April 24 (AP).—Four Chicago bank employes pointed out William Vidler today as the man who exchanged $11,650 of the $200,000 turned over to a kidnaping gang to ransom Edward G. Bremer.

They made their identifications in Federal court as the Government swung into the prosecution of the alleged money changers among the ten defendants on trial for complicity in the abduction.

Federal and District Pay Blue Book Asked

A salary blue book listing all Federal and District government employes was proposed yesterday in a resolution introduced by Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee.

The resolution provides that the salaries be obtained from records of the Civil Service Commission and be published annually for the information of Congress.

Powers to Get Plea to Assist Austria by Pact

Mutual Assistance Treaty to Be Asked in Rome by France, Italy.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 24.—A general non-interference pact to be proposed at the forthcoming Rome conference, it was authoritatively stated tonight, may be backed up by mutual assistance pacts modeled after the projected Franco-Russian accord.

France and Italy, co-hosts for the meeting to be held in early June and co-sponsors for the non-interference convention, will issue joint invitations soon to Germay, Austria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Poland.

At Rome these nations will be asked to join France and Italy in signing accords embodying sanctions to be used against any nation violating the non-interference pact, primary purpose of which will be to assure Austria's independence.

Although Germany as yet has given no indication as to whether she will be represented, the authoritative sources here said Poland had agreed to send her foreign minister, Joseph Beck, to do whatever Adolf Hitler does.

British Attitude Unknown.

Whether Great Britain will send an observer, as has been intimated, has not been decided, it was said here.

Re-armament of Bulgaria, Austria and Hungary, disarmed like Germany by the peace treaties, will not be put on the formal agenda of the conference, it was stated. While it will undoubtedly be discussed, the discussions will be almost certainly informal, for Italy and France, under pressure from the Little Entente, are described as feeling the question should be brought up first before the League of Nations.

It was understood the invitation to the seven powers would not be issued until Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France have definite assurance that most of the powers are in accord on the conference program.

The general convention, which which will have the first call for discussion at the meeting, is envisaged as a single document which all delegates will be asked to sign, thereby pledging their governments to strict "hands off" policy in regard to each other's internal affairs.

Reich Asks More Facts.

Such a convention, while assuring Austria of the right to run her own affairs, would be much broader in that it would give the same protection to all other powers.

The text of the convention, it is learned, already has been drawn up and submitted to the interested governments. Most of them have accepted the draft, although Hungary and Poland were said to have adhered "only in principle." Germany was reported to have asked additional information concerning the meaning of "noninterference."

The bilateral pacts, which would include sanctions to be imposed in case the convention was violated, would all be within the framework of the league, just as the dormant Franco-Russian pact. If all the invited powers sign such accords, there would be 36 treaties. It was expected, however, that certain governments, including Poland, would agree to sign only the general convention.

Sanitation Measure Is Passed by House

The House yesterday passed a bill introduced early this week authorizing the Public Health Service to make a thorough examination of the plumbing and sanitation systems of all Federal buildings in Washington and throughout the country.

The resolution, offered by Representative John R. Dingell (Democrat), of Illinois, calls for a report to Congress by January 3, 1936, and for a study of the relation of bad plumbing and amoebic dysentery.

House Crime Committee Session Called Today

The special House Crime Investigating Committee will meet in executive session at 10 a. m. today to consider a preliminary draft of its report on the District inquiry.

The report will not be made public, however, until it is submitted to the House District Committee next Wednesday, when the matter will be made a special order of business.

stocks and commodities. The full inflationary effect will not be felt, however, until the Treasury commences to use its profit on its silver acquisitions, which now amounts to about $125,000,000.

The chief effect of the increases in the silver prices is to increase the income of silver mining companies and, of course, it has been reflected in increased prices for the stocks of those corporations. Speculators in foreign silver markets also have benefited.

Perhaps the greatest significance that can be drawn from this last increase in the silver price is an indication that the Administration is ready to go ahead in the spirit of the silver purchase act, which has for its objective raising the silver price to $1.29 an ounce.

In a very real sense, yesterday was a crucial day for the silver bloc. Had the Treasury failed to step up the price it would have been clear the Administration had become cool in its enthusiasm for the objective of that group. But the Administration showed its sympathetic interest and may now be expected to take the lead in pumping up the world price by gradual stages.

Worries Arise.

Whether the Administration would act remained uncertain until a few minutes before 8 o'clock last night. Earlier in the day the spot silver price at New York passed the Treasury offer. As nothing authoritative came from the Treasury, silver circles commenced to fret and worry.

Late in the day it was reported around the Treasury that the Administration was backing away from its program—that the rapid rise in the world price of the last two weeks indicated that foreign speculators had control of the market and that the Treasury would no longer play their game. It was intimated that hereafter the Treasury would pay no more for newly mined silver than the world price unless the latter fell below 71.11 cents.

But all this proved to be erroneous. What caused the delay in announcing the new price was not revealed. But when the announcement came it heartened members of the Senate silver bloc and cheered the producers in Western States. With the price for the newly mined product now pegged at 77.57 cents an ounce, those producers might well slow down their output in anticipation of a higher price in the near future.

The 77.57-cent price applies only to silver produced on or after yesterday. Silver produced between April 10 and yesterday will bring 71.11 cents, while metal mined prior to April 10 will bring only 64.64 cents at the mints. The producers, however, might apply to the Treasury for a license to sell such metal in the world market at the present prevailing price.

Text of the President's Proclamation Boosting Price of Silver to 77.57 Cts.

By the Associated Press.

The text of the proclamation by President Roosevelt last night, lifting the price for newly mined domestic silver to 77.57 cents an ounce, follows:

Whereas, by proclamation of the twenty-first day of December, 1933, as modified by proclamations of the ninth day of August, 1934, and the tenth day of April, 1935, the United States coinage mints are directed to receive for coinage and addition to the monetary stocks of the United States silver mined subsequent to December 21, 1933, from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof; and

Whereas, such proclamation as so modified is subject to revocation or further modification as the interest of the United States may seem to require:

Now, therefore, finding that the interests of the United States require further modification of said proclamation of the twenty-first day of December, 1933; by virtue of the power in me vested by the act of Congress cited in said proclamation, and other legislation designated for national recovery, and by virtue of all other authority in me vested;

I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do proclaim and direct that with respect to all silver received by a United States coinage mint under the provisions of the proclamation of the twenty-first day of December, 1933, which such mint, subject to regulations prescribed hereunder by the Secretary of the Treasury, is satisfied has been mined on or after April 24, 1935, from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof, the deduction for seigniorage and services performed by the Government shall be 40 per cent and there shall be returned therefor in standard silver dollars, silver certificates, or any other coin or currency of the United States, the monetary value of the silver so received (that is, $1.2929 a fine ounce), less such deduction of 40 per cent.

Notice is hereby given that I reserve the right by virtue of the authority vested in me to revoke or modify this proclamation as the interest of the United States may seem to require.

Britain Queries Its Dominions On Reich Stand

United Front Wanted on Hitler's Demand for Return of Colonies.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 24.—Apprehension lest Great Britain's Locarno obligations alienate the dominions was expressed in some quarters here today as an authoritative source disclosed plans for conferences on empire defense among dominions officials and cabinet ministers during the next few weeks.

A high overseas official said prime ministers of Canada, Australia, South Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia and Northern Ireland, gathering here for the royal jubilee celebrations, will take up these questions:

1. The policy Great Britain shall adopt in continental issues.

2. The stand to be taken in the face of Germany's demand for return of her colonies.

3. Apportionment of costs for armaments among the various divisions of the empire.

Meanwhile, the Daily Mail, echoing comment heard in other quarters, pointed out that Britain's obligations under the Locarno treaty were reaffirmed at the Italo-Franco-British conference at Stresa, and said:

"Unless the dominions are with us in this matter, the liabilities attaching to the Locarno treaty would be of the utmost peril to imperial unity. No dominion could remain neutral unless it were to secede.

"It is therefore imperatively necessary to test dominion opinion thoroughly. If it is against the Locarno treaty, then there can be only one course for the British government—the treaty will have to be denounced."

On questions of British foreign policy and imperial defense the dominions are constantly in touch with this government, but it was held likely the presence of the several prime ministers here at one time would give opportunity for informal discussions concerning those matters.

Germany's growing demand for return of her colonies probably will be the biggest issue before the conferees, some quarters predict, notably with the delegates from South Africa and other African territories.

Parole Advised For Maryland Arson Convict

Commissioner Proposes Clemency for Beans and 11 Others.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 20.—Andrew E. Beans, who, with his brother, was convicted in 1925 on charges of arson and assault with intent to kill, was recommended for parole today by Gaylord Lee Clark, parole commissioner.

Beans applied for parole last month, but his case as held for further consideration. He and his brother, Luther, were arrested after several homes in Worcester County were destroyed by fire of suspected incendiary origin.

While being transported from Snow Hill to Baltimore the two overpowered their captors, shot the chief of police of Snow Hill and escaped. Captured in Delaware three days later, Andrew was sentenced to 25 years and Luther to 22 years in the penitentiary.

Eleven Recommended for Mercy.

A total of 26 cases were heard and 11 were recommended for favorable action by Clark. Twelve were declined and three held for further consideration. Nine of those receiving favorable action are white men.

The case of George W. Carter, convicted and sentenced to death in 1926 for the murder of George Washenfelt, and against whom Harry W. Nice, now Governor, then assistant State's attorney, was the prosecutor, was one of those held for further consideration.

Carter's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Gov. E. E. Harrington as one of his first official acts after taking office. It was said the killing of Washenfelt took place when he and Carter engaged in a fist fight over the latter's friendliness with Washenfelt's wife. Carter drew a gun and shot his opponent.

Clemency Asked for Youth.

If Clark recommends the man for parole after further consideration, Gov. Nice will be called upon to decide if he will parole a man he once aided in sending to the gallows.

Lowell Hash, sentenced to one year for killing his father in Rockville, received a favorable recommendation. He struck his father with an iron pipe after the elder Hash had struck him with a milking stool. The father had been drinking and had threatened to kill the boy and his mother, it was testified.

Quarries in W. Va. Closed by Strike

350 Idle Workers Picket Martinsburg Plant.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 24.—Standard Lime & Stone Co.'s quarries and cement plant, employing 350 to 400 men, were idle today in a peaceful strike.

The men, following a vote of the union last week, failed to report for work this morning. The management said it had no plans for attempting reopening now, that the plant is completely tied up, and that it will await developments.

A statement said the strike resulted from refusal of the management to grant three demands of the union: a "closed" shop, wage increases of 25 per cent and a signed agreement covering other minor points.

Picketing was carried on by workers, in automobiles and out of them, around the plant.

Rival Societies Plan Joint Campus Dance

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—Two rival honorary societies at the University of Virginia, Eli Banana and Tilka, which have competed for leadership in student activities for 50 years, will join in a colorful dance figure Friday night in Memorial Gymnasium as part of Easter week festivities which started tonight with the first of a series of four dances.

Garbed in the Oriental robes of their order, the Eli Banana members will be led by their president, Henry M. Sackett, jr., of Lynchburg, with Miss Isabel Walker, of Richmond. The Tilka figure will be led by George E. Harrison, of Richmond, its president, with Miss Elizabeth Johnston, of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Code Case Is Postponed Pending Court Ruling

Richmond, Va., April 24 (AP).—Judge Luther B. Way, in the United States District Court today, deferred action on the Government's petition for a preliminary injunction against the Standard Drug Co., of Richmond, for alleged violation of the NRA retail drug code.

Judge Way pointed out there is pending before the United States Supreme Court an action paralleling that of the Richmond case. He added that if the district court decides it desirable to pursue the case, after the Supreme Court has decided the parallel case, he will arrange a hearing date.

Virginia Ready For Memorial At Cape Henry

Governor Completes Plans for Unveiling of Cross to English.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, April 24.—Plans were completed at the Capitol today for Virginia's participation in the unveiling at Cape Henry Friday of a granite cross commemorating the landing there 328 years ago of an English party that subsequently founded the first permanent English settlement at Jamestown.

Gov. George C. Peery, who will be accompanied by an official party, including Lieut. Gov. Joseph L. Hurley of Massachusetts, will be accorded the 19-gun Governor's salute from a battery at Fort Monroe as he enters the Government reservation of Fort Storey, in which the memorial will stand. Gov. Peery will extend greetings from Virginia.

The granite marker will bear a marble plaque with an inscription composed by James Branch Cabell, noted Virginia author. The wording is: "Here at Cape Henry landed in America, upon 26 April 1607, those English colonists who, upon 13 May 1607, established at Jamestown, Virginia, the permanent English settlement in America. Erected by National Society Daughters of the American Colonists. April 26, 1935."

A message will be read from President Roosevelt, who was invited to the exercises, but who will be unable to attend. The marker will be tendered to the United States Government, as it stands on Federal property, through Secretary of War Dern or a representative.

Mrs. Frantz Naylor, of Norfolk, speaker of the Assembly of Tidewater Virginia Women, who promoted the movement for permanent recognition of the Cape Henry landing, will preside over the general program, and Mrs. James Branch Cabell, of Richmond, regent of the Virginia Chapter of the D. A. R., will be hostess.

The patriotic service will be preceded by the annual religious service commemorative of the one held by the colonists when they landed. The Right Rev. A. C. Thomson, bishop of Southern Virginia, will lead this exercise. Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington, will participate in the dedicatory service.

A ball for those attracted by the dedication will be held at the Cavalier Hotel on Virginia Beach at 9 p. m.

Lieut. Gov. Hurley, who will arrive here tomorrow afternoon, will be the guest of Gov. Peery tomorrow night.

Intoxication Charged, Police Impound Auto

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 24.—The number of automobiles impounded by Berkeley County magistrates under the new law dealing with drunken drivers stood at six today following the trial of Lee Canby, arrested Saturday night by Constable C. D. Jack and Policeman Guy Barney.

He was convicted before Justice J. D. Smith of driving while intoxicated. In addition to having his operator's license revoked and automobile impounded for a period of six months, he was fined $50 and costs, with the alternative of paying or remaining in jail for 30 days.

Soy Beans Aid Better Babies As Well as Paint for Autos

Chemist Wins $1,000 for Finding Hormone to Help Mothers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The full story of the "better babies hormone," progestin, which you can get from soy beans if necessary, was issued by the American Chemical Society tonight.

It was given out when a 30-year-old chemist, Dr. Willard M. Allen, University of Rochester, was given for his share in the discovery $1,000 in cash and a medal, the first Eli Lilly & Co. award in biological chemistry.

Progestin is a reproduction hormone necessary to expectant mothers. It is a chemical normally produced by the human body. It can also be obtained from animals, and when a mother lacks it the animal substitute is effective.

Dr. Allen and Dr. O. Winterstein, of Columbia University, isolated this better babies hormone in pure crystalline form from female pigs.

Simultaneously with this feat, Prof. Adolf Butenandt, of Danzig, and Dr. K. H. Slotta, of Breslau, produced the pure substance in other ways. Butenandt's source was soy beans.

He extracted the wax from the beans. From this he re-created, artificially, by chemical synthesis, the identical hormone that the human body manufactures for its mothers.

This puts soy beans on a scientific pedestal. They used to be just forage. Shortly before their usefulness for babies was learned the beans were turned into automobile lacquer, imitation agate for ornaments and automobile steering wheels.

Lacking this hormone, pregnancies are impossible. It is known that the hormone is also important in the early prenatal development of the baby.

Dr. Allen is the son of Lewis F. Allen, of Macedon, N. Y. He was graduated from the University of Rochester in 1932. He began his study of progestin there under Dr. George W. Corner, who was one of the first scientists to purify it sufficiently for medical use.

Unknown Yukon Land Charted by Society

Another unexplored area has disappeared from the face of the earth, the National Geographic Society announced yesterday after hearing that its Yukon expedition has completed the aerial mapping of the southwest corner of Yukon Territory.

Bradford Washburn, leader of the expedition, wired the society that the aerial survey has been completed. He and his group have taken their camp to the base of Mount Hubbard and are beginning the ground mapping.

Mr. Washburn reported that members of the expedition are in perfect health, in spite of having withstood six blizzards in the last three weeks. The group already has been 50 days on the ice. A small ply-wood hut, 6 feet by 6 feet, provides shelter for computing surveys and drawing maps.

Citizens Demand Sheriff's Ouster

File Petition Charging Jail Profit 'Split.'

By the Associated Press.

Princeton, W. Va., April 24.—Charging that Sheriff J. C. Fanning, of Mercer County, contracted with a man now dead to split profits derived from the Mercer County Jail, a group of citizens filed a petition in Circuit Court asking his removal from office.

Circuit Judge Howell M. Tanner will hear the petition May 13.

The petition was presented by W. W. Hicks and 71 other citizens of Mercer County.

They charge Sheriff Fanning made a contract with the late C. W. Calfee to share 40 per cent of the profits derived from the jail; cite his sentence for contempt of court imposed by Federal Judge George W. McClintic, and charge he can not hold that office because of the conviction, and that he has been negligent by permitting prisoners to escape.

Fanning was sentenced in February, 1934, by Judge McClintic to serve six months in the Lee Hall, Va., Federal Reformatory for contempt of court upon a conviction of negligence in the escape of two prisoners.

Liberties Union Protests Gags In Legislation

D. A. R., U. S. Chamber, Legion, Elks and Portion of Press Opposed.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The American Civil Liberties Union, at its annual meeting today, unanimously adopted resolutions opposing certain "gag" measures now before some of the legislatures.

"We reaffirm our position in favor of unrestricted freedom of speech and press," the Liberties Union resolved, "challenged today by interests fearful of change.

"Specifically, we oppose the program of legislation sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce, by the American Legion, the Daughters of the American Revolution, by the Order of the Elks and by the Hearst and McFadden Press.

"All the bills proposed by these reactionary and 'misguided patriots' are un-American in principle and dangerous in effect. They would create the very 'force and violence' they purport to prevent, by denying all means of open and peaceful agitation.

"No legislation whatever is needed to protect American institutions from conspiracies or acts of violence. We are therefore opposed to all bills aimed at extending the present sweeping grounds for deporting aliens, for outlawing political parties merely for their beliefs, for special compulsory oaths of loyalty by school teachers and for making criminal any language whatever."

The Civil Liberties Union gave commendation to Gov. Talmadge of Georgia for vetoing the "American Legion bill" to keep radical parties off the ballot, and Gov. Buck of Delaware for vetoing a teachers' oath loyalty bill.

A resolution urging adoption of the anti-lynching bill now pending in Congress was also unanimously approved.

Roger N. Baldwin, who was re-elected director of the A. C. L. U., in assailing the "gag" measures, characterized them as "proposals for the advancement of Huey Long and Father Coughlin, since the measures, by stamping out intelligent radicalism, will leave the field to the demagogues."

Norman Thomas, Socialist national leader; Quincy Howe, editor of the Living Age, and B. W. Huebsch, publisher, were re-elected to the board of directors.

Inspection Takes Police by Surprise

Four Found Asleep and Two in Saloon.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 24.—A tour of inspection Marshal Carroll Stansbury and Deputy Oscar Grimes made of the Baltimore County police stations is expected to improve discipline and morale among the men, but at Fullerton and Towson stations it certainly was hard on their rest.

There the marshal and his deputy reported to the county commissioners they found four officers asleep. All were deprived of leave of absence for one month—and awakened in the bargain. Two officers of the Essex substation who were found in a saloon, the inspectors reported, were deprived of leave for the same period and, in addition, fined $5 each.

The substation was empty during their absence, but they had left a note telling where they might be found, according to the inspectors. The note said they were inspecting saloons and dance halls.

Firemen Are Detailed For Apple Fete Duty

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., April 24.—Temporary headquarters for the Charles Rouss Fire Company will be established during the Apple Blosson Festival to provide protection to the western section of the city without interfering with parades if an alarm is turned in while they are in progress, it was announced today by C. L. Barr, chief.

Steps likewise are being taken to safeguard the town and visitors during the festival, Chief of Police C. W. Hollis announcing today that approximately 200 persons will be on police duty. Detectives will be on duty from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Virginia to Hold Poll On Wheat Contracts

Richmond, Va., April 24 (AP).—Virginia wheat growers will be given an opportunity to decide May 25 whether they will enter into new wheat production contracts through the AAA, another referendum having been scheduled for that date, the State agricultural department was informed today.

The first two-year production control contracts expire this year. There are 8,000 Virginia wheat growers under contract. Benefit payments to them through February 28 totaled $869,000.

Floods, Storm Met by Smiles In Drought Belt

Most Moisture in 4 Years Reported; Dust Zone Gets Clouds.

By the Associated Press.

Denver, April 24.—The drought was broken today over a wide area of the West.

Some sections reported more moisture than at any other time since the dry scourge started four years ago. Snow or rain reports came from Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Kansas.

Most of the dust belt, however, had nothing more promising than dark clouds.

"They sure got the Indian weather sign on us," sighed F. O. Case, Baca County agent, at Springfield, Colo., as he received reports that his dust-blighted southeastern sector was the only part of the State which failed to receive moisture.

100 Miles Wide.

The north Texas dust zone reported "threatening weather." A part of the western Kansas dust country received showers yesterday.

The storm today rode the crest of the Continental Divide from Montana to New Mexico, spreading east and west for 100 miles into dry farm and range lands.

Federal crop statisticians in Colorado and Wyoming agreed the snow, from a few inches to several feet in depth, was "the most favorable thing that has happened for months."

Railway Flooded.

Breaking with a downpour of rain in western Nebraska late yesterday, the storm spread rapidly southward and to the west. It left a blanket of new white snow fringing the dust lands from Lamar, Colo., to the south and from La Junta, Colo., eastward.

At North Platte, Nebr., 1.6 inches of moisture fell within a few hours and a flood occurred near Hastings, Nebr., where a section of a railroad was washed away. One train was almost 18 hours late arriving at Denver.

Almost enough rain and snow fell at Denver within 24 hours to change the city's moisture deficiency, 1.18 inches for the year, into a surplus.

U. S. Plays Host for First Time To Man From Tristan da Cunha

Atlantic Isle, Primitive, Apart From World, Has 168 Residents.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The first person ever to reach the United States from Tristan da Cunha, an isolated little island in the South Atlantic which is virtually free of crime, money, illness and divorce, arrived today for a 24-hour visit.

He is Donald Glass, 28, who is working his way to London aboard the world-cruising S. S. Empress of Australia and whose departure five years ago reduced the island's population to 168.

Glass, a grandson of "Governor" Frank Glass, who settled the island in 1816, said marriage was common on the island, but he never had heard of divorce until he went to Cape Town at the age of 23.

He was unable to read or write and said his chief joys were dice throwing and motion pictures. He said he hoped to obtain work in London and never expects to go back to the island to live.

Tristan da Cunha, which lies between Cape Town and Buenos Aires, was described by Ship Dr. E. F. Owen as a peaceful but thoroughly primitive community. He went ashore with a party from the Empress of Australia when the ship touched there March 23.

"Currency is unknown and the inhabitants subsist chiefly on potatoes and fish, which are plentiful, he said. The World War was over before the inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha heard of it.

"The island has no newspaper or radio," Dr. Owen said. "When gifts from the King and Queen arrive they are given to the missionary, who allots them according to individual need.

"Illness is almost unheard of and plagues have never visited the community. Strangely enough, almost without exception the natives have perfect teeth. They clean them with salt and water."

Glass, who was garbed in dungarees and open-necked collar, boarded the ship at Cape Town, and when it paid a two-hour visit to his native island he went ashore to visit his parents, two sisters and four brothers.

His grandfather landed there with a party of eight men, who later brought eight Negro women from the island of St. Helena, where Napoleon died. Occasional Italian and Irish castaways were added to the settlement, until at last reports it had a population of 93 men and 76 women.

Dr. Owen said "the men are lazy and the women do most of the work."

The Empress of Australia is scheduled to leave tomorrow morning.

Public Hearing Set on Budget For Arlington

Session Tomorrow Night to Weigh 30-Cent Rise in Tax Rate.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The county board will hold a public hearing on the budget as presented by County Manager Roy S. Braden at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the courthouse.

The tentative budget presented to the board at its March meeting carries a total of $1,042,880, of which $373,130 is school funds.

General fund, including expenditures, capital outlay, debt service and contingencies, $504,200.

Water operating fund, including expenditures, capital outlay, debt service and contingencies, $165,000.

In his recommendations Braden says:

An increase in the tax rate from $2.40 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.70 is made necessary by the sewer and highway program.

The tax rate is divided as follows: $1.20 for schools, $1.50 for general purposes.

Plans rapidly are being completed to carry Lee boulevard from Station 107 in Lyon Park to a point where it will connect with Washington avenue at Hatfield, it was revealed yesterday at the courthouse. T. W. Ross, State highway right-of-way engineer, is now in the county completing arangements for land acquisition. It is known that the State highway department now actually is purchasing required rights of way.

It is expected work on the project will be started within the next 60 days.

While the project was proposed more than seven years ago and the State has tried to obtain rights of way to carry the boulevard to Arlington Memorial Bridge, completion of the short section from Lyon Park to Hatfield will provide an outlet which has long been sought.

When the State highway department adopted the route more than seven years ago free rights of way were promised by the National Boulevard Association from the bridge to Falls Church.

Mrs. DeWitt Evans was elected president of the Arlington County Library Association at its annual meeting last night in the library rooms at Clarendon.

Other officers elected were Miss Myrtle Rose, vice president; Mrs. Robert W. Livingston, secretary, and Mrs. Charles R. Taylor, treasurer.

Thursday, May 2, was designated as "work day" and all members were urged to report to the library between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The Parent-Teacher Association of James Monroe School will sponsor a benefit dance tomorrow night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon. Music will be furnished by Nat Liberman's Blue Ridge Serenaders. Proceeds will be applied to the school library fund.

There will be a special meeting of the Democratic committee representing Clarendon Precinct No. 2 tomorrow night at headquarters in the Rucker building at Clarendon.

The meeting has been called to consider plans for organization of a precinct club and a call to the voters to pay poll taxes on or before Saturday, May 4.

The Arlington County Rotary Club will present an American flag to Boy Scout Troop No. 106 at its meeting tomorrow night at the Congregational Church near intersection of Little Falls and Rock Spring roads. The presentation by the president, Carroll V. Shreve, will be followed by a demonstration by the troop featuring one of its special activities.

Teachers Will Hold Rally at Tappahannock

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Tappahannock, Va., April 23.—Five hundred teachers are expected here Friday for an all-day meeting of the Virginia Education Association at the high school. All schools in the counties probably will close so that teachers may attend. The Tappahannock Community League will serve lunch.

36 Contestants Expected to Vie for Honors in The Post's Bee.

The Prince Georges County match in the National Spelling Bee will be held Friday, May 3, at 7:30 p. m., in Marlboro High School, at Upper Marlboro. The arrangement to provide a meeting place for school champions to spell for county honors has been made through the cooperation of Miss Maude Gibbons, principal.

At least 36 contestants will take part in the match. A letter, giving full details of the representation each school will have was sent teachers yesterday.

Virginia Lumm and Reno Smith, eighth and seventh grade pupils, respectively, will represent Smithsburg School in the Washington County match. V. Richard Martin, principal, writes: "This contest has created an interest in spelling that has not been seen before this time."

B. H. Hudson, who has accepted an invitation to be one of three judges at the Orange County match at Orange, Friday evening, May 10, says in regard to the bee. "I indorse and highly appreciate your efforts in this type of activity, since I believe it to be exceedingly helpful."

Three schools enrolled yesterday: Shenandoah, in Page County, George S. Balton principal; Hillsboro, in Loudoun, C. L. Hutton principal; Kensington, in Montgomery County, enrolled by Miss Ruth Sessions.

Rappahannock County schools have only until Saturday to enroll. Other schools have a few days to two weeks, according to the date of their county matches. Many schools have asked for extra copies of the word list so that each pupil may have one to study. Such requests should be addressed to Alice Fox Pitts, Spelling Bee Director, The Washington Post.

Charles Town Council Lures 2 More in Race

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 24.—Charles Town's election pot is beginning to simmer, although the annual election is still a month away. Two new announcements yesterday bring the total number to seek council posts to five.

Homer M. Beller has announced to oppose W. L. Anderson in the Third Ward. Jack Luxenberg will oppose T. D. Webster in the First Ward, Adam B. Link, in the Fourth, and R. G. Henson in the Second Ward, have announced for re-election and are so far unopposed.

Jones-Nelms Wedding.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., April 23.—Albert Summerfield Jones, of Kinsale, Westmoreland County, and Miss Irene Presley Nelms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin Nelms, of Heathsville, Northumberland County, were married yesterday by the Rev. J. M. B. Woodrow in St. Andrews Episcopal Church in St. Mary's County, Md. They will reside in Kinsale.

The Milk Gets Through

STAGE troupers venerate a tradition that the show must go on.
For their part, milkmen have consistently recognized their responsibility to get the milk through.
Storms are no respecters of milkmen.
When bitter weather keeps many citizens housebound, blocks streets and highways, ties up transportation, and tries the hearts of all who contest its rigorous sway, the milkman manages to go his appointed rounds with a regularity so commonplace that it is taken for granted.
Children, mothers, fathers, sick folks, well folks, all sorts and conditions of folks count on him with abiding faith.
He does not fail them.
The milkman pleads no monopoly of conscience.
That he chooses to make it his business to make good with the public is at once his service and his satisfaction.

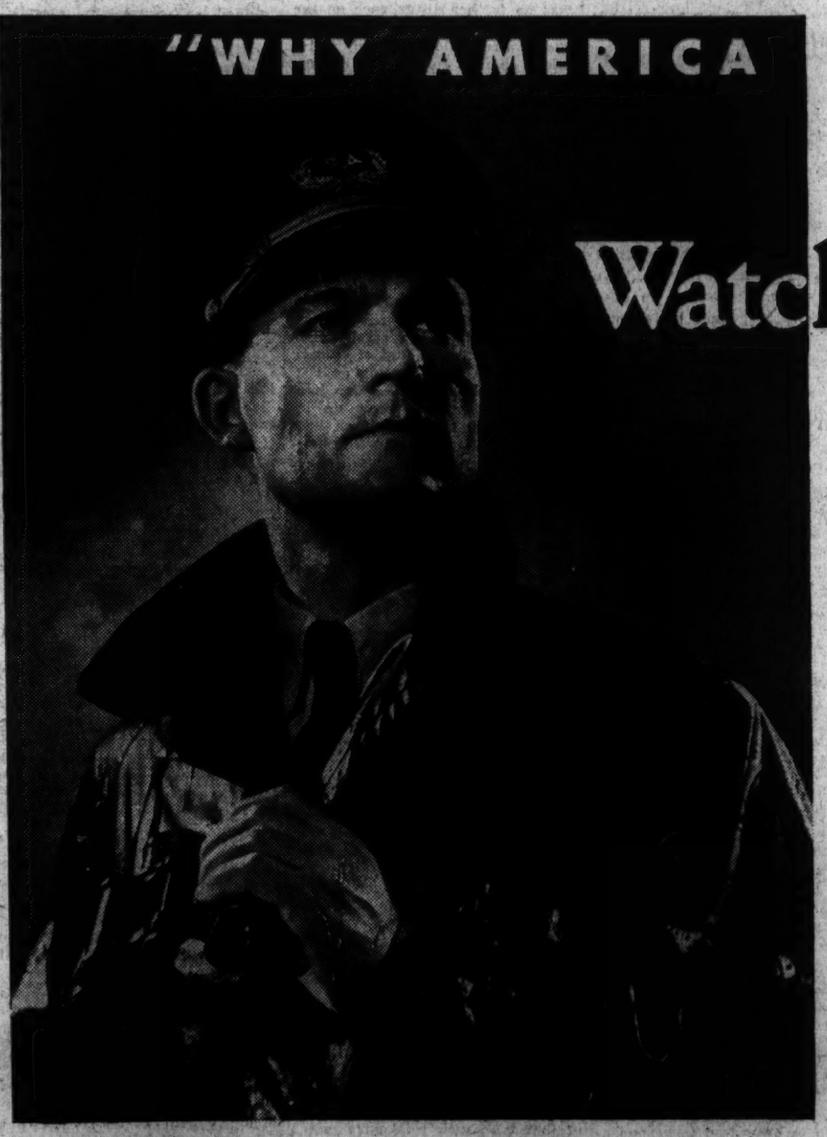
"WHY AMERICA PREFERS BUDWEISER"
Like a Good Sailor
Anheuser-Busch
Watches the Elements



To make good beer and make it always uniform calls for ingredients that are always uniform. Soft water one time and hard water another time will not do. Too much rain brings a soft water supply. No rain makes for hard water. So, Anheuser-Busch keeps a daily check on the rainfall in the whole Middle West to determine whether the water used in brewing should be softened or hardened when it is put through its thorough purification and filtration processes.

The old, reliable BUDWEISER is always uniform. That is one big reason why it holds a record never matched—the biggest-selling bottled beer in history. Always in BUDWEISER you find the same exquisite bouquet of skillfully blended domestic and imported Bohemian hops. Always you find in BUDWEISER the same wholesome flavor that springs from the cream of the barley crop. Always in the name BUDWEISER you sense the same promise of quality and distinction—and always in the bottle you find that promise kept.

Inviting A Scramble.

The creation of a new division within the National Emergency Council, to receive and clear applications for allotment of work-relief funds, is a tacit admission that the Administration's plans for putting 3,500,000 men to work are still in a very nebulous state. Although the clearing agency is without authority to approve or reject projects, it is expected to make a preliminary survey of their usefulness, classify and check them, and then submit them to an allotment board.

Since no restrictions have been placed upon the number or kind of applications that may be received from individuals, private organizations, State and local governments, and numerous Federal agencies, the task confronting the new division appears colossal. Indeed, it is likely to prove overwhelming if impartial consideration is given to all the proposals that are presented. By virtually serving notice that it has no definitive or comprehensive program of its own for spending the work-relief appropriation, the Administration has undoubtedly incited the cupidity of all those special groups and sectional interests that hope to benefit from Federal outlays.

A great mass of careful information on potential work-relief projects has been accumulated in recent months by State planning agencies and by the National Resources Board. This could have been made the basis for a national plan designed to provide a maximum amount of useful employment for the idle.

Unfortunately, the ingrained national habit of regarding appropriations for public works as booty to be divided among rival groups and localities is likely to be confirmed by the methods of procedure now announced. To extend an invitation to anybody to come forward with a spending plan is to invite a scramble reminiscent of the pork-barrel methods that the present Administration has so roundly condemned.

Communism Underground.

The man with the hoe is now being initiated into new wonders of the machine age. After two years of heroic communal labor, the first Russian subway, complete with escalators, has been completed and about 150,000 persons a day are being given free rides, pending formal commercial operation. Dictator Stalin and three commissars were among the first passengers and seemed as delighted as boys with their first electric train. The subway, true to Soviet ideals, is of the masses, by the masses, and for the masses. Nearly every able-bodied adult now benefiting by its service had some hand in the construction of it.

The announcement comes from Russia that this Moscow subway is part of the general plan to change the capital from a post-card city of bizarre palaces and rococo buildings into a metropolis of modern efficiency. It is described as the most beautiful "underground" in the world, with lofty, vaulted ceilings, broad marble staircases and mosaic murals lining the walls. "Podzemka" is the Russian name for subway, and except for its esthetic appearance, it appears to be entirely normal, even to doors which slam alike in the faces of communist, liberal and die-hard.

But there is one puzzling feature in connection with this subway. With the Great Demantling of ornamentation that has gone on overhead in Russia, what was the symbolism in so adorning this strictly utilitarian project? Here form does not seem to have followed function. Perhaps the moral is that to the Soviet mind beauty should be more than skin deep.

The Spoilsmen In Retreat.

The restoration of salaries to 1,300 Government employes who became the victims of a spoils raid is especially significant because it is one of a very few victories for the merit system under the present Administration. Congress is still patronage-minded. Jobs for constituents are still a major objective on Capitol Hill. But only a few hard-boiled politicians were so insensible to the essentials of good government as to favor a direct encroachment upon the merit system, when the issue was presented to them without misrepresentation.

In some respects the amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill, providing funds for this restoration of salaries, is far from being satisfactory. Approximately 400 employes who originally obtained their jobs through competitive examinations will still be required to pass new noncompetitive tests to regain their status in the classified civil service.

Such action is not required because of any suggestion of incompetence in this group. Rather it is made necessary because of a technicality. These employes were reinstated in the Treasury Department more than four months after the unit in which they served had been transferred from the Department of Justice. Congress doubtless upheld this technical complaint against their automatic continuance in the service as a sop to the spoilsmen who engineered this disgraceful raid upon the merit system.

Nevertheless, the amendment goes a long way toward correction of a gross injustice to an energetic group of Government servants. The most egregious spoilsmen have been rebuked. This retreat would be an excellent point at which to inaugurate a positive movement to regain the ground which the merit system has lost during the last two years.

The Farm Tenant Bill.

Farm tenancy is the subject of the latest emotional controversy in the Senate. Extravagant arguments both for and against the Bankhead bill, designed to establish tenants on farms of their own, have been bandied about the floor. Senators from the South, and some from other sections, are deeply aroused over a measure that calls for careful objective deliberation.

No doubt the opposition is justified in associating the bill with the adverse effects of the AAA crop-curtailment program upon tenant farmers. Farm benefits, as was predicted, have been unequally distributed between landlords and share-croppers. In many instances tenant farmers displaced by crop restrictions are "on relief." On the other hand, economic difficulties since the depression began have forced more and more families into tenantry.

Moreover, the basic problem is of long standing. It is estimated that more than 45 per cent of our farms are operated by tenants. Certainly that is not an ideal situation in a democratic country. The constant shift of tenant farmers creates rural unrest rather than stability. Community life, as well as the economic status of the share-cropper, rests on a precarious basis where this flux is operating.

From the sociological viewpoint, therefore, any practical measure designed to extend land ownership among tenant farmers is worthy of support. The American people have a strong aversion to absentee landlordism. Looking back to the homestead movement of the nineteenth century, and more recently to the reclamation projects sponsored by the Government, it is impossible to find anything revolutionary in the current effort to establish tenant farmers on land of their own.

Skepticism over the latest Bankhead bill is, therefore, not applicable to its broad objectives, but rather to the practicability of this attempt to modify the agricultural system through an outpouring of Federal money and credit. The proposed Farmers' Home Corporation would be authorized to buy up land and sell it to share-croppers, together with the necessary improvements and equipment to start them in the farm business. Prosperous landlords may not be inclined to sell their holdings for that purpose. If only poorer lands can be obtained, the venture would begin under a handicap.

Many share-croppers are probably incapable of managing farms of their own, especially when confronted by the high overhead costs of cultivating small acreage. Unless the Farmers' Home Corporation were carefully safeguarded, it might lose enormous sums of money through default on the part of the new landowners. This danger is magnified by the tendency of groups thus aided by the Government not to take their obligations seriously.

Before this measure is enacted into law, also, its relationship to the AAA program should be closely scrutinized. There is more than a touch of absurdity in the picture of a government buying land for sale on easy terms to share-croppers, and then paying them for withholding part of that land from cultivation. The time is not ripe for more patchwork in the agricultural system. What is most needed is a reconsideration of fundamental objectives, and means of attaining them, before the expenditure of another billion dollars is authorized.

Under no circumstances should the Bankhead bill be considered emergency legislation. It calls for the type of experiment that should be discussed at length from the viewpoint of what is practical as well as what is desirable. The Government's experiments in settling families on reclamation farms suggests that even after a formula for converting tenants into independent farmers has been carefully worked out, it should be tested on a relatively small scale before any large fund is so invested.

The Municipal Judgeship.

In the selection of judges politics should be less than the last consideration. It should not be a consideration at all. This elementary principle of government is recognized everywhere, it seems, except by some high officials who actually select judges.

Nearly a year ago the Department of Justice recommended the appointment of Armond W. Scott, colored, to succeed the present Negro judge on the Municipal bench, James A. Cobb. The coolness of legal groups in Washington toward Mr. Scott apparently delayed action. Both the white and colored bar associations favored the reappointment of Judge Cobb in recognition of his excellent record as a jurist since 1926 and his previous service as assistant district attorney. But the Department of Justice apparently places the counsel of politicians above that of those competent to give technical advice.

A fight against the confirmation of Mr. Scott's appointment is under way. The fact that Negro lawyers who are also closely identified with the Democratic party in the District are leading this movement suggests that something more than politics is involved. Fortunately, some citizen groups are more interested in the judicial qualifications of the new appointee than in his politics.

Whenever a public servant renders good service it is sound policy to reward him. Adherence to that practice would undoubtedly have resulted in the reappointment of Judge Cobb. That, however, is not the most important consideration in the case as it now stands. The first objective is to secure a highly-trained and judicially-tempered candidate for this important local office. The attitude of disinterested legal groups warrants careful examination of Mr. Scott's qualifications from that viewpoint.

Vital Work For The CCC.

There can be nothing but approval for the Administration's decision to assign a large part of the enlarged CCC to the protection of agricultural lands menaced by soil erosion. Recent dust storms have brought home to everyone the reality of the danger that much of the Middle West may turn to actual desert. And beyond the need for large-scale effort to avert this outcome there is the fact that the park work of the CCC is already far ahead of any normal schedule of conservancy.

Visitors to our National and State forests this alluring spring weather can not fail to notice how swept and garnished they have become under the ministering hands of CCC workers. Mountain trails have been turned into polished bridle paths, roads are edged with neat stone walls, everywhere there is a perfection of neatness which if carried much further will make recreation grounds, like the Shenandoah National Park, almost too refined and pretty-pretty.

In contrast are the denuded barrens of the interior, where drought and dust storms have combined to create a dismal wilderness. Here there is need for elementary conservation work far beyond the capacities of local farmers. Gullies where winds get leverage to lift the top soil should be graded. Slopes can profitably be terraced to control drainage. And over huge areas there is infinite scope for the planned planting of trees and shrubs to serve both as windbreaks and preventives of erosion.

From the national viewpoint these activities are more constructive and urgent than the transformation of our mountain playgrounds into the trim perfection of gardened parks. And the shift of emphasis is not without its importance for the morale of CCC workers. The latter know perfectly well when their work is one of overrefined perfection, and when it is a matter of fundamental social and economic importance.

One of the chief arguments against enlargement of the CCC has been the risk that a bigger corps would find only task work to be done. Extension of the program to cope with soil-erosion problems in the Prairie States is evidence that the practical criterion of national utility will continue to be emphasized.

Somewhat Contradictory.

The Daughters of 1812, on the occasion of their forty-third annual convention, have shown themselves much wrought up over the alleged necessity of governmental suppression of un-American activities. They have, for instance, indorsed legislation for exclusion of alien pacifists and Communists. They have also expressed approval of a bill which would make it a criminal offense to advocate or promote movements for the overthrow of the Government, whether "by word of mouth, by writing or by teaching."

It is hard to explain why those who trace their descent from the veterans of wars in which the vitality of our political institutions have been recurrently demonstrated are so dubious of the ability of democratic principles to triumph over alien teachings. Even those in whom fear is stronger than faith should realize that suppression of free speech is a denial of the most fundamental of American rights. We of all people ought to appreciate the powerlessness of czaristic methods to overthrow opinions that reflect the aspirations of the masses.

The Daughters of 1812 are not only forgetful of the teachings of history in their zeal to eradicate "un-American doctrines." Some of their membership also toss consistency to the winds by seeming to advocate increasing economic and political isolation, while simultaneously demanding an adequate merchant marine for the growth of commerce and in aid of national defense. Thus the importation of Japanese goods is viewed with alarm, and the Government is also advised to prevent loans to foreign governments, withdraw economic aid and forbid the sale of war materials as a means of preserving our neutrality.

If tariffs are to be increased in response to every complaint of increased competition from abroad, if American capital is to be permanently withheld from countries that desire our goods, and if neutrality means political and economic isolation, the United States will have little need of any overseas merchant marine. Under such conditions the vessels designed to serve a growing commerce would be left to rust and rot away in times of peace. Consequently, they would be useless as an auxiliary branch of the national defense should war be declared in spite of our severance of all "international entanglements."

On the Florida Keys.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

As a constant reader of your newspaper, and a retired newspaper woman, I want to tell you that I think your recent article and editorial on the veterans camped on the Florida Keys simply splendid. I am glad some newspaper has the courage to disclose to the long-suffering taxpayer just what is going on.

Please do not use my name in connection with what I am herewith telling you, but I want you to raise the question as to why National Guardsmen are kept on the Keys at the veterans' camps, and to add that it is rumored here that these guardsmen will be there for some time to come.

This latter statement, I think, is authentic, for the reason that some of the guardsmen came to Key West and resigned their positions so as to continue drawing guardsmens' pay, which for sergeants, I am told, is $110 a month, and for commanding officers $15 a day. Now I feel this way about it—if these veterans are such undesirable characters, why should they be dumped on Florida for taxpayers to foot the bill of guardsmen to watch over them? The sooner someone in a position to do so rakes the whole thing over, the better it will be.

If there was a riot on the Keys at the veterans' camps it was entirely proper for the Governor of our State to send troops there, but recently the statement was made in the Key West Citizen that there was no further disturbance on the Keys at the camps. Why then should the National Guard be retained there? Just to provide additional incomes for those already provided for either by inheritance or through the most generous of uncles, Uncle Sam!

Foresees Calamities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It is the fashion to sneer at prophets, though God speaks through them now as He did in the olden time, to serve and warn us, if we only knew it.

I believe that the recent dust storms are only the first of several calamities that are coming on our Nation for the evil and corruption we have allowed to grow up in our midst, because God gave this land to our fathers to develop that we might be a righteous Nation before Him.

The Value of Discipline.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A recent letter in The Post from Carl J. Barbee headed "Service Philosophy" indicates to me a misconception of our Service Schools Mission; Mr. Barbee imputing an improper philosophy prevailing in regard to instruction given there.

It is often forgotten that our Army and Navy do not initiate conflict; that they are expected, after civil authority starts a war, to restore the normal status—that of peace. To do that our soldiers and sailors must be thoroughly trained in their professions, and conflict is conflict, whether aggressive or defensive.

Midshipmen are, of course, members of our paid fighting class. By casting a slur upon such vocation by citing that class as dependent for its livelihood upon continued political unrest is as much to impugn the status of police and fire forces, members of which exist by reasons of ever-increasing criminal unrest and prevalence of fire hazards.

If the service's habit of obedience were more widely inculcated, there would be fewer examples of misguided self-expression, especially on the part of youth and less political unrest throughout the civilized world. COLUMBIA.

Attention, Mr. Ickes!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Since it is a case of man biting what appears to be some sort of animal, I suppose that—according to your code—it is "news" and must be printed. But the spectacle Mr. Ickes is making of himself does not indicate a high order of statesmanship and will not show up well in history.

Why does he not go ahead with the business he has in hand in a dignified way, keeping quiet on the subject of the Louisiana Senator? If he must blow off in the presence of the reporters, he might do it "off the record."

"Not a Whole Hogshead."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Like most reformers, it is very apparent that President Roosevelt and his administrators have carried their reform movement to such extremes as to have become nauseating to a vast number of the country electorate.

The Wilsonian world reform based upon universal brotherhood, self-determination and a League of Nations has apparently all vanished into thin air, as likewise that "noble experiment" called prohibition for that very reason. The downfall of Wilson and the growing rebellion against Roosevelt and his philosophy are examples of attempting to force reform down the throats of the Nation. Mankind from beginning was so created that they have resisted and refused reformation ad limitum—en masse-per dose.

You can no more reform a nation by a stroke of a pen (except through dictatorship, force of arms or a similar method) than you can make a man out of a child without the intervening years of youth. The citizen of this country believes in a conservative progressivism and reform and will willingly follow such a line of national advancement, all free of regimentation, national dictatorship and the alphabet parade, but he most certainly wants it in small doses and not a whole hogshead at one swallow.

In trying to rally the Nation by the cry of "stand by the President"—why did not the Democratic Party rally to the same cry four years ago—and thus remove the present cry of being steeped dead in politics?

How many of our Southern States would follow such a cry on behalf of Jefferson Davis nowadays in view of the happenings of 70 years ago and their disastrous effects upon the citizens of said States down to the present generation?

Irate Motormen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I should like to voice a complaint about the rudeness of the motormen and conductors on Washington street cars. I have lived in many cities and this is the first one in which I have seen motormen, not only yell at passengers as they enter, but continue this after the passenger is seated.

If an automobile or other vehicle happens to block the way of a street car, the infuriated motormen take it out in shouting at the driver, and then mumbling or raving for blocks for the benefit of any passengers who happen to be in the front of the car.

This is also the first city in which I have seen motormen and conductors carry on extensive conversations with the passengers. It seems to me that if they would pay more courteous attention to their duties and less to social conversations, the street car service in this city would be considerably improved.

Daylight Saving.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Please give daylight saving to the District, but change the clock also, as has been done in so many other places for years to the satisfaction of the great majority. As we had it before, without changing the clock, it proved to be a confusing flop. One hour more to sleep in darkness, one hour more of God's sunshine, time for good trips nightly into country or for golf, tennis, swimming, or what have you, and one hour less artificial light on the eyes.

Let's beat the pitifully small number of objections of the opponents. Had it been undesirable, it could and would have readily been repealed elsewhere years ago, instead of being continued since established as a war measure.

Senators and Congressmen, please let us have this great blessing, which so many of you enjoy in your home States. H. B.

Three Vigorous Protests.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Those of your readers who breathed a sigh of relief when the last picture of the trial at Flemington was featured received a disheartening setback as they glanced at the front page of your paper this morning, Saturday, April 20.

Exclusive Wirephoto—A Sermon From the Scaffold. The picture is eight inches, of four columns wide. Can it be that editors are unaware of the psychological effect of thus flaunting the morbid abnormality of some of our scandal-mongering fellow citizens? What an unhealthy sign when we must have "morals preached" to us by one convicted of immorality. Your write-up of the incident in all its unwholesome details is not only sinister, but significant—and sickening.

It would be well if Washington could have at least one newspaper that would not stoop to such degrading sensationalism. For decency's sake forbear giving events of that type such front-page publicity if you would do your bit in checking the tide of crime that is giving our country its pagan preeminence.

(Rev.) URBAN ADELMAN, O. M. Cap.

Washington, April 20.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

We became new subscribers to The Post this last fall and have enjoyed the paper all the year—its editorials and its variety of foreign and domestic news. It has seemed to us a superior type of paper.

In this morning's issue there is such an offense to our sense of propriety and humanity that we can not let it pass without a protest. We are disappointed as well as offended to think that a paper of the character of The Post would publish pictures from a scene of public execution. As a teacher of high school boys and girls in this city I wish to register a protest against such a use of the public press.

EMILIE MARGARET WHITE.

Washington, April 20.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

As a reader of your newspaper who has noted with much pleasure the improvement which has taken place in it since it has been under the new management, I wish to protest most vigorously against the featuring of the public hanging in Kentucky, an account of which appeared on the front page of your paper of April 20.

I have three little girls, two of whom are just beginning to read, and I believe that they should keep in touch with current events. I know of no better method to do this than through your paper, but was horrified to see this article in so conspicuous a place on Saturday morning. Fortunately, I saw the paper before any of the children, and destroyed the front page, but I wish in the future you would leave such sensation mongering to other papers.

The featuring of this public execution is the one thing in your very excellent paper which has not appealed to me since it has been under its new management.

The Post Impressionist

Post Office, Thursday.

WE slipped on Tuesday. We let the 23rd get by without writing a Shakespeare piece. Whereas we had something about Shakespeare that we wanted to write.

Who hasn't? Everybody who is not a professional literary or dramatic critic — or, nowadays, a cinema critic—waits an excuse to say what he thinks of Shakespeare, especially if he is allowed to write almost anything he pleases, and doesn't have to print the comebacks. And everybody is saying that Shakespeare is no longer popular with the young—and wondering why.

Yet Tuesday was Shakespeare's birthday, and we didn't read Dr. Phelps' Monday essay on Shakespeare, or yesterday's editorial on Shirley Temple, in time to seize our opportunity. We were preoccupied.

* * *

Our preoccupation was considerable, to be sure: it was personal. Tuesday was more than Shakespeare-lucky and Shirley-lucky in being also the birthday of a lady of our acquaintance: her thirteenth. We had to compose a cable-message to her—in French. Nevertheless, the preoccupation was professionally inexcusable because it was personal.

So we'll write the piece now.

* * *

Don't, by contradicting our premise, incur the anathema of the Shakespeare tombstone. Don't tell us that Tuesday may not have been the birthday of the author of the Shakespeare plays and sonnets.

We care little for the other Shakespeare poems. So far as we are concerned, their author's birthday may have been Bacon's, Derby's, Surrey's or Ignatius Donnelly's.

But, for the sake of the plays and sonnets, we prefer that their creator should have had a birthday. For the sake of sentiment we prefer that that birthday should still be observed. And, for the sake of decorous conformance, we prefer to agree with the world at large about April 23 being the fitting date for the observation. . . .

* * *

There is only one reason why modern youth shuns Shakespeare; he has been over-prased. Youth demands perfection, but distrusts it—except when youth believes itself to have discovered it.

* * *

Take the old lie about Shakespeare being so marvelous that bad acting can't spoil him.

E. H. Sothern once told us he never lost a dollar on a Shakespearean tour, outside New York. Mansfield made a lot out of Shakespearean tours. So did Irving and Adler, Mantell and Creston Clark and his wife, Marie Booth Russell—a generation ago.

In 1935 they wouldn't.

The Post-Impressionist would pay a big price to see and hear Viola Allen in "Twelfth Night" once again; to his thinking—and he thinks well of it—there never was a "Viola" equal to Viola's.

But is any reader of the Column so unfortunate as to remember that quite competent romantic actor James K. Hackett in "Macbeth"?

If the taste of audiences has not improved since the early days of the century, it is at least more exacting.

* * *

If you want to make your boy and girl like Shakespeare, tell them the ugly minor truths about him.

Tell them that he is uneven. Tell them that a lot of his humor is poor humor. Tell them the objection of that Soviet critic: "Shakespeare is not only unsocial; he is unoriginal—full of familiar quotations." Above all, tell them that, even in these degenerate days, Shakespeare is unfit reading for the Young Person.

It's a fact that many of the plays are better played than read. Why not say so? It's a fact that many of them are better read than played. Why not admit as much? If it's a fact that the loveliest gardens of Shakespeare, though unrivaled, are frequently oases in deserts of dullness; why suppress it? And, because "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is almost all oasis, why not grant that "Love's Labor Lost" is almost all desert?

* * *

Indeed, your best plan will be to exaggerate the defects of Shakespeare.

The young love to rebel.

* * *

Remembering that an education without Shakespeare is "Hamlet" without the Prince, unostentatiously lead your young into rebellion against your apparently low opinion of Shakespeare. As soon as they say that the old man is pretty wet about "Othello," you may sue for peace.

If they learn to love him thus, moreover, they won't stop at Mark Twain's point of view: "I don't care whether Shakespeare wrote the plays or another man of the same name." If they doubt his authorship at all, it will be the way the Post-Impressionist does.

The Post-Impressionist thinks that Shakespeare wrote all the sonnets and most of the plays—but we're willing to concede "All's Well That Ends Well" and "Titus Andronicus" to Messrs. Bacon, Derby and Surrey.

France Hesitates On The Soviets' Border

By Andre Vulliet.
Special Correspondence to The Post.

Paris.

A LITTLE less than a year after the late Louis Barthou started out on a European tour to see for himself if France could still count on a few friends, his successor, French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, is on his way to Warsaw and Moscow to discuss with Poland and tie up with Soviet Russia.

Mr. Laval's trip, however, seems far more delicate than his predecessor's. Mr. Barthou was sent out by Premier Doumergue as France's spokesman, at a time when France was somewhat discredited abroad, with the seemingly difficult but relatively simple task of rounding up as many friends as possible. Mr. Laval will be in the more complicated position of speaking in the name of a France whose diplomatic position appears much stronger, but whose Eastern European policy is not clearly decided upon.

Although it was agreed in Paris on April 9 between the French foreign minister and the Soviet ambassador to France, Mr. Potemkine, that a mutual assistance pact would be signed between France and Soviet Russia before the end of this month, cautious Pierre Laval seems anything but enthusiastic at the prospect of throwing in his lot with the U. S. S. R.

• • • •

THIS lack of enthusiasm evinced by the French foreign minister is felt just as strongly by a large proportion of the French people and by certain government members.

To them, the Franco-Soviet entanglement seems much less justified than 18 months ago when the move was initiated. France, at that time, was alone in front of Germany, with wavering Little Entente allies. She had lost Poland's support and the feeling was running high between herself and Italy. Since then, the recent and warm Franco-Italian friendship, the Stresa Conference and the Italo-Little Entente rapprochement have taken place. Seen in the light of such facts, a close accord with Soviet Russia has lost much of its appeal.

This probably explains why French Foreign Minister Laval shows so little hurry in dealing with the Eastern European problem. To tie up with the Soviets at this time looks to him, it seems, like making a spite marriage at a moment when more agreeable possibilities are looming in the distance.

"If we must do it anyway," the general feeling here is, "let's keep it loose," and astute Pierre Laval is relied upon to "keep it loose," drowning it within the League of Nations' framework.

• • • •

IT is significant that Mr. Laval should stop in Warsaw on his way to, rather than from, Moscow as had been previously announced. It may mean that the French want to "talk it over" with the Poles first.

"Sky and earth will mix rather than the Poles and the Germans," Bismarck used to say. Yet, such a rapprochement took place in January, 1934, when the two countries signed a nonaggresison pact, much to France's disappointment since she had, for years, regarded Poland as one of her pawns on the European chessboard.

France, too, had strictly adhered to one of Bismarck's favorite remarks, to the effect that "Poland's independence meant a strong French army along the Vistula." To guarantee that independence and also for the sake of firmly establishing a 32,000,000-inhabitant nation on the other side of Germany, the French and the Poles signed an alliance and a military pact on February 19, 1921.

This alliance was reaffirmed at Locarno, in October, 1925, when the two nations promised each other "aid and assistance" should Germany attack either of them.

The Locarno Treaty was the first cloud in the history of Franco-Polish relations. "Although it did not affect our alliance with Poland," the French political observer, James Donnadieu, recently wrote in Je Suis Partout, "the Locarno Treaty did not strengthen security in Eastern Europe."

"Not only did we let the Reich make a difference between its Oriental and Occidental frontiers, not only did we allow Germany to accept the territorial status quo on our side and not on Poland's side, but we obtained from England, Italy and Belgium a guarantee which was denied Poland. The Polish government has always kept a grudge against us for having thus neglected its interests. It was our first mistake toward Poland."

• • • •

ANOTHER mistake France made was to negotiate and sign the Four-Power Pact in June, 1933. Inspired by Mussolini, this accord called for a sort of supervision of European affairs by France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy and, more or less overtly, implied revisionism.

France never ratified the Four-Power Pact, but her signing it was a capital mistake, so far as her relations with Poland were concerned, since it was the immediate cause of Poland's about-face.

Moreover, there was then a current feeling in France that no one wanted to go to war for the Poles or the Polish Corridor, and the Poles realized it. Caught between vast, sprawling Russia and fast developing Germany, they were but too glad to sign with Germany an agreement which would give them peace for ten years. Nazi Germany did it all the more willingly since it was Hitler's first diplomatic success, and since he wanted calm on the eastern front to bring his pressure on Austria.

On the other hand, the French also have grudges against the Poles for what they call "Poland's treason." They accuse Poland of having become the most valuable trump card in the Reich's diplomatic hand, thus giving it the extra honor strength it needed to bid out everybody, with no consideration whatsoever for the fact that Poland owes its very independence largely to France.

It thus appears there is a lot to say on both sides.

• • • •

WHEN the French realized the signature of the Four-Power Pact had turned Poland against them and had somewhat cooled the Little Entente states (namely, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, also menaced by revisionism, while Germany and Italy were exchanging roses), they felt they were alone in Europe. It was then that the idea of combining with Soviet Russia to counteract Germany's rising power was born.

French ministers, including former Premier Herriot and youngish Pierre Cot, then air minister, went to Russia, visited airplane factories, were honored with military parades, and came back full of enthusiasm.

Little by little, prewar French expressions such as the "Russian Bear" or the "steam roller" came back into fashion.

Hence the hearty support given "the big bear" for its entry into the League of Nations last September. Hence the more or less general acceptance of the Eastern pact project, by which France, Russia and Czechoslovakia (Poland and Germany categorically refusing to join in) would pledge themselves to mutual military assistance in case of aggression. This was regarded at the time, and until recently, as the best alternative for France.

• • • •

THE French government's dominant reason for pursuing a friendly policy toward the Soviets, one gathers here, is to prevent them from falling back into Germany's arms.

Despite the differences and antagonisms of their political regimes, it is felt in French circles that Nazi Germany would readily exploit and organize Soviet Russia's enormous natural resources. If a combination of those two forces were permitted, it is contended in Paris, no alliance in Europe could resist them.

So the problem is to keep the Franco-Soviet rapprochement alive without getting entangled hand and foot.

Such is the task facing the darkish, small and wily Foreign Minister Laval on his way to Eastern Europe. He must make sense out of his compatriots' contradictory feelings.

Settlement Ends Insurance Case

Agreement Halts Tobias Suit in Baltimore.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 24.—The suit of Dr. I. Herbert Tobias, of Hancock, Washington County, against the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. under a double indemnity policy on the life of his son was ended today by an out-of-court settlement.

The son, George Otis Tobias, died of a bullet wound three years ago, and the action was on trial in Federal court here. Terms of the settlement were not announced.

Dr. Homer E. Tabler, also of Hancock, who is slated as chairman of the State roads commission, was called to testify on circumstances of young Tobias' death.

Dr. Tabler had testified he was called from his bed on the night of the shooting and found the injured youth on the lawn in the rear of his home, and that his own son, Homer E. Tabler, jr., was there with a pistol. Young Tabler was not in court yesterday, but appeared today. He did not testify.

Abandonment by Road Of Branch Approved

By the Associated Press.

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended yesterday that the Southern Railway Co. be permitted to abandon its Lima branch, extending from Danville, Va., to Lima, Va., a distance of about 3.45 miles, in Pittsylvania County.

The Southern Railway said revenue from the branch has not been sufficient to pay the cost of operation and maintenance and that the resultant losses will be increased by future maintenance requirements.

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

The Presidential Bee.

THEY all like it, but one would think Senator Vandenburg would go nuts in the state he is now in and must continue in until next summer. He's got to watch his every step. He must weigh his every word. Let himself out and do as he might wish to do—why, there isn't a chance in the world.

BARGERON.

The Senator will be on ice until the Republican convention is over. Then he will probably be able to breathe easy for the first time since last November. At that time he was one of the very few Republicans to come back to Washington. Right off the reel he was suggested as presidential timber. A Republican who was elected in the last debacle had a right to look to bigger and better honors. The lightning may strike and it may not, but in the meantime, in the long interim between now and June a year hence he must walk on his toes. He can't say or do anything that might eliminate him. He must watch his p's and q's. There is a serious question as to whether the Presidency is worth such a long tension. But they all think it is.

Now if it were not for that presidential bee the Senator could coast, so to speak, for the next six years. He could make speeches at will and say exactly what he thinks. Then he could have his leisure. And when a man gets along about the Senator's years he likes to think he can coast awhile; at least, that he can take a rest if he desires. But he can't. Night and day the Presidency will be haunting him. If he gets up on the floor of the Senate it will be uppermost in his mind. There will be countless little devils to warn him: "Don't say that; it will be used against you." It must be a terrible life to lead.

If it was a case of his having to attract attention his job would be much easier. He could plunge into an investigation or controversy of some kind, and keep his mind occupied in this way. But now that the Senator has been mentioned for the Presidency it is not a case of that. Attention is just about the last thing he wants to attract. The other fellows, he knows, will be laying for him all the time. He would undoubtedly like to go off to an uninhabited island, there to remain until next spring.

• • • •

The game is such, though, that he can't do this. He can't efface himself and he can't be seen too much. It is a most difficult, a most trying thing, to keep just the right balance between "being mentioned for the Presidency" and yet not getting out in front. If he stays around here he will continue to be mentioned because he was an outstanding case of a Republican being returned last year. Then if he is mentioned too much all the fire of the rivals will be directed at him. To be mentioned just enough and not too much—that is the poise the Senator has got to maintain for about 15 months. It must be terrible. One would think he would get so nervous he would burst.

It's a virulent, feverish thing—that bite of the presidential bee is. It will call for nerves of steel on the Senator's part from now on.

• • • •

In many ways it is a shame. The Senator is one of the most capable men in the opposition. He could do a most constructive job these days. But the Republicans may as well count him out. He is stymied absolutely by the presidential bee.

All he can do is to sit and wait, hopefully and expectantly, occasionally getting up and walking around his seat in an effort to relax. Anybody who wants to live that way for 15 months can have the presidency and all that goes with it. Not for me.

Our social-minded people have painted some most graphic pictures of old people waiting, waiting silently and meditatively, in the twilight of life. To add to their comfort, to give them a feeling of security they are to pass, apparently, an old-age pension bill.

There really should be something done for the fellows who got bitten by the presidential bee more than a year ahead of the race. They wait and wait, too. But, unlike the old people, they don't have the consolation of meditation. Their minds are too disturbed for that.

How Bright Is A Horse?—Paul Brown's Sketches Of Polo Ponies; The Priceless Belvidere Hounds.

By Theodore Hall.

DR. REID BLAIR, director of the New York Zoo, drew up a list not long back in which he gave experimental psychology's accolade of superiority to the ten most intelligent animals. The chimpanzee led off, followed by orangoutang, elephant, gorilla, dog, beaver, horse, sea lion, bear and cat. First tiff of disagreement comes from Michael Joseph, London director of the literary agency, Curtis Brown, Ltd. Mr. Joseph is likewise president of the Siamese Cat Society of the British Empire—and that should give the hint of his argument in a lively article to be found in the May Harper's entitled "The Intelligence of Cats." Felis domestica—says Mr. Joseph, is an independent and not to be intimidated creature, and far more intelligent than the unsympathetic might think. But, after all, this is not to be about cats.

What interested me was a sky that Mr. Joseph took at the horse. So the horse stands seventh, he implies with scorn! Well, he's worked with both horses and mules, and he has this to say—that "if you—lead a horse into a stable through a low entrance, so that he has to duck his head to follow you in, it is unnecessary to tie him up, for it will not occur to him that he can walk out by simply lowering his head, but a mule knows how it's done."

I'm waiting, you see, for some horse-lover to rally forward, chide Mr. Joseph for his slighting word, and perhaps go on to Dr. Blair and his preference for the beaver, at least. And I should guess that that loyalty to equine brains will come, not from the racers or steeple-chasers or hunters or even the spangled lady who makes ten dapple grays bow and scrape in unison at the circus, but from the gentlemen who play polo. I'll the rest of a horse's feats are a kind of learning by wrote, but if I mistake not, a good polo pony really seems to think. And on his feet.

• • • •

THIS elegant book of Paul Brown's drawings from the the polo field—"Hits and Misses" (Derrydale Press, New York 950 signed copies, $7.50)—makes no particular point of a pony's gray matter. Mr. Brown might have put in a word of credit for a beast which sometimes seems to understand the game rather better than the rational creature mounted topside.

But that is the only lack I can find with this stunning collection of pencil sketches made "along the boards and at the picket lines of many polo fields." Mr. Brown knows his ponies from nostril to hock, has caught them here in every possible split second of the game—run-offs, charges, slides, bumps, turns and spills. The drawings, swift, stylistic and accurate, are a delight of draftsmanship. Perhaps you saw his sketches of the Madison Square Horse Show this winter in the Cosmopolitan.

Further than the typical actions, Mr. Brown has drawn storied moments of the game—Stewis Iglehart's famous "save" at International Field, last July, when he cracked a ball in the air out of harm's way to the east boards; Capt. George's prime spill at Meadowbrook, '27, when the pony went over him twice; the greatest finesse Mr. Brown ever saw, a shot of Tommy Hitchcock's on Bostwick Field, '35, from under his pony's forefeet, 75 yards for a goal; and Hitchcock's incredible shot this year, Greentree vs. Santa Paula, when in a rushed moment he sent the ball no less than 170 yards to roll square between the posts. "It didn't seem possible," said José Reynal, the player who rushed him.

Polo players and polo fans couldn't ask a more enjoyable book than this. As for the rest of us, unregenerate as yet toward chukkers and polo ponies, we have only to leaf through "Hits and Misses" and be converted, ready to go down to Potomac Park when our own little season opens and cheer with the best of them.

EVEN if you have a good recollection of D. T. Carlisle's priceless series of comic drawings, "The Belvidere Hounds," as they appeared in the Sportsman beginning in March, 1927 (the Sportsman was but two months old then), you can't possibly remember how superbly funny they are.

I've been looking through the collected volume of them, just now—"The Belvidere Hounds" (Derrydale Press, $5)—and averaging one heart and uncontrollable guffaw every other page. That—as you know what it means to take a batch of humorous drawings consecutively—is good going, and my best compliment to Mr. Carlisle.

My lesser one is personal history. In the salad days of your correspondent he used to do a bit of soi-disant comic drawing himself — and, next to the joy of parodying the all-but-immortal Gluyas Williams, nothing gave him a finer tingle than to take off this same pack of fox-hounds. Naturally—they were given, in sundry college pages, the title of "The Bevelled-Ear Hounds." But just to imitate them was an education—for Mr. Carlisle puts the hound face deliciously through every possible expression from haughty boredom to the last wrinkle of pained amazement.

More, he fills in his drawings with those little nuances and individualities which are the hallmark of any good sketch-pen. That is—to take the first example at hand, the cover drawing of the pack as if they were posing in a group photograph—most of the hounds, as people do, are glaring straight ahead, with fore-legs akimbo. But one is attempting a sickly smile, at which his neighbor has turned with a frown; another, he seated—next to the center one holding the mounted fox, registers a handsome state of annoyance to find the fox's brush spang in his nose, and another, just like every solemnly posed photograph I ever saw, has moved so that all you can see of his head is a tremolo blur. Lacking the picture itself, you will not, I know, find these notes especially amusing. But Mr. Carlisle's inventive faculty preserves his drawings as something to be looked deep into, and enjoyed for a long while.

SO here is the snooty yet sympathetic Belvidere pack—turning up their noses at a red fox because they will only hunt a silver one; observing Mother's Day by making polite bows when they come up to a vixen and her cubs; having a high old wrangle while a visiting British pack (and if you never saw fox hounds wearing monocles, here's your chance) looks on with the last degree of disdain, and generally committing the most outlandish and amusing capers.

Best shot of all (I knew Time's style would prove useful some day): "The Belvidere Hounds unexpectedly checked by the mysterious behavior of a New York guest"—the pack has come over the rise of a hill only to find three puzzled foxes, beckoning, shouting, jangling a cow bell, all trying to arouse our old friend, that pathetic and somnolent hound of James Thurber's drawings in the New Yorker.

The expressions on the Belvidere pack have given me an ache in the diaphragm. One in particular—no offense meant—looks for all the world like Wallace Beery when, with a twisting, rubber smile, he is just imbibing an idea.

Laura Benet

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

THE three Benets, William Rose, Stephen Vincent, and Laura, children of Col. and Mrs. James W. Benet, have all published creative work in literature; stories and poems.

Laura Benet's volume of original poems, "Basket for a Fair," appeared in 1934. (Doubleday Doran Co., publishers.)

All of these verses are marked by imagination and an individual mental attitude, so that the work of the author not only never seems imitative but could not possibly be called even derivative. They are the direct expression of a strong, vivid personality, to whom all aspects of life are interesting. To show the range of the pieces in this little book, I will quote two of them.

Italian Woman on MacDougal Street.

Scorches her dusky head. The subtle rays
Of gathered grapes whose juices spill and run.
In spirit as unshaken as a nun
She wastes no thought upon the devious ways
Reserved by love for those that it betrays,
Nor dreams of colors where her dress is dun.
Yet holds she to the moment as to a flower—
Church bells, new bargains, friendly folk she sees,
Ground in the mill of her monotonies
She calmly sucks earth's every glistening pore

The Hedgehog.

Hedgehog, hail the happy day
That fashioned you against decay.
You were a cog in Nature's plan
Before Man's doubtful race began,
And though, in stature a Tom Thumb,
Not destined early to succumb,
No crass inferiority
Marked your godmother's legacy.
With spines of salvation bounded,
All your foes you may defy,
Into a tight fortress rounded
Take your ease beneath the sky.
Meekly you lap bread and milk,
Countenance as bland as silk.
Yet, by the same mysterious token,
Crush and crack an adder open,
Raising your troop of spiteful bristles

Group to Urge U. S. Vote Fund To Survey Road

Daughters of 1812 Suggest $100,000 Under Jackson Highway Plan.

A resolution adopted yesterday by the forty-third council of the Daughters of 1812 asks Congress to set aside $100,000 for a survey of the old Andrew Jackson Military road from Nashville, Tenn., to New Orleans, La. It is suggested the new road, if built, be known as the Andrew Jackson Military highway.

The highway would lead over the path taken by the hero of the Battle of New Orleans when he led his troops down to meet the British for what later was known to be an unnecessary fight, the declaration of peace already having been signed. Further funds would be necessary to complete the highway when the survey is finished. The right of way, according to the plans of the organization, would be landscaped and developed as the "Andrew Jackson Parkway."

Following action already taken by several other national organizations, the council adopted another resolution indorsing the Pettengill bill now before the House of Representatives providing for prevention of the trade practices of motion picture distributors known as "block booking and blind selling."

Business sessions yesterday afternoon brought to a close the annual council of the Daughters of 1812, which has been meeting at the Willard Hotel. A session of the national board will be held today at 9:30 a. m. at the headquarters building, 1461 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Exhibition of Gardens Planned at Berryville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., April 24.—Mrs. Melvin Green, president of the Winchester and Clarke County Garden Club, has announced the club is offering a prize for the most attractive miniature garden exhibited in the parish house of Grace Episcopal Church, Berryville, Friday and Saturday afternoons. Judges will be two club members, appointed by the president and the school supervisors of Loudoun and Prince William counties, Mrs. Wendel and Miss Ayres, respectively.

The gardens are the handiwork of pupils of these one-room schools in Clarke County: Pine Grove, Hout, Hawthorne, Glendale, Shenandoah, Old Chapel and Mount Carmel.

Gov. Eccles' Theories Appear Misunderstood

Warburg Assails Him on Two Points on Which They Seem to Agree.

By Elliott Thurston.

ONE of the ablest and most engaging of the younger generation in American banking—James P. Warburg—appeared yesterday as a witness before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. In a prepared, printed statement he vehemently attacked Title II, the most contested part, of the pending banking act of 1935.

As a high official in one of the leading New York banks, as a former adviser to President Roosevelt, as a publicist and frequent speaker, as the author of "The Money Muddle," among his other books, Mr. Warburg commands a large audience, a powerful following and always an attentive hearing. Accordingly, his brief against Title II presently will have much to do with forming widespread opinion. And therefore it seems only fair to venture to illuminate two important points upon which Mr. Warburg based his attack but upon which, on the record, he appears to be mistaken.

With much of his criticism of the pending bill many bankers and economists would heartily agree. However, in assailing the theory which he asserts underlies the bill he charged that Gov. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, as a principal author of the measure, subscribes to a mixture of theory propounded by John Maynard Keynes, the British economist, and Prof. Laughlin Currie.

• • • •

THIS theory, as stated by Mr. Warburg in his prepared pamphlet, is: "that the supply of cash and deposit currency and the rate and character of expenditure control the volume of business activity." Mr. Warburg added that he believed the opposite to be nearer to the truth.

Further in his statement Mr. Warburg implied, at least, that Gov. Eccles thinks the base for issuing money needs to be expanded. And he included in his prepared statement a letter to President Hecht, of the American Bankers Association, in which he further defines the view of Gov. Eccles by saying: "Gov. Eccles believes that the volume of currency and credit controls the volume of business activity. I believe that the opposite is more nearly correct."

Mr. Warburg emphasized that his disagreement with this basic theory was a chief reason—though there are other very cogent ones—for objecting to Title II.

As a matter of fact, if words mean anything, Mr. Warburg and Gov. Eccles see eye to eye on the question of this theory. Leaving aside whatever Mr. Keynes or Prof. Currie may think, it is plain from the testimony of Gov. Eccles before the House Committee on Banking and Currency that he holds no such notion as the one attributed to him in Mr. Warburg's brief.

• • • •

"THE important thing today," said Gov. Eccles (page 208 of the House hearings), "is not so much as so many people believe, to increase the quantity or volume of money, as it is to increase the velocity of money that is always in existence."

He defined the trouble precisely as Mr. Warburg does. Thus Gov. Eccles testified: "There is a great absence of people who are willing to borrow, even on long terms, or on any terms."

Further he stated (page 218): "You may create excess reserves through your open-market policy, but unless the borrowers are willing to lend to borrowers, you would not create a further increase in your supply of money. You would increase the reserves of member banks, which would make for an inducement for the banks to lend and tend to result in a reduction in rates of interest, making for cheap money. But you must have borrowers who are willing and able to borrow before you can create additional money."

"The volume of money is an important factor," he added, "but the use of that money is an equally important factor in determining the amount of business."

• • • •

MUCH more might be cited from his testimony. Suffice it to say that no one can read that testimony without being convinced that Gov. Eccles is as far from subscribing to the theory attributed to him by Mr. Warburg as is Mr. Warburg himself.

Finally, Mr. Warburg's brief said: "Gov. Eccles believes that it is necessary for the political government to control the volume of currency and credit."

But on page 233 Gov. Eccles testified: "That agency (the Federal Reserve System) should represent the Nation as a whole and should not be under the domination or control of any group or groups." And: "It is my view that the Federal Reserve Board should be as independent as it is possible to create a body of that sort, charged with the responsibility of monetary policy in the public interest."

Gov. Eccles and Mr. Warburg may be far apart on many views and the pending bill may rest on the theories which Mr. Warburg assails. But it is clear that Mr. Warburg has attributed to Gov. Eccles views on two vital points which Gov. Eccles has said he does not hold.

In the interest of trying to clarify an all too clouded subject the record deserves to be set straight.

Once Overs

By H. I. Phillips.

The Big Question.

Dust storms sweep across the country,
Bringing ruin and despair;
There is death upon the oceans,
There are mishaps in the air;
Kingdoms wobble and each morrow
Sees another Fascist plot,
But this problem stirs the planet—
Was Mae West once wed or not?

Fear of war grips many nations
As the tramp of troops is heard;
Sabers rattle in the chambers
As peace hangs upon a word;
Hunger stalks the streets of cities—
For a sign all mankind hunts
As the papers shriek a headline
That Mae West was married once!

Conscripts hear the call to service
As munitions makers sweat;
There is rioting and panic,
There is misery and debt;
In Formosa thousands suffer
In an earthquake far and wide,
But the query on the corners
Is, "Was Mae West once a bride?"

Leaders, frightened, pale and solemn,
Meet in council 'cross the sea
As they see an ancient spectre
Wade through blood and misery;
Chaos seems to rule the planet
And the outlook's very blue
But what seems to bother people
Is, "Did Mae once lisp 'I do?'"

Was she married once in Brooklyn?
Was she wed in Kokomo?
Did she one time take a husband?
Was it Frank or Gus or Joe?
Is she still a single lady?
Is her spinsterhood a sham?
Well, I simply can not tell you.
And I do not give a damn!

New Water Plant Will Serve 4,000

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Abingdon, Va., April 24.—Approximately 4,000 residents of the Abingdon and Glade Spring magisterial districts of Washington County, Va., principally of the towns of Abingdon, Meadowview, Emory and Glade Spring, will be served by the new water works expected to result from the action of the Federal Public Works Administration in approving the county's applications for $428,000 for construction of the system.

Approximately $118,000 would be an outright grant. The remaining $310,000 would constitute a loan for the payment of which the county board of supervisors proposes to issue bonds, redeemable over a long period.

The proposed bond issue, however, has yet to be approved by the voters of the county, and a referendum election for that purpose is expected to be called within the next two weeks. The court created the "sanitary district," embracing the two magisterial districts, for which the loan actually was sought.

The project would give employment to 160 men for at least 12 months, these men to be selected from the county relief rolls.

Balance Promised On Roads Budget

Maryland Chief Vows to Use 'Little Paint.'

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 24.—The State roads commission will have a balanced budget at the end of this fiscal year, next September 30, Chairman Nathan L. Smith said today.

The commission last year had a deficit of more than $400,000 in bills payable, although it had a cash surplus.

"We will keep up all necessary work," Smith said, "and roads will be in as good condition on September 30 as they ever have been. But we will hold down on labor forces and purchases of materials and we will cut out manicuring along farmers' fences and spread less white paint around."

District engineers were called to Baltimore yesterday and a definite maintenance budget for the remainder of the year was set up.

Wallace to Address Virginia Farm Session

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Warrenton, Va., April 24.—County Agent Joseph Copley, of Fauquier, has been advised of a meeting for farmers in Richmond, at 11 a. m. Saturday. A letter urges him to ask all citizens interested in the AAA and the proposed amendments to attend.

The meeting will be held in the city auditorium, and among the speakers will be Secretary Wallace and President Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau.

Editor Scores U. S. Agencies On Propaganda

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—John Stewart Bryan, publisher of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, called upon American newspaper publishers today for the exercise of greater editorial courage and logic to meet the "powerful and insidious mechanism" of Government propaganda.

"The fact that you like a thing doesn't make it safe or healthy to use," he declared, in one of the principal addresses at the forty-ninth annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

"The fact that the Government likes it and the fact that the Government uses it doesn't in any way depreciate or change the ultimate effect of propaganda."

Authenticity Questioned.

"We talk about the free press," he said, "but no free press is any good unless it postulates a free mind. What is the sense of saying we are free when the information we get is false."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, said publishers had saved the freedom of the press "for the time," but at the price of vigilance in code negotiations and upon firm refusal to accept "deceitfully misleading" suggestions from NRA authorities for the imposition of limitations upon that freedom.

Repeated warnings were given at the opening sessions of the meeting against acceptance of the NRA extension bill now pending in Congress, and publishers were flatly advised by their code committee that its enactment in present form would abrogate constitutional guarantees of a free press. The code committee's recommendations were adopted unanimously.

Bryan, in his discussions of Government propaganda, made reference to the old English common law, and warned against the publication of news under "the torture of terror of losing circulation, the false flattery of hope of getting advertising, the fear that your opponent may get information that you don't get, that he may have news sources you can't tap."

53 Publicity Bureaus.

He listed Washington departments and governmental subdivisions which have installed publicity agents, a total of 53.

"The Department of Agriculture," he said, "used to issue purely factual bulletins, and they are now propaganda bulletins, and they are aimed and intended to create a special state of mind.

"Wherein does it differ one bit whether it is done by Stalin or by Mussolini or by Hitler or Von Goering, as long as it is done?"

Clipper Plane Sea Hop Data Being Checked

Lindbergh May Be First Pilot on Regular China Service.

By the Associated Press.

Alameda, Calif., April 24.—Mechanics took charge of the Pan American Airways' 19-ton "Clipper" flying boat here today while technical experts checked every detail of its epochal round-trip flight to Honolulu, hailed as a prelude to regular trans-Pacific service.

The big plane, which glided smoothly down on San Franciso Bay here yesterday afternoon to complete the first Honolulu-and-return trip ever made by aircraft, was taken into its hangar for a complete overhauling.

Pan American officials said the flight log and reports of Capt. Edwin Musick, skipper, are being studied to determine whether other long distance experimental flights will be made prior to inauguration of regular service to China.

Lindbergh May Be Pilot.

Among Pan American experts who will pass on the technical phases of the pioneering ocean hop is Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and reports persisted that he may pilot the first plane on regular service.

Pan American officials in New York disclosed that Col. Lindbergh, head of the airway's technical committee, had waived his right to pilot the Clipper to Honolulu in favor of Capt. Musick, the company's No. 1 skipper.

Capt. Musick, who has not even a minor accident in 22 years of flying, declared the trip had "largely removed the element of chance in the transpacific journey."

"I would like to have the Honolulu trip for a regular run," he added.

Few Difficulties Expected.

Though no plane has yet flown the western end of the course from Hawaii to China, experts pointed out that the 2,400-mile California-Honolulu stretch was the "big hop." Few technical difficulties, they said, are expected on the much shorter ocean stretches between Honolulu, Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam, Manila and China. Airway stations are now being constructed by Pan-American at Midway and Wake.

The problem of directing a plane to even the smaller islands on the route has been solved by radio direction, Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer of the Clipper, said.

'Cock-a-Doodle-Doo,' Roosters Cry as Bullitt Greets the Soviet

By the United Press.

The occasion was United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt's reception to high Soviet officials and members of the diplomatic corps. More than 500 atended.

The Ambassador's residence, former palace of a merchant prince and boasting a huge white marble ballroom, was converted into a replica of a collective farm, in the Soviet motif, except that instead of wheat thousands of white tulips bloomed.

The flowers came from Helsingfors, Finland, transported by two special embassy messengers. They also broght back rare and exotic foods which can not be had in Russia.

In one corner of the ballroom a flock of hens and roosters picked at grain inside a wire inclosure. In another two young goats calmly chewed collective farm garbage for most of the night, while men in evening dress and women brilliantly gowned danced past.

The guests had their choice of four orchestras—two "hot" jazz bands playing popular tunes from Broadway, one accordion band and a Caucasian native band—which played in rooms made into a Caucasian cafe. Native south Russian knife dances were done and native food served.

Foreign Commissar Maxim M. Litvinoff and Gen. Tukhashevsky, assistant commissar for defense, headed the list of official Soviet guests, which included other members of the foreign office and numerous high military and civilian officials.

The foreign guests were mostly diplomats.

3 Medicos See 5 Tiny Dionnes Besting 5 Little Head Colds

Parents Send Doctor to Check Up, and He Finds All Is Well.

By the Associated Press.

Callander, Ontario, April 24.—Ontario physicians were in general agreement today on the health of the Dionne quintuplets.

Three doctors have decided five little head colds have about sneezed themselves away from Annette, Yvonne, Cecile, Emilie and Marie, alt-hough the last named is not up to par. Marie had her inning, however, by showing a two-ounce weight gain. . . . . .

Dr G W Smith, of North Bay, the third physician to examine the children, announced they were satisfactorily recovering. He represented Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne. The father was not satisfied by examinations of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the regular physician, and Dr. Alan Brown, Toronto specialist.

Dionne contended the children were sicker than he was permitted to know about. He and the mother of the five, who live 100 yards from the hospital, were invited to be present, while Dr. Smith made the examination, but they did not appear.

Dr. Smith, who previously had told Dionne he would not attempt to examine the babies unless he was invited to do so by Dr. Dafoe, commended the care the infants are having. He conferred with Dr. Dafoe who invited him to examine the children.

Davis, Recovered, Due Back in Senate

By the Associated Press.

Battle Creek, Mich., April 24.—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, recovered from a serious kidney ailment, said today he would leave the Battle Creek Sanitarium Saturday and return to Washington and the United States Senate.

When the Pennsylvania Republican entered the sanitarium February 28, he said the purpose was a periodic examination. Today, however, he revealed that his condition for a time was so serious that his physician despaired of his recovery.

Move to Shift Rally of G. O. P. Stirs Kansas

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., April 24.—Kansas Republicans are up in the air—and it isn't because of the dust storms.

It's because of word from Washington party circles that the contemplated Midwestern party gathering will not be held in Kansas City, as previously proposed and apparently accepted generally.

"It seems to me," said one Kansas Republican leader today—he would not permit use of his name—"that the East is attempting to dictate to us again. Not that I hate to see the meetings go elsewhere. It's the idea of others butting in."

"Who cast Kansas City overboard?" another asked. At Des Moines, Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa national Republican committeeman, said only that the meeting place still remained to be selected.

Landon Boom Feared.

The Washington explanation was that Kansas City is too close to the home of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and that a meeting there would give undue emphasis to an incipient Landon presidential boom.

Previous to the report from Washington, Kansas Republicans had been enthusiastic regarding the proposed gathering, which was proposed at a conference of party chieftains at a Kansas Day celebration in Topeka January 29. Leaders in other Midwestern States promptly agreed that a regional convention to discuss party reorganization plans and platform planks would be a good thing.

Central Location.

It was openly suggested, if not officially decided, that the meeting should be held at Kansas City—a nearly central location for delegates from Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Some Kansas Republicans took the view the move to take the meeting away from Kansas City was made by leaders interested in other candidates.

Some thought the move came straight from Hoover quarters, believing the former President hopes either to win the nomination himself or to be in a position to name the candidate. Landon, they said, stood as a threat to the Hoover hopes in 1936.

John Hamilton, national committeeman from Kansas, and regarded as one of the leaders along with Spangler in plans for the meeting, has declined to comment since the report from Washington. Previously, Hamilton had said the time and place would be announced by Spangler.

Palmetto Assembly Hits at New Deal

By the Associated Press.

Columbia, S. C., April 24.—Criticism of New Deal tactics blazed up in both branches of South Carolina's 100 per cent Democratic Legislature today, but Senate discontent was smothered by a large vote and House members said their dissensions were "internal."

Torn between traditional sentiment for individual "State rights" and support of the national Democratic Administration, the legislators heard claims that bills drafted by Federal lawyers for State enactment would "exercise the highest authority of State over property" and that the State Senate "is blindly following Washington."

Senator Carrol D. Nance, of Laurens, one of the largest cotton planters in the Senate, asserted the cotton processing tax, which the chamber later indorsed, was "driving this country to ruin."

Kennamer Case Inquiry Upheld By Grand Jury

Complaints Against Probe of Gorrell Killing Termed Rumors.

By the Associated Press.

Tulsa, Okla., April 24.—The Tulsa County grand jury returned a partial report today stating it found the "major portion of complaints" concerning the investigation of the slaying of John F. Gorrell, jr., by Phil Kennamer, Federal judge's son, was "founded on rumors due to the importance of the case."

Kennamer, 19, is serving a 25-year sentence in the State prison after conviction of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Gorrell, 23-year-old dental student, last Thanksgiving night.

Kennamer, who was brought from prison to testify before the grand jury, said at his trial Gorrell was killed with his own pistol in a scuffle as Kennamer sought to thwart an extortion plot directed against the family of Homer F. Wilcox. Kennamer professed love for Miss Virginia Wilcox, daughter of the wealthy oil man.

No indictments were returned.

The jury stated its investigation had failed to disclose any information which had not been brought out in the trial of Kennamer.

"We found no evidence of a $25,000 bribe" (which Police Sergt. Henry D. Maddux had said he was offered).

"We were unable to determine whether Sidney Born, jr. (friend of Kennamer, who was shot fatally December 9), committed suicide or was murdered."

DROVE DODGE 5068 MILES FOR LESS THAN $60

"Used Only 268 Gallons of Gas and 20 Quarts of Oil . . . NOT A PENNY FOR REPAIRS"

"I JUST made a cross-country run with my new Dodge," says Walter McNicholas, 3668A Shaw St., St. Louis, Mo., "and am I elated with its performance! I put it over the roads, 5068 miles from St. Louis to Florida to New York and back to St. Louis. I used only 268 gallons of gas at a cost of $50.40 and only 20 quarts of oil, which were just the regular four changes. The whole trip cost me less than $60."

But economy is only one of the wonders in this breath-taking New-Value Dodge. "Synchromatic Control" makes driving almost effortless. The new "Airglide Ride" is the thrill ride of motoring. Dodge's perfected dual-cylinder hydraulic brakes assure quicker, safer, "straight-line" stops—get thousands of extra miles from tires and brake linings. And Dodge gives you a genuine safety all-steel body—pioneered by Dodge—proved by three million owners. See this amazing value at the Spring "open house," at all Dodge dealers.

Loudoun Nurse Expires; Active In School Work

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., April 24.—Miss Anne Gulley, formerly county nurse for Loudoun for ten years, a former nurse at Foxcroft School at Middleburg for two years and at present acting nurse of Loudoun, died at the Loudoun County Hospital today, following an illness of several weeks.

She was a native of Snow Hill, N. C., and came to this county 20 years ago.

Following her work at Foxcroft School, she retired to Mount Gilead, where she conducted a camp for boys. She took up nursing again in Loudoun this winter, and it was while on duty that she was taken ill.

She was a member of the Leesburg Garden Club, the Loudoun Chapter American Red Cross and the State Nursing Association. Miss Gulley was graduated from the Training School for Nurses at the Old Dominion Hospital, in Richmond, and her class was composed of the first visiting nurses in the State.

Three brothers and four sisters in North Carolina survive. Funeral services will be held from St. James Episcopal Church, Friday, at 2 p. m., the Rev. O. Peyton Craighill and the Rev. D. C. Mayers officiating. Remains will be taken to North Carolina for burial.

Princess Anne, Md., April 24.—Funeral services for Hamilton W. White, 74, will be held at the Dames Quarter M. E. Church tomorrow, the pastor, the Rev. D. W. Pritchard, conducting the service. Interment will be in the churchyard.

Mr. White had been a lifelong resident of the Dames Quarter community. His early life was spent at sea. He entered the mercantile business at Dames Quarter with S. Frank Dashiell, of Princess Anne, in 1900 and remained in this line of work until his retirement.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth White, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Edna Redden, of New York City.

Thomas E. Kling.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., April 24.—Funeral services for Thomas Ephraim Kling, 75, retired farmer, who died yesterday, were held here today.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Fannie Montgomery Kling, he is survived by two sons, Ronald E. Kling, Hyattstown, and T. Maynard Kling, Damascus, Montgomery County.

Henry C. Winterstine.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 24.—Henry C. Winterstine, 77, formerly conected with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, died yesterday at his home in Ridgeley, near here.

He was a member of the Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Machinists Union. Surviving are the widow and five children, Mrs. Charles Deffenbaugh and John, Cecil, George and Fank Winterstine.

Irving A. Conn.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., April 24.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Irving Addison Conn, 75, widely known sportsman, who died yesterday at his home here. He had been in ill health for a year.

Surviving are her husband, three children, Mrs. Merle Rush, Winchester, Va.; James H. Doyle, Tiffin, Ohio, and Mrs. Nettie Hodge, Waynesboro; her father, Joseph Haun, Woodstock, Va., and the following brothers and sisters: Carter Haun, Mrs. Wallace Barron, Samuel Haun, Earl Haun, Paul Haun and Mrs. Stella Combs, all of Woodstock; Mrs. Frank McWilliams, Toms Brook, Va., and Mrs. Robert Vance, Winchester.

Levi J. Cave.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., April 24.—Services were conducted yesterday at Stephens City for Levi Justus Cave, 59, Frederick County farmer.

He is survived by the widow, one son, Harry M. Cave, of Cumberland, Md., and three daughters, Mrs. Howard E. White, of Stephens City; Mrs. Clarence E. Hartley, of Winchester, and Mrs. Carson R. Edmondson, of Winchester.

Mrs. Mary E. Moore.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 24.—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ellen Moore, 64, wife of W. F. Moore, of Stapleton, who died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. B. Marcom, at Monroe, were conducted today at Beulah Church, Stapleton.

Mrs. Moore is survived by her husband; a son, the Rev. R. L. Moore of Edinburg; two stepchildren, Miss Annie Moore, of Crewe, and R. C. Moore, of Appomattox; a brother, Carrington Hudson, of Monroe, and the following sisters: Mrs. Marcom and Mrs. W. H. Bethel, of Monroe; Mrs. S. R. Parr, of Lowesville, and Mrs. N. M. Hudson, of Amherst.

John L. Marion.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—Funeral services for John L. Marion, retired miller, were held here yesterday from the home of his brother, William B. Marion, the service being conducted by the Rev. Henry Alford Porter, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Frank Melton, of Cumberland County; two brothers, Jesse F. and William B. Marion, of Charlottesville, and one sister, Mrs. John Dunford, of Cumberland County.

Virginia Garden Week Records One-Fifth Increase in Crowds

Monticello and Stratford Lead State Shrines in Visitors.

By the Associated Press.

First reports from registrars at old Virginia estates and from hotels indicated that the lure of "Old Virginny" flower gardens in the springtime will bring 20 per cent more visitors in Garden Week than last year.

A mathematically accurate estimate was impossible yesterday, at the halfway mark of the week, but checks at Monticello, at Stratford and in Richmond showed the number of visitors in the first two days of the week to have been greatly in excess of those on corresponding days of the 1934 celebration.

More than 1,500 persons had registered at Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, by this morning, and at Ash Lawn, home of former President James Monroe, attendance was almost double that of last year.

Richmond hotel men said more than 1,000 extra guests were registered and that the increase over last year appeared to be about 20 per cent.

Visitors from nearly every State in the Union were ushered through boxwood gardens and historic halls of Stratford, birthplace of Robert E. Lee, and 200 garden enthusiasts signed the register in the old kitchen Monday, according to Superintendent Chestham. He reported more visitors than last year.

Six thousand persons crowded into Lynchburg's Miller Park on Easter Monday, some to view the 5,000 tulip specimens and some to attend an egg roll, George H. Reed, superintendent, said.

Among distinguished guests were Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, and Ralph W. Close, Minister of the Union of South Africa, who visited Charlottesville.

Fredericksburg hostelries and the three shrines and one private home on exhibit there reported record-breaking crowds.

Dr. Chanutin and Lorz Win Research Honors at Sigma Xi Rites.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—The winners of two prizes for outstanding scientific research at the University of Virginia were announced tonight at the twelfth annual initiation exercises of Sigma Xi, at which 19 new members were inducted into the university chapter of the national scientific society.

Dr. Alfred Chanutin, professor of biochemistry, was awarded the president and visitors' prize given annually to a member of the faculty for the most meritorious research during the year, and Albert Lorz, of Meadville, Pa., a graduate student in biology, received the Andrew Fleming award for high scholarship and excellence of research in the department of biology.

Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, professor of physics and director of the radiation laboratories at the University of California, gave the annual Sigma XI address. He discussed artificial radioactivity.

Two distinguished alumni of the University of Virginia, Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general of the United States, and Dr. William H. Wilmer, former professor of ophthalmology at Georgetown and Johns Hopkins Universities, chosen for membership in the society this year, were unable to be present at the initiation. Arrangements have been made for their initiation at a later date.

Two faculty members, Dr. James Carroll Flippin, dean of the medical school, and Dr. Lauren B. Hitchcock, professor of chemical engineering, were initiated along with William M. McGill, assistant geologist of the Virginia Geological Survey.

Strike Vote Called In Maryland Plant

Kelly-Springfield Union Will Meet Tonight.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 24.—Announcement is made by the strike committee of the United Rubber Workers Local, No. 12007, that a special meeting has been called tomorrow night to take a strike vote. Its members are employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co.

The strike committee of the union claims that seniority rights have been violated, and seeks "true collective bargaining" and to protest against what is termed the "stretch-out system." Union officials claim ballots will be cast by 640 members.

A statement published by the strike committee of the local says:

"The immediate reason for this action is that the company on April 3, 1933, furloughed 516 employes. Before this furlough went into effect the company recalled 312 employes. Between April 8 and April 17 they have recalled approximately 50 more employes. In the furlough and recall the company disregarded seniority rights."

Beautician Challenged In Sweetland Suit

Huntington, W. Va., April 24 (AP).—A Logan beauty parlor operator's claim to the $1,000,000 estate of Louis R. Sweetland was contested today in a suit filed by relatives of the late banker-capitalist.

Action to establish the right of sisters and other relatives to the fortune was started by the relatives, who named among the defendants the former Nellie Stratton, of Logan, who claims she was secretly married to Sweetland in February, 1934.

Sweetland died in a Huntington hospital last October 13, of pneumonia. His fortune has been unofficially estimated at between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000.

In the Newport News area, 84 were issued; in Petersburg, 31; Roanoke, 17; Norfolk-Portsmouth, 57; Harrisonburg, 43; Danville, 30, with 106 buttermilk licenses; Lynchburg, 45, with 180 buttermilk licenses, and Staunton-Waynesboro, 33.

Magistrates Will Meet To Confer on New Laws

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 24.—West Virginia magistrates will hold a State meeting May 4 at Charleston to discuss the new State liquor law, drunk-driving law and other laws enacted by the recent Legislature.

Uniformity of fees, practice and general rules in the administration of the office of justice of the peace will be sought.

More Coffee for Dog Which Earned Laurels

Dallas, Tex., April 24 (AP).—What Jack, a dog, will get for saving the life of his mistress is an extra cup of coffee every morning.

Mrs. J. C. Grindle told of the reward today in relating that when fire broke out the dog awakened her in the nick of time. Heretofore, one cup of coffee—for which the hero has a weakness—has been his portion.

First Guests Are Greeted At Chancery

Garden Offers a Perfect Setting, as Minister Entertains.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Those who have received cards for the housewarming at the new chancery of the Brazilian Embassy yesterday afternoon certainly did not expect to find such a lovely scene as greeted the guests. The host, Mr. Cyro de Freitas-Valle, Minister-Counselor of the Embassy, received his guests beamingly and was delighted with their exclamations of appreciation for the beautiful place that has so recently been completed.

Just in back of the Embassy, the former home of the late Col. Robert McCormick, is a magnificent garden, which at one time was hidden from the public gaze by high stone walls topped with cruel-looking, jagged bits of glass. The removal of this wall was one of the first things the Ambassador, Senhor Oswaldo Aranha, did when he started to remodel the house. Now the garden is in full view of the passers-by on Massachusetts avenue. At the far end of the garden, half hidden by blossoming fruit trees, is the new chancery.

Perfect Setting.

The approach is from Whitehaven street, where the guests first saw the rather austere facade of the new building. Inside were masses of people all anxious to see the offices, with their comfortable and handsome furnishings. Beyond the offices is a long arcade looking out across the Embassy gardens. If Mr. Freitas-Valle had chosen any other day the setting could not have been so perfect, for the flowering trees were at just the right state of bloom to appear their loveliest; and the guests, delighted with the idea of the party, wore their loveliest costumes.

Most of the guests sooner or later gathered on the terrace, where deft butlers passed cocktails, sherry and other pleasant drinks. The Ambassador and Senhora de Aranha mingled with the guests and even took a chosen few across the garden into the embassy for a glimpse of the yet unfinished rooms of their handsome abode. Senhora de Aranha wore a simple afternoon frock of black satin. She was welcomed on all sides, for yesterday was one of her first appearances since her recovery after an illness.

Sir Ronald Present.

Tall Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, and two of his young assistants, the First Secretary of Embassy Mr. Mainwaring Broadmead, and the Third Secretary, Mr. I. A. D. Wilson Young, were on hand. In the gathering also were Mrs. Pendleton Mayo, smart in a brown and beige suit, chatting with Mr. Ralph Snowden Hill; Mrs. Francis Whitten, in black as usual, with a smart little hat trimmed with clusters of yellow buttercups; Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, jr., the latter in pale gray with a large hat to match, trimmed with a pert violet bow; Mrs. Campbell Pritchett in a blue and white print with a navy blue hat, and with her, Miss Natalie Kenney, her niece, in black satin.

Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, was in black also, and came onto the terrace with a lovely spray of flowering cherry blossoms in her hand. The pretty daughters of the Cuban Ambassador were there, charming all the young men as usual. The Minister of Iran and Mme. Djalal also were present, the latter in golden tweeds with a tiny brown hat and blouse.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, in navy blue, chatted with a group of friends and near by were Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel. Others glimpsed were Baroness von Buelow, Mme. Abdullah Entezam, Mrs. McKenney Mallan, Commander and Mrs. Robert Munroe, Commander and Mrs. Cary Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown.

Virginia Kent Weds in Rites At Bryn Mawr

An interesting wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Virginia Tucker Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent, of Ardmore, Pa., became the bride of Mr. Cummins Catherwood, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Catherwood. The ceremony took place in the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, Pa. The chancel and aisle of the church were decorated with Easter lilies, arranged against dark palms.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was gowned in white satin fashioned on empire lines, with a high waist effect, the straight skirt ending in a long, graceful train. The sleeves, made with slight puffs at the shoulder, terminated at the wrists in sharp points. Her veil was caught into a fitted cap of tulle, which was edged with a rolled satin band and held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms on each side. She carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. William Laurens Van Alen attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of white chiffon made on long flowing lines with a high neckline, a full-pleated skirt and pleated chiffon capes of waist length. Her off-the-face hat was of white tulle. She carried gardenias.

The bridesmaids, costumed like the matron of honor, were Mrs. Richard H. Grant, jr., of Dayton, Ohio; Miss Dorothy Perin-Smith, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss Helen Mellon, of Pittsburgh; Miss Jane Johnson, of St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Nancy B. Lucas, cousin of the bride; Miss Margaret Donance, Miss Anna Cox Newbold, Miss Helen Fox, Miss Louise Vandan and Miss Louise Catherwood, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Edward Roberts was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Clarence Roberts, Mr. Joseph Parrish, Mr. Theodore Scull, Mr. C. Francis Gummey, Mr. A. Atwater Kent, jr., Mr. William L. Van Alen, Mr. Armor Archbold, Mr. John Archbold, Mr. Harry D. Mitchell, of Washington, and Mr. Allison Fleitas, of Philadelphia.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, West Hills, in Ardmore. Mrs. Sidney Keith, aunt of the bridegroom, assisted the couple and Mr. and Mrs. Kent in receiving.

Miss Sally Norwood Ferguson Bride of William B. Snow, Jr.

Daughter of Trade Commission Member Is Wed at Parents' Home on Eighteenth Street; Reception Follows Ceremony.

Miss Sally Norwood Ferguson, daughter of Judge Garland S. Ferguson, member of the Federal Trade Commission, and Mrs. Ferguson, of Washington and formerly of Greensboro, N. C., last night became the bride of Mr. William Boylan Snow, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boylan Snow of Raleigh and Charlotte, N. C.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Eighteenth street, when the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D. D., officiated in the presence of the families and friends from official and resident society. The drawing room, where the ceremony was performed, was effectively decorated with Madonna lilies intermingled with palms and Farlenese ferns, and the buffet table in the dining room had a centerpiece of lilies-of-the-valley and Bride roses, flanked on either side with tall white tapers in handsome silver candelabra.

The bride, who was escorted to the improvised altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy ivory satin made on princess lines with a high-necked bodice and long close-fitting sleeves. Her circular ivory tulle veil fell from a cap of two bands of satin to the end of long square train and she carried a bouquet of Madonna lilies, from which a shower of lilies-of-the-valley cascaded.

Miss Pollard Maid of Honor.

Miss Lillie Howard Pollard, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Charles Pollard, who was the maid of honor, wore a gown of orchid tucked silk net over taffeta of the same shade, with the long skirt flaring at the knees. She carried an arm bouquet of varicolored spring flowers, with the yellow and orchid predominating. The bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Blanchard, of Hartford, N. C.; Miss Mabel Uzzell and Miss Franc Leak, of Greensboro, N. C., and Miss Elizabeth McPhail, of Rockingham, N. C., and Washington. They wore gowns made on princess lines of sheer silk net on the same lines as that worn by the maid of honor. Miss Blanchard wore blue; Miss Uzzel, pink; Miss Leak, yellow, and Miss McPhail, green, and they all carried arm bouquets of spring flowers in pastel shades.

Mr. John K. Snow, of Chapel Hill, N. C., brother of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the ushers were Mr. Marion R. Cowper, of Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. George Dewey Thompson, of Goldsboro, N. C.; Mr. Robert Zealy, of Greensboro, N. C., and Mr. Wayne Albright, of Chapel Hill, N. C.

A reception followed the ceremony, when the couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Ferguson, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of black faille trimmed with chatreuse beads, and she wore a corsage of orchids, and Mrs. Snow, mother of the bridegroom, who wore a black net and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Leave for Wedding Trip.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Snow, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. F. C. O'Dell, Mrs. James M. Wiggins, and Mrs. Elizabeth Byrd, of Greensboro, N. C.; Mrs. M. H. Justice, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. W. B. Thompson, of Goldsboro, N. C., and Mrs. Carroll Blanchard, of Hertford, N. C., all aunts of the bride.

Also Miss Lillian Blanchard, Miss Isabelle Ferguson, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Smith Richardson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Addison Flint, of Easton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Julian Price, Mrs. D. A. Walters, Mrs. Thomas Crabtree, and Mrs. H. D. Leak, of Greensboro, N. C.; Miss Laurie Barrett, of Lynchburg, Va.; Dr. and Mrs. Alex Smith, of Greensboro, N. C., and Mr. and Mrs. George P. Roberson and Miss Kathleen Roberson, of Greenville, S. C.

Harriet Haig, Richard Green Are Wed Here

The marriage of Miss Harriett Pinckney Haig, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, of Battery Park, and Mr. Richard St. Clair Green, jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard St. Clair Green, of Washington, took place last evening in St. Thomas' Episcopal Church.

The bride's uncle, the Rev. A. G. Bramwell Bennett, of St. Timothy's Church, Charleston, S. C., performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Joseph E. Williams, of St. John's Episcopal Church, Bradley lane, and the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown.

Pale pink blossoms were used with the Easter lilies, palms and ferns and cathedral candles in the chancel decorations and on the altar. Before the ceremony, Mrs. Erna G. Embrey, soprano, sang a group of songs, including "I Love You Truly," "Oh, Promise Me," and "All for You."

Bride in Colonial Satin.

The bride, entering the church with her father, wore a lovely gown of colonial satin draped from the shoulders. The bodice with high cowl neckline was made with long, tight sleeves. The veil of tulle blending in with the shade of the satin of the gown, was arranged with a headband of braided tulle, caught with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Rainbow tints were carried out in the silk net dresses of the attendants, all of which were fashioned alike. The off-the-shoulder bodice was edged in a double fold of the net and the trained skirt of double net was over matching taffeta. The silk net was used in the small turbans. The matron of honor, Mrs. William P. Trail, wore blue; the maid of honor, Miss Clara Grace Haig, of Philadelphia, pink; Miss Mildred Bursley and Miss Rosamond Hunt, yellow; Miss Florence Davis and Miss Elizabeth Offutt, peach, and Miss Margaret M. Haig and Miss Minna K. Haig, green. Each one carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers.

The net dresses of the flower girls were miniature reproductions of those worn by the other attendants, Mary Margaret Trail having pink and Christine Kennedy, blue. They wore bonnets of net and also carried colonial bouquets.

Will Reside in D. C.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Haig, wore cornflower blue chiffon, made with cowl drapery at the back of the neck and with short train. Her corsage was of Permet roses. Mrs. Green's dress was of yellow silk, with which she wore a hat of brown maline and her flowers were violets.

Mr. Luther Gray, a cousin of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Turner Quaid, Mr. William P. Trail, Mr. John Scanlon, Mr. William Jobes, Mr. Ray M. Clark, Mr. Robert Talley, Mr. M. H. Harvey and Mrs. William Friel.

Following the ceremony, a reception and dance was held at the Woman's Club of Bethesda, when the bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by the members of the wedding party.

The bride traveled in a suit of blue cloth, with flesh-colored sheer blouse, with which she wore a hat of blue. The accessories were of the matching blue. Upon their return from their wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Green will make their home in Washington.

Spring Greens Equal Spinach In Food Value

Dandelion, Escarole, Endive, Cabbage Recommended as Substitutes.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THOSE who detest spinach will be interested to know that scientists have expressed an opinion that grass is just as good if not a better provider of those obscure but important properties known as vitamins. This statement will hardly cause the rabid spinach hater to push his plate aside and go out to the front lawn and pluck grass for his dinner, however.

Then let's solve the problem in a simpler and more effective way. Tuck the the unpopular spinach in an unimportant place and bring other spring greens to the table. After all, the plebeian cabbage is the richest contributor of food values of all the green vegetables, and just a look at the present prices will make you wonder if it shouldn't be included among the more elite.

Dandelion greens may be a pest to your front lawn, so before they have an opportunity to break into bud and scatter a sprinkling of gold where it is least appreciated, gather them up and serve them for dinner. This green has a lusty tang and flavor that adds just the right something to spring meals. They may be served from the ever-popular salad bowl or cooked like other greens and flavored with just a touch of bacon.

Escarole and endive will help as a spring tonic and give your menus a much needed punch. You will find a goodly supply of precious vitamins in all of these greens.

Don't depend merely on lettuce to supply the food properties generally classed as found in greens. It is an important factor, of course, but not nearly so abundantly endowed as the vegetables with the color of a rich deep green. Boston lettuce, perhaps, because of its deeper green, will offer more in the way of food properties than the iceberg, which is always featured during the winter.

Serve the dandelion greens this way:

Dandelion Greens.

2 pounds dandelion greens
Salt and pepper
2 slices of bacon
Vinegar

Dandelions should be used before they blossom, as they become bitter after that. Cut off the roots, pick the greens over carefully, and wash them well in several waters. Place them in a kettle, add a little boiling water, just enough to keep from scorching, and cook till tender. Salt the water just before the cooking is completed. When done, lift them into a colander, press them to drain off all the water, and chop.

Season with vinegar which has been mixed with bacon cooked until crisp and crumbled. A bit of the bacon fat may be used rather than butter.

Cress and Dandelion Salad.

1 cup water cress
1 cup dandelion greens
6 thin slices raw onion
French dressing

The dandelion should be fresh and young. Wash the leaves carefully and drain well. Arrange them in a salad bowl with the cress which has been washed and crisped if necessary in cold water. Add the slices of onion and pour the French dressing over all. Serve at once.

A stuffed new green cabbage may be the main dish for dinner. Try it this way:

Stuffed Cabbage.

1 cabbage
Cooking fat
Butter
Spices
3 eggs
Parsley
1 cup bread crumbs
1 chopped onion

Place a thin piece of cheesecloth in the bottom of a bowl and put the large cabbage leaves in it. Chop the middle of the cabbage fine and saute it in fat until it is yellow. Remove it from the fire, add a little chopped parsley, spices, bread crumbs, eggs and onion. Place this mixture inside the large cabbage leaves, and tie up the cabbage by tying together the four corners of the cloth.

Place in a pan of boiling salted water and boil until the cabbage leaves are tender (about 35 minutes). When done, remove from the cloth, pour a little melted butter over it, and some fine bread crumbs, and bake for five minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

Dorothea Duncan will be glad to help you with your culinary problems. Write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

Lady Astor Scores Dictators' Orders

Deplores Lot of Women in Germany and Italy.

German and Italian women are objects of pity to Lady Astor, Virginia-born member of the British Parliament. When she was in Istanbul recently to attend the twelfth congress of the International Alliance of Women for Suffrage and Equal Citizenship she said, according to the Associated Press:

"I pity the German and Italian women, whose only rights are bearing children by order of the dictator-rulers of their countries. In America, England, Turkey and other free countries women also bear children, but not by order. I am the happy mother of six children, but I was not ordered to have them."

Perhaps no crusader has talked before more unsympathetic audiences than velvet-voiced, determined Margaret Sanger, whose fight for birth control is not yet finished. A quiet, unassuming woman, Miss Sanger is a convincing platform speaker, who has won many persons to her cause by her sincerity and her straightforward manner of presenting her convictions.

Carrie Chapman Catt, who succeeded Anna Howard Shaw as president of the American Woman Suffrage Association and later became president of the International Woman Suffrange Alliance, rose to fame as a forceful and logical public speaker. More recently, she has devoted her attention to the cause and cure of war.

Doris Stevens, of the National Woman's Party, was swept into the international spotlight when in 1917 she was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment for an attempt to petition President Wilson on behalf of woman suffrage. Later, she spoke throughout the East on the prosecution of women who picketed the White House for the same cause.

CULBERTSON on BRIDGE

Knocking Heads Together.

The sinking sensation which any hard-working declarer feels when he finds a terrible division of the trump suit may be fatal if he gives up hope. With courage and a bit of ingenuity, however, he may bring about a situation in which the opponents' winning trump and another winning card held in a side suit may fall on the same trick, thus forcing a waste of two winners for only a single gain. Leslie P. Oberleder, of New York, offers the following example of recovery after a discouraging shock:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K J ♡ 10 7 6 ◇ K 7 4 ♣ A Q 8 3
♠ — ♡ A K Q 9 4 2 ◇ Q J 10 5 ♣ 7 4 2	W E S	♠ Q 10 8 5 ♡ J 8 5 ◇ 9 8 ♣ J 10 6 5
	♠ 9 7 6 4 3 2 ♡ 3 ◇ A 6 3 2 ♣ K 9

The actual bidding was somewhat unconventional, because South opened with a semipsychic bid of one spade. West overcalled in hearts and North forced, bidding four clubs. Then, when South (who could not pass a force) bid four spades, North raised to five as a slam try and East doubled. South, according to Mr. Oberleder, sighed.

The Play.

West opened hearts, winning the first trick and continuing the suit. South ruffed and led a trump, immediately discovering the bad break. South then proceeded to strip the hand. He ruffed a heart, cashed three top clubs and ruffed the fourth club from dummy. He was lucky enough to find East with four clubs, and skillful enough to take advantage of it. When he then cashed the Ace and King of diamonds, East was reduced to trumps only. South had a losing diamond, but it coincided with the trick which must be lost to East's eight of spades, and on this lead West was thrown in. He had no choice but to lead a spade into North's Ace-Jack and five-odd were made.

Boston Beauty Shop Offers Free Movies To Its Customers

Beauty parlors long have been considered fine places in which to catch up on one's reading. Hair driers and movie magazines have become as inseparable as ham and eggs. But now the magazines are likely to be replaced by actual movies. A Boston beauty shop, by providing free motion pictures for its wet-haired customers, has started something which may sweep the entire country.

Travel, educational and cartoon films make up the 35-minute program in the Boston shop. An attendant with an usher's flashlight wanders about among the audience making the "heads" comfortable.

New Type of Oratory Appears in Campaign, With Flowery Phrases and Long Words Discarded for Convincing Language.

Public speaking has gone through as many changes as women's styles since the turn of the century, when the quality of an orator's thought was much less important than the rotundity and sonorousness of his sentences. Have women speakers helped to bring about these changes? If so, what part did the militant feminists play? This is the third of a series of articles on women orators.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

BY 1900 Anna Howard Shaw had given up preaching and was turning all her magnetism and eloquence toward "The Cause." Susan B. Anthony, nearing the end of her career, was still speaking from the platform, but virtually in the capacity of leader emeritus of the suffrage movement.

Lucy Stone's work was being carried on by her daughter, Alice Stone Blackwell, a competent public speaker; and Elizabeth Cady Stanton's daughter, Harriet Stanton Blatch, was actively interested in the suffrage movement in England.

Two years before another woman, who was to become great, had joined the ranks of the suffrage army. Leaving her work as superintendent of schools at Mason City, Iowa, Carrie Chapman Catt brought to the movement statesmanship and a knowledge of political science. She was still the teacher, but now instead of training boys and girls she was educating men and women to the need of woman suffrage.

As a lecturer and organizer for the cause, Mrs. Catt was outstanding. Tall, handsome and possessing an impressive personality as well as a superior intellect, she succeeded Anna Howard Shaw as president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, and creditably filled the place of a woman who was deservedly acclaimed "an oratorical genius."

Considered Great Speaker.

Mrs. Catt made no pretenses along this line. She was merely a straightforward, logical public speaker, with a conviction that the attaining of woman suffrage was a matter of explaining why it should be granted, and a sense of humor that kept her from taking herself or her cause too seriously.

Yet there were many in her audiences who considered her one of the greatest speakers in the suffrage movement. Mrs. Percy V. Penneybacker, herself a widely-known speaker and past president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, is one of these. Discussing Mrs. Catt, not only in connection with the suffrage cause but the peace movement, Mrs. Pennybacker said: "From the platform Mrs. Catt appeals chiefly to the intellect, yet she can also appeal to the emotions. Each time I have heard her I have been impressed with her logical approach to the subject, her straightforward analysis of the situation at hand, her sensible suggestions for a cure, and her method of gaining an emotional response without resorting to any devices employed by demagogues."

Edward Boakman, in his essay "Women on the Platform" bears out Mrs. Pennybacker's opinions and goes a few steps further, as follows: "By both her admirers and critic, it is generally conceded that Carrie Chapman Catt surpasses most women speakers in that when she talks, she has something to say; that she 'drives home' her points; that she has a rare understanding of human nature; and that her dry humor often saves her addresses from being 'heavy.'"

Militant Group Appears.

While Mrs. Catt and her associates continued their educational program for gaining woman suffrage, there was another type of feminist, who wanted their suffrage toy at once, no matter if they had to walk down from the platform and mount the soap box to get it.

Adopting militant tactics, they were willing to picket, parade and publicize themselves in order to win the right to vote.

More than a score of years before, another woman had adopted militant tactics and gained results. She was Carrie Nation who went all over the country, fulminating against everything from smoking and drinking to corsets and sweeping skirts. But her practice of leaving behind a trail of barrooms, wrecked by her ubiquitous hatchet, resulted in an avalanche of unfavorable publicity that swept her into oblivion.

The militant feminists who finally won suffrage, however, had only one thing in common with Carrie Nation—they knew they must focus Nation-wide attention on their cause. Passive methods, they believed, had already spent their force.

Fight Intensified.

Accordingly, under the leadership of Alice Paul, who, in England, had been associated with Emmeline Pankhurst (leader of the militant wing of the English suffrage movement) a group of women set out to finish the suffrage fight.

On the program eventually carried out by the National Woman's Party, oratory played an important part. These women—it was soon discovered—who were willing to subjugate themselves to any humiliation (even to imprisonment) could also talk, and talk forcibly, for the cause.

The type of public speaking that resulted differed from platform speaking of the '80's and '90's in many respects. Oratory for oratory's sake was outmoded. The suffragettes had discarded the beautiful similes and flowery phrases and long words that had formerly padded speeches that were void of thought. Such speakers as Inez Milholland Boissevain, Doris Stevens, Rebecca Greathouse, Burnita Shelton Matthews, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Maud Younger, Mabel Vernon, Anne Martin, Abby Scott Baker and Anita Pollitzer were modernizing oratory.

In the meantime another woman, speaking throughout the country, was beginning to win converts to an entirely different (and even more unpopular) cause. As militant as any suffrage worker, Margaret Sanger, of birth control fame, has probably spoken to more unsympathetic audiences than any woman since the days of Angelina Grimke and Abby Kelly Foster.

Tomorrow—More about modern women and public speaking.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

ALAS for "Jaundiced!" Amongst all the letters which have come to my desk as a result of printing her lament against the woman shopper's alleged brusque treatment of the sales girl, I have found no writer to take up cudgels in defense of her point of view.

* * * *

Which moves me to indulge in a personal confession. As a woman shopper, I went forth this noon on a quaking mission. It was to exchange, for the second time, a piece of merchandise into possession of which I had come through nobody's fault but my own.

* * * *

Well did I realize that I, the plaintiff, had a poor case to plead in the coming encounter. But the defendant who, in this case, was also judge and jury, heard me out with grave courtesy. Then, with a graciousness and generosity that left me defencelessly humble and apologetic, proceeded to render a decision so entirely in my favor that I am now busy trying not to dispise myself as a carping nuisance. And a guilty conscience forces me to concede that "Jaundiced's" cynicism, while prehaps too all-embracing, is not without foundation.

M. H.

Three Kinds of Saleswomen.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I think "Jaundiced" has not had sufficient social experience to be able to distinguish between gold and that which merely glitters. Usually persons who treat others "like dirt beneath their feet" are those who still have their own toes imbedded in the mire.

* * * *

It seems to me there are three kinds of women and girls employed to wait upon the buying public which indirectly creates jobs for them. (For if there were no shoppers, no clerks would be needed.)

* * * *

There are the cheap, common, gum-chewing girls who unwillingly interrupt their conversation with each other of "I says to him and he says to me——" to half listen in a bored and resentful manner to the customer who needs the uninteresting but necessary safety-pin.

There are the overdressed and supercilious salesladies who condescend to earn a trifle of their salaries by gushing over the customer in a revolting manner, often calling a total stranger twice their ages "dearie."

There are the well-mannered, efficient and competent women and girls who take sufficient interest in their jobs to wait upon their customers quickly, quietly and correctly without making mistakes—and who, if the customer has made one, have enough intelligence to correct it pleasantly and set it right without calling upon the management to assign the "blame."

* * * *

Of course, it would seem that the "well born, well educated and intelligent" clerks described by "Jaundiced" would belong to this last classification. Probably they do, and those who wish to impress the customers with the "I'm just as good as you are" idea have a sneaking knowledge that they lack much, and a self-conscious realization that that it is quite an obvious fact to anyone with whom they come in contact.

* * * *

Those who buy may be waited upon by social superiors or social inferiors and those who sell may sell to equals, but after all, what does it matter? The social side doesn't enter into the business deal. The "socialites" and the "women of means" (as "Jaundiced" calls them with uneasy jealousy) and the "middle class" are composed of women who have as varied natures as have those who are paid to promptly and pleasantly "line up behind the counter," where, indeed, no gifts are handed out but instead the money is handed in which eventually finds its way into the pay envelopes of those who "stand and wait."

* * * *

In every community there are certain clerks who are so pleasant and efficient that customers patronize certain shops for the sole reason that they prefer to be waited upon by such persons. Often a customer will wait patiently for a preferred clerk even though there are several other customers to be waited upon before her turn, and although ill-mannered and inefficient clerks at the same counter stand idle. Customers always recommend such clerks to each other, saying: "Be sure to ask for Miss So-and-So."

* * * *

"Jaundiced" seems to be unable to differentiate between her customers and thinks that all who are well-dressed, who speak correct English and who are disagreeable to saleswomen are "socialities," whatever the epithet means.

She also seems to fail to take into account that a customer with a long shopping list may have a much harder and more irksome task to perform than the clerk who waits upon her. She does not seem to realize that a clerk can antagonize a customer at the very outset, or can make a friend of her over the counter—an impersonal one, but a very real one, nevertheless.

* * * *

I think, Miss Haworth, you had the right idea in advising "Jaundiced" to promote herself into another job where she will not come into contact with the general public. Clerks can not expect hand-picked customers, although the latter have a certain claim to be served by courteous and efficient clerks. It is, after all, the only bonus they receive for trading at one shop instead of another and, incidentally, the clerks receive their pay envelops whether they furnish this bonus or not.

* * * *

There are plenty of disagreeable and irritating customers, but there are an equal number of disobliging saleswomen, yet what has that to do with one's position in the social scale? SHOPPER.

Communal Life Declared Best for Indian

By Virginia Lee Warren.

THE INDIAN may be an individualist in the arts but in his mode of living he prefers the communal system. In fact, his temperament makes it impossible for him to adapt himself to the capitalistic system and it is high time the United States Government recognized this racial peculiarity, believes Grady Lewis, Choctaw attorney from Tulsa.

Mr. Lewis, a former member of the Oklahoma Legislature, is in Washington to give his support to the Thomas-Rodgers bill. Yesterday, after spending a busy day at the Capitol, he settled down at the Bureau of Indian Affairs for a brief talk about his people, one of the five civilized tribes—Choctaws, Oklahoma from Southeastern States by the Government more than 100 years ago.

Until the twentieth century the five civilized tribes—Choctaws, Chickasaws, Cherokees, Creeks, and Seminoles—were happy and prosperous in the communistic republic they maintained on land given them by the Government, according to Mr. Lewis.

Persuaded to Sell Land.

But when their communal life was broken up and they made owners of small individual farms through an act of Congress a little more than 30 years ago, they did not know how to take care of their property. Most of them were persuaded to sell for much less than the land was worth, the Choctaw attorney is convinced.

"The Indian is not a good business man, he can not learn the white man's standards of value," explained Mr. Lewis. "When an Indian wants something he really wants it and will give anything for it even if it has little value. The fact that he wants it is all that matters to him. This accounts for the Indians' selling or trading their land for almost nothing."

And now many of them are homeless according to the Choctaw.

Follow Nomadic Existence.

"They live a nomadic existence," he said. "Life out in the open would not be so hard for them if they had enough to eat. But the hunting grounds are gone. The Indians are bitten by hunger. They are emaciated from lack of food. The children, many of them, are not going to school because they wander from place to place with their families. Hundreds of these families are simply squatters. They are kicked from place to place. If something is not done for them soon, they will not be able to survive."

Proud on Relief Matters

"When an Indian woman goes to a relief agency, the relief worker asks her where she has worked before. Usually the Indian has never worked for anyone but her own family. So the relief worker puts her on the unemployable list. It is the same with a man. Of course the Indians could apply for charity.

Red Man Can Not Adapt Self to Capitalism, Lewis Asserts.

But they are timid. They are also proud. So they suffer."

In addition to poverty, his people are wracked with tuberculosis, Mr. Lewis said. One reason disease is so prevalent is the affection which exists between parents and their children.

"When a child becomes tubercular, the parents can not bear the separation which hospitalization makes necessary," the Indian lawyer said. "Nor can the child bear to be separated from the parents. Here again communal life would enable Indians to solve their problems. The Government must realize the Red Man can not live as the White Man does."

The Indian has a peculiar temperament which makes it impossible for him to adjust himself to the capitalistic system, says Grady Lewis (right), tribal attorney for the Choctaws and a member of the Oklahoma Legislature, here to urge legislation in behalf of his people.

Whole Family Will Approve These Wafers

By Ruth Anne Davis.

APPETITES have a brand-new reason for growing out of all proportion with the advent of a certain wafer now revolutionizing food circles. We say one wafer, although we mean 22 put out by one company. Considered all together, this wafer family merits the highest commendation, recommendation and approbation. It is food aristocracy! Quality plus!

However—each member of that family, each of the 22 wafters, has its individual claim to fame. See them and taste them at the demonstration in a local store this week. Begin with the whole wheat wafers—ideal nibblers for those who want to reduce. These are made of whole wheat flour, shortened with pure creamery butter and are as thin and crisp as the finest pastry.

Macaroon Snow Creams are delicious macaroon cakes covered with soft, fluffy marshmallow and then iced. They taste more homemade than those you make!

Miniature Doughnuts.

Orange Wafers carry an orange flavor in a crisp drop cake. A delicate brown edge makes them inviting—the taste is satisfying. They melt in your mouth!

Maple Pecan Wafers.

In the maple pecan wafers you'll find real Vermont maple sugar and fresh Georgia pecans. The nuts are finely ground so that every bit of their flavor blends with the sugar. A real adventure in taste!

In a dozen different shapes come party "Knick - Knacks"—dainty spiced short cakes, charming for bridge, afternoon teas, luncheons and cocktail parties. Crisp and crunchy!

Nothing better for the youngsters than some malted milk biscuits made from the finest flour and shortening, and flavored with real malted milk.

Celery wafers are a new and unusual wafer with a delicate flavor of celery. A dainty biscuit for hors d'oeuvres, salads or soups.

Full to the brim with eight varieties of these famous cookies is the special gift box. Keep it in mind for Mother's Day. It's grand for elderly people who can't eat candy but love to have some little sweet something on which to nibble.

Cream Rouge Blends Easily.

Almost everyone knows something about a famous old English cosmetic line which had its beginning back in 1770. Few of us, however, know all about the various lovely preparations so "tried and true" that we turn to them with utmost assurance. This week a lovely young woman is at a downtown store to tell you about everything in the line.

For instance—the cream rouge. There are hundreds of cream rouges, but none like this one. It's soft and creamy, and easy to blend. You know how so many rouges are —inclined to be "spotty?" Not this one. It goes on smoothly and looks like natural color in the cheeks. It comes in three shades. This young lady can help you find your own. Naturally there's a lipstick to match the rouge.

Mesh Pouch Compacts.

The compact of the season is a mesh pouch with a colorful enamel top. It comes in two styles, one single, the other double. Some are as large as pancakes, others the usual compact size. Don't fail to see them. They're new, practical and smart. Modestly priced, too.

For Unpleasant Aromas.

"O-no" is the name of a certain little breath deodorant that banishes the unpleasant aroma of onions, alcohol, or tobacco in the twinkling of the eye. Just a drop of it on the tip of the tongue, a deep breath—and all's well.

Husbands who like a little "pick-me-up" betwixt office and home hours, but fear the wife's reaction will find that "O-no" will help them keep their secret. Wives who just can't resist nibbling tender young scallions will find they can do so with perfect ease of mind regarding the "breathy" aftermath if they keep a bottle of "O-no" handy.

It comes in little pocket and purse size bottles, and costs but 20 cents.

Dresses for $2.99.

It's almost impossible to believe that you can buy a dress, a really adorable dress, for only $2.99. But it's true. You can if you shop in the sports department of a downtown store.

Here are beautifully tailored, nicely finished little string knit suits in several different styles. They come in yellow, blue and peach; sizes 14 to 44.

Pattern No. 742.

WHEN there is something new to say about shirtwaist dresses—it's news indeed. This design is the 1935 shirtwaist frock, styled for slim, young 14's and larger 44's. With no loss of its tailored feeling, it has a new waistline treatment that makes it easier than ever to wear. Those tucks at the waistline do the trick, giving a slender, fitted look, plus a softness in the blouse section.

Notice, too, the generous inverted pleats, front and back. This accurately sized pattern is suitable for flannel, tie silk, foulard, wool crepe, gingham, linen or pique. The pattern is cut in sizes 14 to 44. Size 18 (36) requires 4⅜ yards of 35-inch fabric.

OBJECT—Not MATRIMONY

AFRAID of arousing Melvin, Katrina sat by his bed and watched him doze. How peacefully he was sleeping, after days of intermittent fever and delirium! Resting as serenely as a child who'd never known sickness or pain. Yet only a week before his very life had been despaired of.

In those moments of apprehension, with death hovering over her fiance, Trina had remembered his very kind act, his every attention. And what had she given him in return for all his extraordinary unselfishness? Gratitude, to be sure, everlasting gratitude. And a promise of marriage!

But why that promise? If her aunt's death hadn't left her feeling so desperately alone, so anchorless, so terrified by thought of a future without any close ties; and if, after long resistance, she hadn't succumbed to Rosa's matchmaking arguments, would she, much as she admired Mel, ever have consented to be his wife?

The "special day nurse," Grace Eldridge, who, on Katrina's insistence, had been assigned to the case, entered the room with an orange albumen.

He Was Better.

"Sleeping still?" she observed with a fond smile for Trina from the opposite side of the bed. And touching Mel's arms, "You have company, young man, look who's here!"

Melvin rubbed his eyes and saw Katrina. "Oh, hello!" The greeting was hearty and lusty. "How nice of you to have come. And how rude of me to have slept during your visit."

Staying only long enough to see that her patient drank the orange albumen, the nurse disappeared, obligingly.

"You're feeling better today, lots better, aren't you? You are looking fine, almost normal," encouraged Trina. "To see you nobody would believe that you'd been so critically ill; that you'd given us such an awful, awful scare . . ."

"I did have a close call all right, didn't I? Imagine being stricken as I was, there in my office, with such an acute, such a dangerous attack of appendicitis! The doctor told me my only hope was an operation which I might—and might not survive. But I risked the operation and this morning he assured me I was coming along famously, that I'd soon be O. K., fit as a fiddle."

Worried Over Plans.

"Isn't that grand? Now you have nothing to worry about."

"Yes, I have," in smiling dispute. "One thing. Tomorrow was the date set for our wedding and here I am laid up . . ."

"You mustn't let that bother you." Katrina laid her hand comfortingly over his. "Fretting's bad for convalescents no matter if they are 'coming along famously.'"

"That's true. But after begging, persuading you to speed up our marriage, I feel terrible about tomorrow. I have an inspiration, though you may think it strange. Still, if you have no objection, we could be married right here in the hospital tomorrow. I've always heard it was bad luck to change wedding dates . . ."

"But you aren't superstitious?" cut in Katrina, who did indeed find the inspiration "strange."

"I don't know—I suspect I am, a bit. You see, Sheila Cunningham, after we'd been engaged for years, —changed the date we had fixed for our wedding, postponed it twice, in fact, before she finally broke off our betrothal altogether and deserted me for Hollywood and a career in pictures. So tell me, loveliness, how you really feel about a hospital ceremony?"

Had Wanted Sheila.

At his mention of Sheila's name Trina thought of the day following the operation when she, sitting at his bedside, had heard Mel, in delirium, calling for "Sheila, my darling Sheila." Of course he'd been out of his head then, but had Sheila Cunningham, whether she returned his love or not, ever been out of his heart? Any more than Taz Bronson had been out of hers. Had she, Katrina Harman, ever really supplanted the doctor's daughter in Melvin's affections?

Mel, moved by her silence and self-sacrificing as always, said: "You understand, sweet child, that I shall be governed entirely by your wishes. Just say what they are, won't you?"

Could she let this most admirable, most generous of men outdo her in unselfishness?

"My wishes are your wishes, Mel," she replied at last, smiling courageously. "At what time tomorrow would you like to be married?"

"At noon. Let us keep to the original hour. While you're here I'll make the arrangements. I will call the clergyman right now. Hand me the phone, will you, my dear?"

So Much to Do.

Katrina handed over the telephone which was on a bedside table and Mel "made the arrangements."

Awed by his precipitousness, she kept saying over and over to herself: "By this time tomorrow I'll be his wife . . . by this time tomorrow . . ."

Meanwhile she had any number of things to do. She was explaining them to Melvin when the nurse, on another quick trip to the room, delivered to him an air-mail special delivery letter, a communication that he laid on the bed without so much as a glance in its direction.

A kiss, dutiful, grateful, resigned, planted on Mel's forehead, a flying trip in a taxi, a lightning-quick change from street things into a hoop-skirted turquoise taffeta . . . another swift taxi ride and Trina, upon a dais that served as a miniature stage, was striking the opening chords of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" on the grand piano at the Beverleys, where she was entertaining that afternoon.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

What TODAY Means

"Taurus."

IF April 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. until 12:15 p. m., from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Anticipated troubles are not likely to be realized on this date. Favorable changes in conditions are very likely to alter those that have appeared unfavorable. It is advisable for you to maintain an optimistic mental attitude, and banish depressing thoughts through concentrating on cheerful ones. Economic conditions affecting business probably will have a stabilizing result. Social activities will bring about advantageous connections, which are likely to enlarge your circle of friends.

If a woman and April 25 is your birthday and if you have not already developed a talent you possess, it is about time you started to do so. Nature probably has endowed you with a fine speaking or singing voice. It is a mistake not to make practical use of our gifts. With your personality it is possible for you to develop a graciousness of manner, which should prove helpful in many ways.

You should be very careful about giving evidence of pronounced likes or dislikes, for if they are tactlessly shown an antagonistic condition may be created which it might be hard to counteract. You are admirably suited for married life and should obtain through it a great deal of happiness. The musical comedy, operatic stage, concert or lecture platform, as well as educational work and writing, are among some of the vocations that might provide lucrative as well as congenial employment.

If a man and April 25 is your natal day, be careful you do not let a lack of self-confidence cause you to put forth the effort you should to climb the ladder of success. You have ability which only requires an earnest endeavor to be made for it to gain recognition. The stage, lecture platform, sculptoring, painting, medicine, journalism, or field of finance are well worth your consideration.

Conjunctivitis Usually Appears at This Time of Year

It Seldom Affects Sight, But Impairs Use of the Eyes.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

CONJUNCTIVITIS means inflammation of the conjunctiva or the mucous membrane that lines the eyelids and extends over a portion of the eyeballs. Spring or vernal conjunctivitis usually appears during the first warm days of this season. Sometimes the condition comes on in the summer during the hay fever period, but no matter when it appears it is a manifestation similar to that of hay fever. In children occasionally the disease first appears between the ages of 12 and 15. In such instances it may return at about the same time each year for several years.

While the condition almost never affects the sight, it produces such severe symptoms of itching and burning that patients are often unable to use their eyes for any length of time during the course of the disease. Some cases show a congestion (redness) of the white of the eyes, especially around the cornea. In others, the changes are confined to the eyelids which show peculiar white raised spots. There is usually a sticky secretion which dries and adheres to the lids and collects in the corners of the eyes. While in mild cases there are no symptoms except during the warm weather, in severe cases some itching is present throughout the year.

Conjunctivitis is in most cases an allergic condition—that is, it occurs because the air or the food contains some substance to which the individual is sensitive. These substances may be pollen from trees or from any particular plant. Another factor may be lack of calcium or one of the vitamins in the diet. The disease is not due to bacteria and is therefore not contagious.

Skin tests often fail to reveal the exciting cause. However, it can not be inferred that the disease is not allergic, as the particular exciting substance may not be found in the materials tested.

Care must be taken not to confuse this form of conjuctivitis (allergic) with the several infectious types. It is easily mistaken for a more serious condition known as trachoma. A considerable aid in the diagnosis of the disease is afforded by microscopic examination of the secretions from the eyes, which will be found free from the types of bacteria that occur in infectious conjunctivitis.

When the true nature of the condition is not determined and cases are treated as ordinary types of conjunctivitis with the stronger antiseptics and astringents, the symptoms may be materially aggravated, hence in most cases the proper diagnosis is the important thing as the treatment is relatively simple.

Cold Applications Help.

Mild cases are afforded considerable relief by washing the eyes with a solution that contains a small amount of adrenalin and some local antiseptic. Cold applications will help, and the diet should be rich in vitamins. It is usually necessary to supply a mild alkaline wash to remove the sticky secretion. Many casese remain entirely free from symptoms as long as treatment is employed. Symptoms, however, may recur if treatment is stopped during the season. The condition has a tendency to recur at about the same time each year.

In more severe casese with large granulations (raised and thickened areas) on the lids, it is sometimes necessary to use radium. This must be used very carefully and in just the proper dosage to cause absorption of the granulations without damaging the deep structures. In cases treated by this method the granulations are replaced by smooth scar tissue and the symptoms are permanently relieved. While radium is being used, the local treatments are continued, as it requires some time for radium to produce its full effect.

Strictly Speaking

What About These?

1. What is the distinction between ingenuous and ingenious?

2. What is the difference, if any, between felicitate and facilitate?

3. Is it permissible to use character and reputation interchangeably?

Answers Here.

1. Ingenuous (in - JIN - u - us) means "of a superior character; noble; open; frank." Ingenious (in-JEEN-yus) means "possessed of genius or unusual mental powers; clever; intelligent."

2. To felicitate is "to congratulate, or to make happy." To facilitate is "to make easy, or less difficult."

3. They are often used interchangeably, but there is a difference in meaning. "A man's character," said Ralph Waldo Emerson, "is what he really is; what people think he is, is his reputation."

Cave Dwellers' Styles Revived

Animal Skins Are Used for Costumes Just as in Prehistoric Days.

The oldest has become the newest in spring fashions. Centuries ago, when everybody lived in caves and threw rocks at each other, the only materials used for clothing were animal skins. Now skins are coming back again. They are being used for entire costumes, just as they were in prehistoric days.

However, the new skins show scant trace of the animals from which they came. All the fur has been removed, leaving only the pelt. The leather has been put through a process which makes it as soft and pliable as flannel.

The possibilities for this new suedelike material seem to be limitless. Already it has been used for house dresses, afternoon frocks, dinner gowns, even formal evening clothes. It comes in full color range, including dead white. The skins stand a lot of hard wear and, far from being bulky, fit as smoothly as satin. They can be tailored as crisply as herringbone tweed and hold their shape better than most woolen fabrics.

In addition to the new suedelike skins, there are plenty of the furred pelts around this spring. Most of them are of the long-haired variety and are wrapped about the neckline of dress coats and suits. Fur cuffs, which went into hiding during the winter months, are beginning to appear with springtime costumes. There aren't many of them yet, but before the season goes much farther we're sure to see blue or beige fox strung around the bottom of sleeves.

The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

HEARINGS on the Sirovich bill to revise the civil service laws will resume tomorrow morning and continue through Saturday.

BAKER.

It is the intention of Representative William I. Sirovich, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the hearings and author of the bill, to complete hearings this week.

Representatives of the personnel offices of a number of departments and agencies not yet heard by the sub-committee, as well as representatives of several organizations, will have opportunity to testify tomorrow and Saturday.

The bill, H. R. 3980, provides for extension of the merit system, extension of classification to the field service, automatic promotions, liberalization of retirement legislation including a provision for optional 30-year retirement, and a Civil Service board of appeals.

Hearings have been promised within a few days on the Fulmer bill, H. R. 7674, for employe options with respect to quarters, subsistence and laundry in Government service.

At present, about 1,100 Government employes in Washington and about 18,000 in the field receive part of their compensation in the form of quarters, subsistence and laundry, and many of these would prefer to receive their salaries entirely in cash. The bill, introduced by Representative Hampton Fulmer, of South Carolina, would make this possible. It has been referred to the committee on expenditures in the executive departments.

Government Printing Office Unit No. 1, United Veterans of Foreign Wars, expects a capacity crowd at the dance and entertainment to be given tomorrow night in Harding Hall.

Montanans to Meet.

The Montana State Society will hold its annual spring party at Hotel Roosevelt Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Miss Jean Bishop (C), Treasury, will sing and Frank Portillo, (F), Government Printing Office, will give a comedy sketch. Miss Edna Rankin McKinnon, AAA, is chairman of the arrangements committee. William H. Harrison, Library of Congress, society president, urges all Montanans in Government service to attend.

Agriculture Field Meet.

Under temporary chairmanship of Neil F. Stevens, a group of Agriculture employes met yesterday afternoon to map plans for a general outing and field day for the department. Attending were G. F. Belt, Weather Bureau; A. C. Edwards, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; James L. Hitchens (F), AAA; H. E. Pryor, AAA; F. C. Robb, Economics; Mrs. Elsie Romero (P), Economics; T. H. Tromearne, Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, and J. E. Voll, Weather Bureau. Each was designated as a chairman, with powers to appoint committee members in his respective divisions.

ONE of the most popular and efficient individuals will be missed for two years at Navy Building through a transfer to China. He is Chief Quartermaster Robert M. O'Toole, a leading golfer, bowler and welfare worker at Marine Corps Headquarters, who left yesterday with Mrs. O'Toole for New York, where he will sail Friday aboard the U. S. Army transport Republic for San Francisco. There they will sail aboard the S. S. Van Beuren for Shanghai.

The O'Tooles were to have left next month, but a change in orders moved up the date for their departure.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Len Hewitt, the latter of Identification Division, Justice, entertained them at a surprise party recently at Maryland Club Gardens in honor of their fourth wedding anniversary.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF F, P or C follows your name in this column call in person on the Federal Diary editor today between 4:30 and 6 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: (F) Loew's Fox (stage, George Olson and his orchestra with Ethel Shutta; screen, Richard Barthelmess in "Four Hours to Kill"); or to (P) Loew's Palace (Jean Harlow, William Powell, Franchot Tone and May Robson in "Reckless"); or to (C) Loew's Columbia (Mary Ellis, Carl Brisson and Edward E. Horton in "All the King's Horses").

War Finance Office.

Miss Martha Blanchard, assistant chief clerk, has returned from a brief trip to New York. The A Cappella Choir of Washington, of which Miss Blanchard is a member, gave a concert at the last Town Hall meeting.

Mrs. Peggy Diffenbaugh has returned from a visit with her parents at Johnsonburg, Pa., where she attended the marriage of her sister.

Lloyd Boose, (P), chief, Personnel Division, together with his wife and two daughters, passed the Easter holidays with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Boose, at Williamsport, Md.

Mrs. Bertha Lewis, recently visited relatives in New Jersey.

Miss Marje Hampton (C), is back from New York, where she visited Miss May Nash, a former Washingtonian, but now of Burlington, Vt.

Forrest K. Howard (F), War, has just obtained a patent for an elevating mechanism on a movable sight base as a part of the rear sight for guns. The mechanism operates upon application of pressure.

IN the April issue of the Auk, journal of ornithology, published by the American Ornithologists Union, is a biographical memoir on "Edward William Nelson—Naturalist, 1855-1934," by Maj. Edward A. Goldman, Biological Survey, who was probably Dr. Nelson's most intimate friend.

Dr. Nelson was chief of the Biological Survey from 1916 to 1927, and from the time of his retirement until his death was associated in an honorary capacity with the Smithsonian Institution.

Manhattan Promenade.

New York, April 24.

The derelicts of the city call it the Market, and it opens for business and barter every Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, at Rivington and Willett streets, downtown . . . There are no showcases, no displays, from department stores or expensive jewelry shops . . . This is the floating street market of the forgotten men of the city, where a shoelace and a pair of brass cuff buttons can be bartered for a pair of worn shoes, where half of a pair of cheap opera glasses can be swapped for a pair of pants, where a pair of dice can be traded for a tie, where a loaf of bread can perhaps demand in exchange a coat, a vest and a soiled hat . . . On Easter Sunday morning, a battered derelict was exhibiting a tattered toothbrush, which he had wrapped cleverly in a piece of cellophane rescued from a pack of cigarettes . . . "Brand new toothbrush, 5 cents," he mumbled over and over . . . He finally swapped it for two razor blades to another derelict . . . The traders often retreat to open hallways to try on their purchases, for even the derelicts are too modest, and too respectful of the cops, to try on a pair of pants in the middle of Rivington street . . . It is a strange and fascinating sight, this Market of the down-and-outs and might-have-beens, more forceful in its recital of misery than any canvas ever painted or any story ever penned.

From the Newark (N. J.) Sunday Call: "Posing as Ed Sullivan, well-known Broadway columnist, Thomas Hayes early yesterday ran up a $16 bill in a cafe at 178 W. Kinney street. Then with a gracious wave of the hand he sauntered out. Becoming suspicious, the proprietor, Morris Silver, picked up Patrolmen Maseoko and Wiedmann and followed Hayes to another saloon on Charlton street. They found Hayes again introducing himself as the newspaper man, preparatory to opening another drinking account. Arrested, he said he was an engineer." If he got $16 credit, I'd say he was a magician.

Kay Francis, arriving by plane from the coast with several memos for me, is quite the loveliest carrier pigeon on the West to East run. She leaves Friday for Europe. Yesterday, when I dropped in at her apartment, all was confusion. Paul Warburg was directing her to sign legal-looking documents. Harry D'Arrast, the director, occupied a lounge wth Eleanor Boardman. Myron Selznick followed me through the door. "Did you get my wire?" asked Kay, "and was it funny? Dick Barthelmess helped me write it, after we read your column, and it seemed funny to us then." She had wired me following my recent column on the ages of screen and stage stars: "It is no flattery to call a lady a 'perfect 36.'"

I like this from "The Fabulous Wilson Mizner," the biography of the noted wit, soon to be published. Says Mizner, discussing religion: "Personally, whenever I felt like praying, I've just given some needy guy an unexpected five spot. Usually it makes him believe in God, and I have always felt that if there is a God I'd get it back again. And even if I didn't, usually I had no real kick coming—having snatched it in some manner from some wealthy blockhead at the outset."

Radio Tonight Carries High Rent Protests

Tonight, from 8:05 to 9 o'clock, WJSV will broadcast the mass meeting at the Department of Labor Auditorium. Led by C. M. Maples, of the Washington Central Labor Union rent committee, speakers will lodge protests against the prevailing high rents in the District. Other speakers: Senator Arthur Capper, John Donovan and Representative Henry Ellenbogan, whose bill on rental reductions is pending.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they ain't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Insist. 25c at drug stores. © 1935 C. M. Co.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

Daniel Frohman, 84-year-old dean of the American Theater, goes on the air, WRC, at 7:15 tonight in behalf of the Actors' Fund Benefit at the National Theater Sunday night. Roy Roberts and Nancy Sheridan, leading man and woman, will be introduced; Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, character actress, and Gracie Barrie, now playing at the Earle, will have parts on the half-hour program.

S. E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater, will outline his plans for the coming season, and Andrew R. Kelley, dramatic critic, will be master of ceremonies.

The Actors Fund Home for aged and indigent members of the profession is entirely supported by the proceeds of special performances like that of Sunday night.

WRC's Jim McGrath has turned Dan Cupid. During the Navy Band concerts he has a habit of mingling with the audience, asking people where they're from. One day he discovered two families from Maine, introduced them, whereupon the two families decided to travel together to their mutual destination, Florida. It turned out that a young man in one family married a young lady in the other, and Jim is rather pleased.

NBC states that its pet mountain boy, Charlie King, has been signed for a 13-week contract with RKO-Keith. Upon his return, he'll be back on the local NBC air.

Impressionism enters the field of radio, when, on WMAL at 8 p. m., "The Ballet of Light" brings swift-moving incidents from history—incidents that show the influence of light in the progress of the world. Torches of ancient Egypt, India, the Roman Empire, the Pilgrim lanterns burning whale oil and the lights on modern Broadway are woven into a sound tapestry whose distinctive pattern is emotion, not idea.

Highlights of the National Federation of Music Clubs' convention are broadcast over Columbia network, the first of the series coming on WJSV, 11:30 a. m. today. George McManus, concert pianist, will demonstrate the Moor double key-board piano, an instrument with a remarkable range of tone color, dynamics and a variety of effects.

Guests and hosts:

Judith Anderson, Ann Southern and the Dresdon Boys' Choir are on Rudy Vallee's program, WRC, 8 p. m. Miss Anderson is heard in a one-act play, "The Life Line," by Jean Cocteau.

Show Boat guests include Mario Chamlee and George Frame Brown, who introduce themselves as the new characters "Tony and Gus" and Charles Magnante, accordionist. Listen in for a preview of "Tony and Gus," which starts on WMAL Monday.

Speeches:

American Chemical Industries program, WMAL, 3:15 p. m.

Dr. John Donaldson on the G. W. U. Forum, WMAL, 7:45 p. m., "Economic Planning—National and International."

Representative Jennings Randolph, WMAL, 9:45 p. m., "Wheeler-Rayburn Holding Co. Bill."

Economics talk on WMAL, 10:45 p. m., presents Dr. L. C. Gray and Charles W. Eliot.

Genevieve Hendricks, interior decorator, is on the Better Housing program, WJSV, 10:45 a. m. Her subject, "Opportunities in Remodeling."

There are still a few enthusiastic early risers. Tuesday Sundial Arthur announced that he intended to do a little early flying Wednesday morning, and issued a casual invitation to please come and see the show. So when he arrived at the airport yesterday at 5:30 a. m. he found 150 people waiting to go up. Nobody was disappointed for he chartered a plane and pilot and took all 150 of them for a short spin. Next time, he says, he won't mention his intentions.

5 Lose Lives In Wreckage Of 3 Autos

Mother and 3 Children Are Among Victims of Accident.

Only 1 Survives Crash; 4 to Be Buried in Virginia Today.

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., April 24.—A mother and her three children, who perished in the flames that consumed two automobiles in an early morning collision at Spout Springs today, will be interred tomorow afternoon in Big Island Cemetery following a joint funeral service at Big Island Baptist Church.

The fifth victim, W. Dabney Anderson, will be buried in the family cemetery after funeral services at 2:30 p. m. Friday at his home near Vera.

Third Car Hits Wreckage.

A moment after the first collision, a third car, operated by Richard Hess, Richmond salesman, ran into the wreckage when Hess drove over the hill and was unable to stop in time. Hess was treated for a cut over the eye.

Hess and J. H. Cyrus, who lives near the scene, were trying to extricate the Mattoxes from their machine when the car burst into flames, driving back the rescuers and burning the bodies in the Mattox car beyond recognition. It was some time before their identity could be established. Cyrus said there was no outcry after the collision and he believed the occupants were dead before the fire. Anderson's machine was not burned.

Anderson was thrown clear of his car and died of internal injuries after being carried to the Cyrus home.

Driver Posts Bond.

Lieut. J. A. Bingham, of the State police, lodged a technical charge of reckless driving against Hess in order to bring the matter into court. Hess posted $1,000 bond to appear in the trial justice's court in Appomattox County for a hearing as a matter of formality.

Surviving Mrs. Mattox are her husband, three young children, four brothers, R. H., J. B. and C. F. Cox, of Lynchburg, and J. S. Cox, of Tennessee, and a sister, Mrs. V. T. Strickler, of Buena Vista.

The Mattoxes were taking Miss Roberta Mattox back to Farmville Teachers College, where she was a senior, when they met their death.

Senator Smith Calls on Peery For Blue Law

Opponent of Governor in Primary Demands Beerless Sundays.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 24.—Senator W. Worth Smith, jr., of Louisa, in a public statement today called upon Gov. Peery "to exercise his powers and prohibit the sale of beer and wine on Sunday."

Senator Smith, who opposed Gov. Peery in the gubernatorial primary, issued a statement yesterday in which he expressed a personal opposition to the sale of beer and wines on Sunday.

His statement today follows:

"In the name of the short ballot, to which I have always been against, I call upon the Governor of the State of Virginia to exercise his powers and prohibit the sale of beer and wine on Sunday. He can accomplish this in the following manner if he desires:

"He can direct his ABC board serving at his will to hold under its wide powers that any place where beer or wine is sold on Sunday shall be considered to be an unfit place to sell beer and wine, and revoke the license at once. Another easy way is to write three words in the permit, viz., 'Except on Sunday.'

"I must ask this question: Where is the great Baptist former Governor of Virginia, John Garland Pollard, that he has not devised ways and means to correct this evil, and where is the great Methodist now Governor of Virginia, from the dry ninth, that he has not seen a way if he wants to stop the sale of beer and wine on Sunday? In fact, where is the whole State administration, who do not want any one to serve in the Senate of Virginia who entertains individual ideas, that they have not found some method through their own channel of intelligence that would correct this evil situation?

"I am forced to but one conclusion and that is that our present administration operating under the short ballot, now controlled by Gov. Peery, unless he is controlled by others, necessarily favors the sale of beer and wine promiscuously on the sabbath day."

Beer Revenue Up In Virginia in April

Richmond, Va., April 24 (AP).—State beer excise tax collections in April totaled $55,791.50, the State Tax Department's report showed today.

The collection in the same period last year was $41,755.09.

Bryants Announce Marriage.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 24.—Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Bryant, of Amherst County, announce the marriage of their daughter, Gertie Lou Bryant, to Marshall J. Childress, of Bent Creek, which was solemnized April 20 at Amherst, the Rev. Lloyd C. Moore officiating. They will live near Bent Creek.

Rector Marks Twelve Years In One Parish

Dr. Boogher Now Dean of Clergymen Serving in Fredericksburg.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 24.—The Rev. Dudley Boogher, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, who has the distinction of being the dean of Fredericksburg clergy from the standpoint of service here, this week celebrated the twelfth anniversary of his rectorship at St. George's.

The Rev. Mr. Boogher came to Fredericksburg in 1923 from Martinsburg, W. Va. He is a native of St. Louis, Mo., and at 18 came to Virginia to enroll at Roanoke College, from which he was graduated, to later attend the Virginia Theological Seminary at Alexandria.

Before coming to Fredericksburg, the Rev. Mr. Boogher had six other charges, his first being assistant rector at old St. John's Church in Hampton. Later, he was rector in Roanoke parish, and from there went to Clifton Forge, Parkersburg and Martinsburg.

The Rev. and Mrs. Boogher have three children, the Rev. Dudley A. Boogher, rector at McIlhaney parish in Albemarle County; Benton T. Boogher, and Mrs. Albert Smoot, of Alexandria.

The officers and vestry of St. George's are M. M. Lewis, senior warden; Edgar M. Young, junior warden; George L. Hunter, jr., treasurer; William K. Goolrick, recorder; F. M. Chichester, H. K. Swetser, A. P. Thornton, W. W. Braxton, George W. Shepherd, C. Archer Smith, A. F. Turner, Charles H. Lewis, A. C. Wooding and W. T. Pratt.

When St. George's parish came into existence is not certain, but it is of record as being established when Spotsylvania County was created in 1720. Col. Henry Willis contracted to build a church on the present site for 75,000s of tobacco, or about $5,000, in 1732. The first rector was sent by the Governor, and was the Rev. Patrick Henry, uncle of the great orator.

In the parish school, taught by the Rev. James Marye, jr., George Washington was educated and here he wrote his "Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior." Washington's parents and brothers and sisters were all members of or attendants in the church.

In 1816, a brick church was built after the other burned. In 1849, the present edifice was completed. Gen. Lee attended this church daily during conference in 1869.

Heads Anniversary Program.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 24.—Lawrence R. Lynch, Clarksburg lawyer and descendant of a pioneer family in this section, has been named chairman of a committee to formulate a program for the 150th anniversary of Clarksburg this summer. The committee will submit its outline to a general committee.

Peery Seeks PWA's Help For Hospital

Ickes Asked to Supply Funds for Unit at Williamsburg.

Administrator Withholds Reply on New Ward for Insane.

By the Associated Press.

A direct request was made yesterday of Secretary Ickes by Gov. Peery of Virginia for aid in building a new unit of the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg, Va.

Ickes, public works administrator, advised the Governor that plans had not matured sufficiently under the works relief plan to advise him definitely what could be done.

The hospital improvement calls for expenditure of $175,000 for constructing a unit on Dunbar Farm, 2 miles west of Williamsburg. The new unit, which would include several buildings, would be used to take care of the most serious cases.

Peery and the hospital authorities hoped to obtain from PWA a portion of the $175,000 needed under the grant and loan basis which operated during the primary stage of the PWA program.

The Governor was accompanied by George P. Coleman, chairman of the Eastern State Hospital board; Ashton Ovell, attorney for the board, and Dr. George W. Brown, hospital superintendent. The conference was arranged by Senator Byrd, who visited Ickes with Peery and his delegation.

'King's' in His Cave Waiting for 'Queen'

Apple Blossom "Monarch" Will Officiate Sunday.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Market, Va., April 24.—With pomp and ceremony, far underground in Endless Caverns, Mlle. Nella Veverka, daughter of the Czechoslovakian Minister to the United States, will be welcomed Sunday as "Queen Shenandoah XII" of the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival by "The Mountain King," who lives in the caverns' depths.

Mlle. Veverka will rule May 2 and 3 as queen at Winchester amid pink apple blossoms, but on Sunday she will rule over "rock gardens" in Endless Caverns.

In a motor car flying the American and Czechoslovakian flags, escorted by a motorcycle squadron of Virginia State police, and accompanied by an entourage, "Queen Nella" will leave the Czechoslovakian Legation in Washington at 2 p. m. Sunday. Four automobiles will carry the royal party first to Winchester and then down the Shenandoah Valley to Endless Caverns.

Accompanying the queen will be her father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Veverka; her brother, Ferdinand Veverka, jr.; six members of the Czechoslovakian Legation, Director General Fred A. Reed, jr., and Thomas B. Byrd, chairman of the festival's executive committee.

Students at W. and L. To Present 'Richelieu'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lexington, Va., April 24.—With Lewis McMurran, of Newport News, Va., playing the title role, the Washington and Lee Troubadours will present "Richelieu" Friday to usher in a full week-end of social events at the university. The play will be given just before the opening dance of the spring set at Washington and Lee.

The first of the spring dances Friday at Doremus gymnasium, which is scheduled to start just after the curtain falls on the Troubadours' play, will be led by Harry Rhett, of Huntsville, Ala., president of the "13" Club at the university, and Miss Sue Johnson, of Lynchburg, Va.

Pikeside Student Wins West Virginia Contest

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 24.—Robert Kackley, of Pikeside, won the higest honors among elementary school students in the county in the annual Knights of the Golden Horseshoe Contest, a test in West Virginia history, sponsored by the State department of education, recently given here. Thirty-four took the examination.

1,000 Attend Sale Of Hunt Club Articles

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., April 24.—Approximately 1,000 people from Warren, Rappahannock, Fauquier, Loudoun and Prince William counties attended the sale of furnishings of the Orange County Hunt Club at The Plains, 25 miles east of here, yesterday.

The property of 43 rooms, including servants' quarters, was purchased recently by Henry Skinker and Elizabeth S. Kernan. The buildings may be moved from their present site. The Orange County Hunt Club is the second oldest hunt club in northern Virginia.

Bees Take Possession Of Roanoke Library

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., April 24.—Mrs. C. D. Garland's library has become an apiary.

A swarm of bees flew into the house uninvited three days ago and assembled in the library. Some, evidently better informed on etiquette, withdrew to the guest room.

Mrs. Garland made a brief but ineffectual attempt to evict the uninvited guests. Now another swarm has attached itself to a tree in the yard.

Farley to Help Commemorate Famed Battle

Expects Roosevelt Will See Chancellorsville Celebration.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 24.—James A. Farley, Postmaster General and chairman of the national Democratic committee, in addition to President Roosevelt, is expeted to attend the celebration of the Battle of Chancellorsville here May 2, it was said today.

Mr. Farley said: "If the President comes, I'll certainly be there, and I don't think there is much doubt about his being present although it can not be stated officially at this time. Even if something should arise to interfere with the President's desire to observe this extraordinary historical reproduction, I hope that my duties will permit me to attend.

"The reenactment of this memorable battle which will stand for all time as a symbol of the heroism of the manhood of both the North and the South, is a worthy enterprise and I commend the people for calling to public attention this lasting demonstration of American bravery the site of which is now a national memorial park," he added.

General Atkinson Invited to "Battle"

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Petersburg, Va., April 24.—Gen. Homer Atkinson, past commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, has been invited to attend the reenactment of the battle of Chancellorsville, May 2, by F. M. Chichester, general chairman. The occasion is sponsored by the Fredericksburg Spotsylvania National Battlefield Park.

Mount Airy School Fund Is Approved

Carroll County Authorizes $30,569 Outlay.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., April 24.—The Carroll County commissioners approved the expenditure of $30,569 yesterday for construction of a new high school building at Mount Airy.

The amount granted by the county commissioners and insurance, totaling $29,678 on the old building recently destroyed by fire, represent a total outlay of $60,247.

The building will be about twice as large as the former structure, making the use of portables, which have been the cause of numerous protests by Mount Airy citizens, unnecessary. Any ordinary increase in enrollment has been provided for in the plans for the building, it was said, as with only 423 pupils enrolled the new high school will have 900 more square feet of floor space than the Manchester School, which accommodates 468 pupils.

The commissioners said any unusual increase in enrollment will be taken care of by transferring 75 pupils in the Gypsie Hill section to New Windsor, the transfer being possible in two years, when a new road will be completed from Marston to Gypsie Hill and a modern high school erected at New Windsor.

Culpeper, Va., April 24.—Fairfax Commandery, No. 25, Knights Templar, of Virginia, has elected the following officers: Dr. W. Russell Colvin, eminent commander; Hguh Ryan, generallissimo; R. E. Mundy, captain general; Robert W. Hiffman, treasurer; R. H. Hutcherson, recorder; L. W. Shelhorse, senior warden; Leon R. Waters, junior warden; Dr. T. W. Hooper, prelate; Robert Button, standard bearer; Walton Loving, sword bearer; W. P. Priddy, warder, and Henry P. Walton, sentinel.

Members of the commandery will attend special services at the Culpeper Baptist Church Sunday, April 28, preceding installation of officers.

Virginia Milk Men to Meet.

Petersburg, Va., April 24 (AP).—Dairymen of the Petersburg-Hopewell milk area will meet here tomorrow night. This will be the first general meeting of the industry held since the appointment of Virgil Coberly to succeed E. H. Crutchfield, whose resignation became effective two weeks ago.

Nice to Take Action Today On Banking

Governor Also Plans to Consult Advisers on Appointments.

Returns to Annapolis After 2-Day Trip to Western Maryland.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 24.—Gov. Harry W. Nice, who completed a two-day swing through Western Maryland tonight, plans to spend tomorrow at his Baltimore offices and, among other business, will take final action on a number of bills passed during the recent session of the General Assembly. He also expects to hold conferences with advisers who have been assisting him in passing on approximately 500 measures before him, and with political friends on appointments to State offices that must be made by May 1.

Among the bills slated to receive executive approval tomorrow are several Administration measures designed to strengthen the State banking laws, as well as conform with Federal statutes. More than a dozen such bills were passed by the Assembly.

The other bills, it is said, will be local for the several counties. Included in this group are a beer bill for hitherto "bone-dry" Garrett County, which carries a referendum on sale of beer. Another referendum proposal authorizes the Mayor and council of Hyattsville to levy a tax of from 5 to 7 cents for maintenance of a public library. This measure provoked much controversy among town officials.

Gov. Nice closed his two-day trip this afternoon by attending services for former Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Allegany County, at Silver Spring this afternoon. He addressed a banquet of the Isaac Walton League at Hagerstown last night.

Virginia Will Get 7 More CCC Camps

Construction Is Ordered, Starting at Once.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 24.—Construction of seven new Civilian Conservation Corps camps will be started in Virginia at once, under orders issued today at the Army's Third Corps Area headquarters in Baltimore.

The camps will be occupied by companies to be transferred from other camps where work projects are being completed. The buildings will be of the portable type.

The camps will be located at Lawrenceville, Danville, Joplin, Spout Springs, Big Stone Gap, Fork Union and in Hanover County.

Loudoun Jury Sends Bluemonter to Jail

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., April 24.—After deliberating two hours, a jury in Loudoun County Circuit Court sentenced Jesse Tumblin, 48, of Bluemont, to two years and six months in the penitentiary on a charge of shooting Floyd Hummer, also of Bluemont, on the night of March 16.

The shooting is said to have followed an argument over paying for liquor which it was alleged Hummer got from Tumblin's store. Tumblin's sentence will begin at once.

Citizens of Gambrills Protest Rail Shutdown

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (AP).—Another protest to the proposed discontinuance of service by the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railway has been received by the Maryland public service commission.

The Gambrills Civic Association of Gambrills, Md., has announced it will be represented at the hearing April 29.

Crash Fails to Keep Bank Chief From Job

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, April 24.—M. E. Bristow, State commissioner of insurance and banking, came to his office today on crutches with his head wrapped in bandages. He had been injured in an automobile accident between Abingdon and Marion Monday night.

A passenger in a car driven by W. R. Gardner, of the banking division's staff of examiners, Mr. Bristow was injured when the machine crashed into a lumber truck, which, out of gas, was backing down a hill in the middle of the road. A piece of lumber was thrust through the car from end to end.

Rail Crossings Target of Drive In Hagerstown

City Seeks Elimination of Several on Two Highways.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 24.—A movement has been started here by Mayor I. M. Wertz in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce to have a number of grade crossing on routes 11 and 40 eliminated under the Federal program.

The chamber directors at a conference with the mayor, named a committee, consisting of its president, John B. Ferguson, and one member of the board, to cooperate with city officials.

A conference will be arranged with Dr. Homer L. Tabler, who is to be named chairman of the State roads commission, as soon as he assumes office.

There are two crossings on route 40 within the corporate limits, which it is planned to eliminate by rerouting the highway through the city. Plans were drawn several years ago by the Western Maryland, Pennsylvania and Norfolk & Western railway companies for tunnels beneath the tracks of the three railroads. These plans are now ready when Federal funds are made available.

There are four grade crossings on route 11 within the corporate limits, and several dangerous crossings in the county which will be included in the program tentatively discussed by the mayor and chamber.

The Hagerstown Chamber went on record nearly two years ago as favoring grade-crossing elimination in reducing unemployment and introduced a resolution to this effect at the annual convention of the United States Chamber held in Washington.

Capital Pastor Named Commencement Speaker

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Reedville, Va., April 24.—The commencement exercises of Julius Rosenwald Colored High School will be held at Shiloh Chapel June 5. Prof. D. A. Wilkerson, head of the secondary education department at Virginia State College, will be the commencement speaker. A class of 17 will receive diplomas.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached June 2. The Rev. J. M. Ellison, former principal of the Julius Rosenwald School and now pastor of Zion Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., and instructor of religious education at Howard University, is expected to deliver the sermon.

Rutherford Is Elected To Student Presidency

Charlottesville, Va., April 24 (AP).—Penn Rutherford, of Roanoke, defeated W. Scott Carter, of Charlottesville, for student president of the University Engineering School in an election yesterday.

Liquor Graft Not Paid Lee, Hodges Says

Ex-Sheriff Swears That Attorney Didn't Know of Protection.

Identity of 'Other Man' Still a Secret in Roanoke Trial.

By the Associated Press.

Roanoke, Va., April 24.—D. Wilson Hodges, former sheriff of Franklin County, today testified under cross-examination that so far as he knew Commonwealth's Attorney Charles Carter Lee never received any of the money Hodges said was paid to officers as "protection money" by distillers.

The statement came late today as the high spot of the trial in United States District Court of 23 persons charged with a conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws.

Hodges amplified his statement to say that Lee, a grandson of the elder brother of Gen. Robert E. Lee, did not have knowledge of the fact that Sheriff Hodges and his deputies were receiving such funds, as far as Hodges knew.

Lee Not "Other Man."

Hodges and his brother, J. P. Hodges, jr., occupied the stand almost all day, and Wilson Hodges corroborated, to a large extent, the testimony of his brother that whisky was distilled, transported and sold in Franklin County under a system by which distillers paid regular amounts to officers for non-interference with their operations.

Both of the Hodges brothers had mentioned that Jeff Richards, a deputy sheriff now deceased, had retained a share of money split up among officers for "another man" who was not named. Stephen D. Timberlake, Staunton attorney representing Lee, drew from Wilson Hodges the statement that Lee was not this "other man," as far as he knew, but, on the contrary, was a vigorous prosecutor with a reputation of being rather severe.

Samuel R. Price, representing a group of the defendants, also obtained from Wilson Hodges a statement that Deputy Sheriffs Greer, Maxie and Wray, all named in the indictment and supporters of Hodges for re-election, did not receive any of the money, as far as he knew.

Political Picture Studied.

Price questioned Wilson Hodges closely as to whether he had threatened to get even with Henry Abshire, another deputy under indictment, because he received only three votes in Abshire's district when there were five votes in the Abshire family. Hodges denied that he had.

Price also asked Wilson Hodges if it was not true that he had said he would do almost anything to obtain revenge on Edgar A. Beckett, a State prohibition officer now under indictment, who opposed him for re-election. Hodges denied it.

Washington Theater Managements Pledge Their Support to Actors Fund Benefit

Many Stars to Be Present at Special Frolic

By Nelson B. Bell.

Daniel Frohman, venerable dean of the American Theater and for more than half a century president of the Actors' Fund of America, yesterday was assured the complete co-operation of John J. Payette, general manager of the Warner Brothers interests in the Washington territory, and Manager Carter Barron of the eastern division of Loew's, Inc., in the promotion of the actors' fund benefit performance scheduled for Sunday night in the National Theater.

From the Loew Theaters will come Gertrude Niesen, exotic young radio and stage star; Cookie Bowers, the source of many of the vocal commotions heard from the screen, and other acts booked for next week's stage entertainment at Loew's Fox.

The Warner Brothers will contribute Johnny Perkins, the rotund apostle of merrymaking and mirth—songs, dances and funny sayings! —Ruth Petty, the 32 Roxyettes, in Washington through the courtesy of Sam Rothafel (Roxy); Stan Kavanaugh, the antipodean juggler with a sense of humor, and Herb Cook and His Three Little Words, all important participants in the stage goings-on at the Earle for the week beginning Friday.

These acts will be in addition to the appearances of guest stars coming down from New York and the opening performance of "Accent on Youth," the opening bill of the eleventh annual "little season" of the National Theater Players.

No Advance in Prices.

"Accent on Youth," the sparkling comedy by Samson Raphaelson, currently playing the Plymouth Theater in New York, will enlist the full roster of the National Theater Players, including Joy Roberts, Nancy Sheridan, Ruth Lee, Raymond Bramley, Edwina Wise, Warren Parker, Adelaide Hibbard, Forrest Orr and J. Arthur Young.

The play will be given first on Sunday night's program, with the added benefit attractions to follow immediately, the whole comprising an entertainment that will be on a par with any Actors' Fund Benefit program ever presented in the Capital.

Mr. Frohman, as is his immemorial custom, will personally introduce his special guests and explain briefly the aims and purposes of the Actors' Fund and its Actors' Fund Home on Staten Island, N. Y., which cares for aged and indigent members of the theatrical profession, whose lifetimes of effort have not accumulated them a competence or a means of livelihood in their declining years.

It is important that there will be no advance in prices for this gala Sunday evening performance. The regular admission charges assessed for the National Theater Players' spring and summer season will prevail, which, in itself, should be sufficient inducement to pack the house for a bargain evening in the theater.

Large representations of Washington's official, diplomatic, social and professional circles are expected to be present.

After having been slightly baffled by the seemingly aimless lunging about of large armies of obviously bewildered soldiery in the Battle of Waterloo sequences of "The Iron Duke," the George Arliss picture that is packing them in at the Belasco, it became increasingly a source of wonder that picture producers, when they come upon a requirement of this kind, do not revert to Victor Hugo's masterful "aside" on Waterloo, interpolated into the prodigious story of his greatest of man hunts, "Les Miserables." Here is a coherent, cogent and comprehensive analysis and description of the battle and the reasons for its outcome that would have elucidated many of the elements of the conflict that "The Iron Duke" leaves hazy, nebulous and unexplained. Read this portion of "Les Miserables" some time—if you can find it in the several thousand pages of the India paper edition of the work that comes in three closely printed volumes.

The Drum-Stick, Please.

It all started when Charlie Simpson made George Olsen a present of the snakewood drum sticks.

Simpson trained his dog and monkey show in one of the lofts of Daddy Olsen's numerous warehouses and he had observed the lad's musical ability as expressed on the piano and violin. The sticks, however, were all that he did give George, thus compelling the grateful young recipient of his bounty to make use of everything from the grand piano to the kitchen stove for a drum—something after the manner of Jack Powell, no doubt.

Then the Lincoln High School organized its orchestra and the musical talent gathered 'round. George sat in the last seat of the last row and by the time the verbal interrogation got around to him, the orchestra was top-heavy with fiddlers and pianoforte plunkers. On the spur of the moment—and, he admits, with no conscience whatever—he signed for the drums and, naturally, was accepted, being the only one.

The $20 gold piece his mother had given him on his birthday went for a trap drum. The old bass drum, he managed to borrow from the playhouse downtown. The pedal and what little other equipment he had, he made up out of his own skull and manufactured with his own "ten tiny fingertips."

Soon Was Leader.

In two months' time he was not only leading the orchestra and the school band, but also had six lads doing jazz work around town.

Next, the Hill Military Academy in Portland, Oreg.

George swung a mean drum major's baton and when they started for the football field, George led his band all over town getting there. After arriving at the field, he would lead the stands in a few desultory cheers and then scramble into his football togs. On the field he was the star quarter back of the State.

As soon as the game was over, he was off to the showers, into his drum major's uniform and then the triumphant, round-about march back through town to the college.

This, in case you have wondered, was the genesis of the baton swinging bit he still does in the course of his stunning band act, current on the stage at Loew's Fox Theater.

Biographical Dots and Dashes.

George Olsen was born in Portland, Oreg. . . . Played violin at 8, piano at 11 . . . The Donatella Brothers and Carmen act, on this week's stage bill at the Earle, consists of four brothers—Romeo, 27; Guido, 29; Joe, 21, and Colombo, 31—Carmen, the one-girl in the turn, and Daddy and Mama Donatella. Signor and Signora Donatella both have played on the stage for more than 50 years, she having started as a child of 3. They have played all over Europe and Mother Donatella speaks five languages—German, Spanish, Italian, French and English. She is an expert not only on the tambourine, the only "instrument" she plays in the current act, but also on the harp, guitar and mandolin. So now you know.

Little Theater Revived.

Incorporation papers were filed Monday for Theater Alliance, a co-operative organization with temporary headquarters at 115 West Forty-fourth street, New York, founded by a group of well-known men and women active in various phases of the theater, the purpose of which will be the establishment of a repertory theater in New York City.

Theater Alliance was launched at a public meeting last Sunday at the Belasco Theater at which representatives of stage groups as well as other fields of public endeavor voiced their approval and need of such an organization.

Noted Speakers.

The speakers at the organization meeting, at which Elmer Rice presided, included William Allen White, journalist and publisher; Clayton Hamilton, critic; Peggy Wood and Sam Jaffe, actors; Anita Block, head of the play-reading department of the Theater Guild; Helen Arthur, former manager of the Neighborhood Playhouse, and I. A. Hirschmann, vice-president of Saks-Fifth avenue.

Theater Alliance plans to open its first season in September and will adhere strictly to the repertory system in presenting five plays. No theater has as yet been chosen, but it will be one with modern equipment and sufficiently capacious to accommodate a studio group, which, recruited from graduate students of drama workshops all over the country, is to be an important adjunct of the organization and its source of future talent.

On Monday evening, Frances Starr—in private life Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington—one of the foremost stars of the American theater, spoke to the radio audience in a broadcast over Station WRC on the subject of the little theater movement in this country.

Miss Starr Aids Guild.

Miss Starr's appearance was sponsored by the Drama Guild of Washington as a part of their program for the establishment of a civic theater in this city.

In the closing words of her talk Miss Starr stated it as her opinion that the time is propitious for the organization of an All-Washington Theater and that the community sincerely desirous of fostering so worthy a cause must support it by subscription of both funds and labor, combined in a single effort to develop a theater capable of upholding the highest standards of entertainment and theatrical art.

All of this has the familiar ring of arguments advanced in these columns so frequently during the past two years that we have hesitated to reiterate them lately.

That eminent Briton, Maurice Browne, during a residence of 18 years in this country, demonstrated what could be done with the little theater idea, then went on to produce "Journey's End," of which he once had 14 companies on tour, and now owns a chain of de luxe West End playhouses in London.

It just goes to show.

"After Dark," Dion Boucicault's most famous melodrama, will open the second season of the Roadside Theater on Monday, June 17. Seven productions in all are scheduled, a new one opening every other Monday night—the same policy that was inaugurated last season but not too rigidly adhered to owing to the popularity of several of the plays which necessitated extended runs. Casting of "After Dark" will be the primary object of the try-outs being held tonight and tomorrow night in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia road northwest. In addition, the Roadsiders hope to recruit a large acting organization from which they will be able to cast the other six plays.

Old Friends Meet Again.

That is more or less why the Kaleidoscope, prospering under the enterprising sponsorship of a couple of adventurous young Washington newspaper guys, is being graced by a Grace and probably will be nicked by a Nick this week.

Gracie Barrie was honor guest at the K-&c., last night and Nick Lucas will be on Satiddy night. It seems that Joe Bell, guitarist at the K-&c., once trouped in vaudeville with Gracie, now in her final week of a three-week engagement as headliner on the stage at the Earle Theater, and acquired both his guitar and his technique upon it from the nimble-fingered and sweet-voiced troubadour, Signor Lucas.

Hence—if you need a hence.

Following tonight's performance at the National, Jane Cowl, Jane Halliday and the other members of the cast of "Rain From Heaven" will be guests of Capt. and Mrs. S. A. Greenwell at an after-theater supper in their home at 2319 Twentieth street northwest. Mrs. Greenwell is a sister of Lily Cahill, importantly cast in Miss Cowl's support, whom she is entertaining as house guest during the local engagement of the Behrman play.

Last Call Note.

Who says an airplane trip to Bermuda (or Hains Point) for the 15 minutes on the air over WJSV today at 1:15?

Unique Star Wears Unusual Gown

"Daphne's Debut"

"DAPHNE'S DEBUT." Maiden performance of the musical comedy in three acts and 13 scenes, with book, lyrics and music by Dorothy Radford. Staged and directed by the author-composer; dances under the supervision of Peggy Kelly and Charles Demmo. Girls' chorus directed by Jane Howrey, men's by Justin Lawrie. At the Mayflower Hotel. Reviewed Tuesday night by W. A. Whitney.

"Daphne's Debut," a mild satire on "coming out" parties, was given its maiden performance last evening at the Mayflower Hotel as a benefit performance for the Civic Betterment Fund.

An audience of some 300 gathered in the grand ballroom and greeted with enthusiasm Dorothy Radford's work, which gave to Washington some of the best music ever penned for an amateur production.

Musically, last evening's performance was noteworthy, even though from other standards of theatrical judgment it left something to be desired. The story, for the type of production, is sufficiently strong, but the 13 scenes of the three acts failed to coalesce into a compact entity.

But the score! Sixteen numbers are spotted throughout the action and are far above the ordinary music written for home-made satires. "Sailing," a charming will-you-love-me-when duet, and the reflective "In My Memory" stand out especially among the selections. In a lighter motif, "Take It on the Chin," the lament of Daphne's father, is also fine.

Those Who Scored.

Among the members of the company Isham Keith and Marie McIntyre, as Daphne's parents, are outstanding for excellence in acting. Eleanor Brandon Hurd, as Daphne, was charming. So was Adelaide Moffett as Silphine, about whom the production largely revolves. Other members of the company were satisfactory.

Men's Chorus: John W. Burton, William J. Corvo, Weston Knox, Chester W. Stilson, R. C. Donohue, Charles McLendon, E. Kenneth Heitkamp, Frederick S. Laise and David Moore.

Among Washington's producing groups none has made such a commendable showing in so short a time as the Studio of Theater Arts.

"A Doll's House" proved last night to be the studio's greatest achievement to date and one of the most professionally acted and staged dramas in the long list of notable presentations of local acting groups.

That the company entertained no delusions concerning the magnitude of the task to which it had set itself, was manifest in word and deed. They played the story of martial tragedy with realism, bringing out the pointed philosophical and psychological truths and all the inherent drama with a forcefulness which never stepped over the line into the realm of melodrama. No overtones of burlesque crept into the playing as so frequently happens, but rather there was presented a straight, hard-played stark drama of the unforunate, but inevitable, dissolution of what seemed the perfect marriage.

Miss Steffey Triumphs.

As the chief occupant of this Doll's House, Phoebe Steffey, as Nora, did a remarkable piece of work. While her rather high-pitched voice did not entirely fit the part, Miss Steffey rose above that fault and, in the third act, when Nora finally tells Torvald she is leaving him, she rose to rarefied heights—a superb reading, marked by quiet deliberation and thoughtfulness.

Smug, proud, self-complacent Torvald Helmer was played just that way by Harold Stepler. Yet in the playing, Mr. Stepler made the newly appointed manager of the Joint Stock Bank a character for final sympathy.

Space precludes a complete enumeration of the manifold merits of this production and of the other excellent performances. Not only has each member of the cast been excellently cast, but the material investiture of the play has been attended to with thoughful care.

Directors, by virtue of the nature of their work, frequently find themselves shining in the refulgence of their charges' performances and so it is with Constance Connor Brown. She deserved more praise than can be offered here.

"A Doll's House" will be repeated this evening at 8:40 o'clock.

Movie Boners.

Hollywood, April 24.

CHARLES LAUGHTON in a sequence of "Ruggles of Red Gap" is supposed to be going to San Francisco. He arrives at the station and sees the man writing on the information board that the train will be three hours late.

After talking to the station master, Laughton learns that it is his train which is late. But, writes S. Tamber, the station master was writing under the caption eastbound trains. Laughton was in the State of Washington, and just how does he get to San Francisco by traveling east? It appears that the movie producers are now trying to change the map of the United States.

In "The Gilded Lily," Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland visit Coney Island, and among the many things they do there is to go for a ride on the roller coaster. While riding, Miss Colbert and Mr. Milland are seen sitting in the rear seat. Yet, says Irving Manes, when the ride is completed and the roller coaster comes to a halt, the two lovers are sitting in the front seat. They sure got tossed.

The William Powell-Ginger Rogers' flicker, "Star of Midnight," claims Gene Marvey, shows the characters using the telephone throughout the beginning of the picture. When Mr. Powell or Miss Rogers phone they always dial. Then the columnist is shot and Powell is wounded. Powell is anxious to summon the police. He gets to the telephone. He merely lifts up the receiver and says, "Give me the police department," without bothering to dial the number. After this incident every one resumes dialing when they want to get a phone number. Can it be that the liquor so frequently used in the picture was the real stuff?

EVELYN VENABLE, in "The Little Colonel," writes a letter to John Lodge and puts it into an envelope, the flap of which is shaped triangularly and consequently comes to a point, writes J. V. Calcagno, who is an old envelope noticer. When Lodge receives the letter he is seen opening an envelope with a flap that seals straight across it.

Since when, asks John Leonard, have hills and low mountains developed around Chicago, as well as the beautiful shrubbery at the Newark Airport? Anyway, they have in the airplane sequences in "Traveling Saleslady."

In "Car 99" the girl in the gang is making her getaway after a bank holdup. The State police broadcasts to the radio cars, telling them to be on the lookout, and gives the description of the car. The car is described as a gray Cadillac sedan. Yet when the car is shown it is distinctly evident that it is a Packard sedan. But, of course, that doesn't stop the cops.

Maurice Chevalier calls on Merle Oberon in "Folies Bergere," and when the butler tells Miss Oberon who is calling she is wearing a Chinese kimono. Immediately Miss Oberon rushes to meet Mr. Chevalier and she is wearing an evening gown, claims Florence Hunt.

In "The Count of Monte Cristo," says Emanuel Marde, the hero shaves off a 14-year-old beard as easily as tearing off a piece of tissue paper. Mr. Marde insists that he has a much harder time shaving when his beard is only three days old, and would like to know the magic secret.

JANET GAYNOR in "One More Spring" is seen standing in front of a frozen lake on which many people are ice skating. However, says Theodor Zusman, in the scene previous to that Miss Gaynor is seen standing on a bridge over a small stream which is not frozen, but flows gently along. Yet these scenes take place not more than five minutes apart and in the same park. Nice weather they're having.

In "After Office Hours" Constance Bennett is being chased by a motorcycle cop. Oliver Oxnard wonders how Miss Bennett managed to change the license plates on her car twice while the motorcycle cop is speeding after her. When Miss Bennett starts driving, her auto has a license plate which begins 8R. The next flash shows that the license plate now has the letter P. A little more mileage and the license plate now reads 3C. All this within the speed of a few flying minutes and miles.

Warner Oland in "Charlie Chan in Paris" puts his luggage down while he makes a telephone call. He then, claims Frances Gilmore, drives away in a taxi without it. And Chan is a detective.

Joan Bennett powders her nose with a powder puff in "The Pursuit of Happiness," and Lee Feinberg is a trifle startled, because she doesn't believe that the Revolutionary War dolls had powder puffs.

Last week a flicker called "The Daring Young Man" was previewed, and when you see it I'm certain that you'll find several flicker flaws. The young man who had something to do with the writing of this picture is Sidney Skolsky, who's always picking on every one for movie boners.

Burke, First of Nats' Hurlers to Go Route, Stops A's, 3 to 2

With Shirley Povich

IF the Nats don't win the pennant, it will be no fault of the A's who have provided Washington with all of its four victories in the young race. But the manner in which the Nats recoiled from their three straight defeats by the Red Sox portends a brighter future for Bucky Harris' club. Since revising his batting order, Harris has been rewarded with 24 hits in the last two games. He disclaims all credit for the results, but facts are facts. Every time one loks up from his score card now, there is some Washington batter at the plate who figures to get a piece of the ball.

POVICH.

Even the Nats' pitchers are hitting for an average of .340, which is no drawback. It is the club's hitting on which Harris is banking his hopes with his pitching as yet unproved, but even his pitching has not been disappointing, despite the fact that Bobby Burke today became the first Washington hurler to stay the nine-inning route.

Harris will learn a deal more about his pitching prospects after tomorrow's game. He is taking the opportunity to pitch Walter Stewart in his first start. Anything that Stewart may accomplish will be pure gain, for the veteran left-hander, who reported 16 days late at Biloxi, did not figure heavily in the reckoning of Harris.

BUCKY HARRIS' frankness anent his ball players is in refreshing contrast to the close-mouthed attitude of Joe Cronin who spoke of his players only when spoken to, and then feared that somebody might read his thoughts.

There was the time out there in Cleveland a couple of years ago when Jack Russell was enjoying phenomenal success as a relief pitcher for the Nats. It was the year Cronin led the team to the pennant, and a check-up revealed that in 12 innings of relief work, the Nats had made eight double plays behind Russell.

Catcher Moe Berg mentioned to this correspondent that Russell's sinker ball was working beautifully; that was the reason for all the double plays—because the batters were hitting the "downer" into the dirt.

I asked Cronin about it: "Is Russell really throwing a sinker ball in there? Is that the reason for all the double plays behind him?" A look of fear came into Joe's face. He blanched. Finally he broke down. "Yeah," he said haltingly, "But please don't say anything in the papers about it," as if the hitters didn't know what Russell was throwing.

A Few Notes.

THE management of the A's is getting to be a family affair . . . Connie Mack has appointed his sons, Earl and Connie, jr., as coaches . . . Young Connie is stationed at first base . . . He must be a deep thinker . . . He hasn't yelled one note of encouragement to the A's yet . . . This Skeeter Newsome and Rabbit Warstler, of the A's, comprise the smallest second-base combination in big league history . . . They reach up for ground balls, but pull 'em down . . . Heinie Manush hasn't earned a coolie's pay in the outfield during the series here . . . When he caught Jimmy Foxx's fly in the ninth inning it was the first time in two days that he had a fielding chance . . . Johnny Stone, who made only two catches in right field yesterday, is a close second to Manush . . . He didn't make any today . . . Philadelphia is rivaling St. Louis as the American League's worst baseball town . . . With less than 11,000 present for the opening game, only 2,000 attended today . . . The Nats will get a look at Bill Dietrich on the mound for the A's tomorrow . . . In his last appearance he blew up with a bang heard in Biloxi after holding the Yankees hitless for seven innings.

Gallico Submits His Rebuttal To Challenge of Girl Fencers

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Our projected trip to the Polo Grounds got itself sidetracked this afternoon, and so this is as good a time as any to stir the little ladies up a little more. Word has reached me that the fencing ladies from Detroit, the city I love best next to my home town, are angry with me because of a little thesis I wrote following the national women's fencing championships held recently at the Fencers Club here.

I wrote, if I can remember well enough to quote from my immortal works, that most of the girls were downright bad fencers, that they assumed awkward and ungraceful poses and that they wore funny silk pants that made them look even worse. In truth, I must amplify and state that I have never seen such a sloppily dressed group of lady athletes, ever. Apparently, a number of the panted ladies came from Detroit.

All I can say is darlings, don't wear pants, ever! There never was a more graceful piece of apparel designed for a lady than a skirt. Pants are for guys. Their legs are the right shape.

I never dreamed that when I took up the serious study of thrust and counter—and I have already progressed to the stage where I can parry in counter-sixte, or counter-carte, and miss the riposte as pretty as you please—that I should have to become the arbiter of feminine fencing fashions, but since the girls are asking for it, I suppose I shall have to let them have it.

If the American tailors can't make up a fencing costume that doesn't make them look like the bloomer girls of 1897, if they will send their dimensions to Wilkinson's, the sword makers, Pall Mall, London, they will be able to obtain for 2 or 3 pounds a fencing costume that is neat, smart, practical and chic, as we dressmakers say.

Something, say, with a short pleated, or paneled blue or gray serge skirt, and a trim, crash-colored canvas jacket briskly cut, with rows of bright metal buttons. Then, if they fence in public, they will at least please the eye.

This treatise is by no means to be limited to girl fencers, although at the present I am more concerned with them, but is to be applied arbitrarily to all lady athletes who wear pants when they do not have to do so. I am very cross at hippy lady tennis players who wear shorts. They look terrible. The only sport I can think of where there is something to ge gained by wearing shorts is track. In sprint running absolute freedom of action is demanded, minimum of weight and wind resistance. There is only one girl athlete I know of who can look well in shorts and that is Babe Didrikson. And she has legs like a boy.

Knickerbockers were never, never never meant for ladies, and I don't mean to stand for any more of them ever again. I think they look pretty awful in jodhpurs, too. If they must wear shorts or pants of any kind they ought to have a wide flare at the bottom, or be cut on the bias like the track shorts. Here, dearie, hand me my needle, threat and thimble, and that pattern, and let me show you. Stand still, now. Wait until I take this in here a little. Reach me that pin cushion over there. Now! Isn't that better?

I don't know why the little ladies will continue to try to imitate men in their actions or their dress, in whatever sport they are playing, instead of developing a style and a dress that will go with their strange figures. Won't you girls ever realize that you just aren't built like men and that you can't wear the same things we do and, look right? I don't like to keep harping on this, but you don't ever seem to learn. I don't mind it as long as you do it privately, but when you compete in national championships of any kind and send for the reporters and photographers, you've just got to look right, and that's all there is to it. You can begin by staying away from pants.

Ruth Fans, Giants Defeat Braves, 3-1

Schumacher Allows Only 3 Hits to Losers.

New York, April 24.—Shorn of the glamour and color of opening day and the return of Babe Ruth with the opposition, the Giants continued their winning form today to ring up a 3-to-1 victory over the Braves behind some great pitching by Hal Schumacher.

The husky right-hander displayed some of his best work since 1933 as he set the Bostonians down with three hits and belted home one of the runs himself as the Giants concentrated all their scoring off Flint Rhem in the third inning.

Ruth, who complained of a slight cold just about the time a shower dampened the field before the game, appeared only as a pinch hitter for Rhem in the eighth and struck out.

Macks Avert Shutout on Home Run

A Staff Correspondent.

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, April 24.—The Nats beat the Athletics, 3 to 2, today, which is almost beside the point.

The point is that Bobby Burke wrote pitching history with his long left arm when he retired the last batter in the ninth inning and became the first Washington pitcher this year to finish what he started.

In setting the new endurance record for Washington pitchers, Burke twirled an 8-hit ball game and was deprived of a shut-out only by the potent bat of Jimmy Foxx. It was he who slapped a home run over the high right center-field fence with Johnson on base in the fourth inning to give the scant 2,000 fans in the park their only cause to cheer.

After that fourth inning, Burke permitted only three Philadelphians to get on base. None advanced beyond first. He was rewarded for his efforts in the seventh and eighth innings when the Nats came along with uprisings against Al Benton and Joe Cascarella to wipe out the A's 2-1 lead and win the ball game.

Bolton, Powell Are Heroes.

Every man in the Nats' batting order figured in the ten-hit attack against the two Philadelphia pitchers as the A's went down to their fourth straight defeat. Joe Kuhel was the nominal leader with two hits, but Cliff Bolton and Jake Powell were the actual heroes of the batting foray.

Bolton put the Nats in a 1-to-0 lead in the second inning when he followed Joe Kuhel's single with a tremendous triple against the right center-field fence. The hit was only a foot short of a home run on the new 20-foot addition to the structure.

It was at this point that Benton reached the peak of his effectiveness, slipping a third strike past Stone and fanning both Powell and Lary for three strike-outs in a row as Bolton languished on third base.

Bob Johnson started the fourth-inning proceeding against Burke with his second double of the day, and then it was that Foxx lifted the A's into a 2-to-1 lead by his terrific drive over the highest part of the fence in right-center, his third home run of the season.

Stone Scores on Bunt.

Benton held his 2-1 lead until the sixth when his three strikeout victims of the fourth inning began reprisals that tied the score. With one out, Stone bashed a single to right and Powell slapped a single to center that advanced Stone to third. Here, Bucky Harris went strategic and was rewarded when Lary laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to Warstler which scored Stone with the tying run. It looked like a big inning when Benton walked Burke and Myer to fill the bases, but Travis went out famely on a grounder to Warstler.

The Nats came back for more in the eighth and got the winning run. Matters began auspiciously when Manush got his first hit of the day, a single to center, and Kuhel put him on second with a sharp single to right. At this point, Connie Mack heeded the pleas of the fans and motioned Cascarella into the box.

Cascarella was of little help. On Bolton's bunt, with an easy force-play at third base in sight, Cascarella chose to throw to first and both Manush and Kuhel advanced. Mack ordered Stone intentionally walked with double-play designs on Powell in view, but the former Takoma Park sandlotter upset the A's apple cart by bashing a long fly to center that enabled Manush to trot home with the ball game.

Despite Foxx.

Boston Greets Cronin's Pace-Setting Red Sox

"We're with you, Red Sox!" That's what 20,000 fans yelled at Fenway Park, Boston, Tuesday when they presented two floral red hose to Manager Joe Cronin. The presentation was made by Court Officer Arthur Crowley, elected to represent Boston fandom. In acknowledgment, the Sox beat the Yankees in their home debut, 7 to 4.

Bonura's Two Homers Set Pace in Triumph; Score Is 10-4.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Rookie John Whitehead's three-hit pitching, and a home-run barrage by Zeke Bonura, who collected a pair, Al Simmons and Vernon Washington, gave the White Sox a 10-to-4 victory over Detroit before 6,000 today.

It was the fourth time in five games this season that last year's cellarites have conquered last year's champions.

Cy Blanton Fans 11, Beats Cincinnati

Pittsburgh Wins as Double Play Goes Wrong.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, April 24.—As young Cy Blanton held the Reds in check with 11 strikeouts, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati, 5 to 2, today.

Tied for five innings, the Pirates cashed in heavily as a double play went wrong in the eighth. Vaughan single and Brubaker walked with one out. Then Jim Bottomley's attempt at a double killing on Suhr's grounder hit Brubaker racing to second, and the Pirates added Thevenow's walk and singles by Padden and Waner to take the lead.

Earlier the Reds had scored on Bottomley's single after Riggs walked, and they tallied another in the ninth as Hafey walked, Goodman singled, and Campbell filed.

Cronin May Trade R. Johnson After Trouble With Police Here

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BOSTON, April 24.—Baseball observers of the American League, particularly those attached to the camp of the New York Yankees, today wondered what Joe Cronin was going to do with Roy Johnson, the outfielder who hit .320 and drove in 120 runs last year, but has yet to appear in the line-up of the Red Sox this season.

If Cronin wants to make a trade for Johnson he has only to apply to Manager J. J. McCarthy, of the Yankees, or any of several other American League managers.

When the Red Sox were in New York recently Cronin explained that Johnson was suffering from shingles. In Washington last Saturday the Swedish Indian got into an argument with some gendarmes. The following morning Roy was sent back to Boston, fined and suspended "for infraction of the club's rules of discipline."

All spring Cronin has lost no opportunity to impress on his players his determination to enforce training rules to the letter. His action in the Johnson case, it is said, was not so much out of a desire to punish Roy as to show the Red Sox players once more that their manager did not intend to put up with any nonsense.

Cronin says he is quite satisfied with Melo Almada, his center fielder, and that so long as the club keeps winning he does not plan any changes. It is indicated that for some time to come Johnson is scheduled to appear only as a pinch hitter, although he is too good a ball player to sit on the bench, and, frankly, the Yankees would like to get him.

However, it seems doubtful if Cronin and Eddie Collins would trade with New York, Cleveland or Detroit. Washington, with Fred Schulte available for a deal, or Philadelphia, with Dib Williams on the block, conceivably would have a better chance to land Johnson if Boston decided to get rid of him.

Young Almada, a Mexican from Los Angeles, is a brother of Louis Almada, Mission outfielder, who once was a left-handed pitcher with the Giants. Wahoo Sam Crawford sent Louis to John J. McGraw, but Louis failed to qualify.

Record List Seen In 1935 U. S. Open

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—Joe Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf Association, said tonight the entries for the sectional qualifying rounds of the 1935 national open championship may surpass the record entry of 1,177 of 1930.

With 6 p. m. as the deadline, entries kept pouring in to the U. S. G. A. office from all sections of the country, and when the time limit was reached more than 1,150 applications had been received.

The 36-hole medal play qualifying rounds will be held in 25 sections on Monday, May 13, with the championship proper to be played June 6, 7 and 8, at Oakmont, near Pittsburgh.

Indians Beat Browns on Four Hits

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, April 24.—With the bases filled and the score tied in the ninth inning, Fay Thomas, St. Louis pitcher, walked Roy Hughes, of Cleveland, forcing Bruce Campbell across the plate and giving the Indians a 3-to-2 victory over Rogers Hornsby's men today.

Thomas held the tribe to four hits. Lloyd Brown replaced Oral Hildebrand on the mound in the ninth inning for Cleveland and was credited with the victory.

The Browns tallied in the second inning, but the Tribe tied the count at 1-all in the seventh. St. Louis went ahead in the eighth, only to have Cleveland again tie the score in their half of the inning.

Hildebrand, who had had only three days of rest since his 14-inning victory in Detroit, allowed six hits in eight innings.

Pepper, Strange and Thomas led the St. Louis attack with doubles. Pepper doubled in the first inning, went to third base on a wild pitch, and came home on a single by Burnett. The Indians tied the count in the seventh when Trosky doubled, scoring later as Hale's grounder slipped through Strange's legs.

Have you ever kidded yourself about this?

HAVE you ever found a cigar begin to taste flat or bitter and said to yourself, "Cigars don't agree with me—I'm smoking too much"?

Nine times out of ten you are kidding yourself. You are not smoking too much. What really has happened is that you have not been smoking a quality cigar and your taste has complained out loud. There is more satisfaction and real enjoyment in a quality cigar than any other kind of smoke.

A cigar like El Producto, made for real enjoyment, is distinctive in character yet so mild you can smoke it all day long and find the last cigar as pleasant as the first.

El Producto is Quality from start to finish; a modern blend of the choicest tobaccos made to stay lit no matter how slowly you smoke, and offered in a range of shapes to suit your personal fancy — from the slender and streamlined, to the full-bodied perfecto.

Wise Duke Wins Aberdeen Stakes With Deliberator Second

21 Juveniles Engage in Scramble

12,000 See Entry Run 1-2 in 'Charge of Light Brigade.'

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 24.—Wise Duke and Deliberator finished first and second in the twenty-third running of the $7,500 Aberdeen Stakes today just as they did when they first met in a race at Hialeah Park last winter. After a dash of 4½ furlongs that began in a mad scramble of horses, jockeys and silks, the chestnut son of Wise Counsellor had a half-length margin over his rivals which barely headed out Billie Bane for the third money.

At various places in the "charge of the light brigade" that followed were the hopes of many of the leading racing establishments of the country. Some were not good enough, others couldn't find racing room in the massive field, and still others had no right even in going to the post.

With the veteran jockey, Lou Schaefer, bobbing in unison with each stride, Wise Duke answered the urging to snatch the victory from Deliberator, with Earl Porter up, virtually in the shadow of the finish pole. But it was all the same to Trainer S. W. Ward and to those who wagered on either of the first two horses for they were coupled as the H. H. Hector-Everglade Stable entry.

Field Reduced to 21.

The field was reduced from 29 to 21 juveniles by scratches, but the number that went to the post neared the record for entries in a Maryland race and topped all fields ever to compete in the much-sought Aberdeen Stakes. Due to the heavy entry list, the race brought H. H. Hector, owner of Wise Duke, the sum of $12,900.

Although the winning entry was made the favorite, a mutual of $6.30 to win and $7 to place was displayed. It was Deliberator and not Wise Duke that drew the bulk of the betting. Wise Duke has shown little since coming north and was virtually left at the post here last week. Today he did not wear a set of blinkers, which some believed caused him to lag at the previous getaway.

With practically every good jockey on the grounds in a saddle, the field paraded to the post before the largest midweek crowd of the Maryland season, some 12,000. Using the old-fashioned barrier and tape, the horses wandered about for almost eight minutes. Deliberator was the chief offender and he will be schooled at the gate tomorrow as a result.

But if Deliberator was slow to get in line he was in a hurry to go places. Virtually with the rise of the tape, Deliberator dashed into the front. Billie Bane, from the extreme outside of the field, came over to be second and Beauflower was a flattering third as the field went into the curve. Wise Duke was shaking loose from enough horses to make an auction sale at this stage and Bright Light had wiggled into a good position near the front.

Wise Duke Third at Stretch.

It was Deliberator first, Bright Light second, Wise Duke third and Billie Bane fourth as the field swung into the stretch. These were the fortunate ones, for they were escaping the bumping and jamming going on farther back.

Bright Light slid back when the young racers straightened out for the drive to the wire, and to all but Jockey Lou Schaefer and Wise Duke the race appeared to be safely tucked away for Deliberator. There was no change in the important positions as jockeys and horses worked their way down the stretch. But approaching the wire Wise Duke found a punch. He bounded up and passed Deliberator in a fraction of a second. If you were following the race with glasses you would have seen the wide grin come over Jockey Schaefer's face.

The time of 0:53 3-5 was three-fifths of a second off the track record and has been matched by only one horse, Deflate, this season.

Starter Milton called a meeting of the jockeys before the race and warned them against rough tactics which might have caused accidents soon after the start. The fact that the race was run without mishap is a credit to the riders and the starter.

$109.30 Mutuel Paid.

The $109.30 mutuel on the third race brought back fond hopes of the daily double. Heiress, with little to recommend her in recent races, closed like Man o' War to win going away from a fair field of sprinters. Ridden by Jockey F. Midgley, the 5-year-old mare passed the heavily played Davoc in the stretch. True Charm, the early pacemaker, was third.

The day's secondary feature, the Walbrook, was annexed by J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope. The hefty gelding moved steadily to the leaders after settling into his stride and wore down Stand Pat in the final strides. The winning margin was a head. Only One, in front at the far turn, lasted to be third.

Selby Burch, of Washington, saw his colors triumph in the second race when Spixi, running for the first time this season, came from behind under the urging of Mouse Peters. Spixi was installed the favorite at the last minute and had to overcome interference to win, being forced wide entering the stretch. Watreet, heavily played, was second and O'Neill was third. The Burch entry paid $5.70.

Sonny Workman rode to victory on Polo Bar in the sixth race and but won the seventh. Both were favorites.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARADUN, $3.60, $2.90, $2.40; WAYWARD SON, $3.90, $3.60; COURT GOSSIP, $5.40.

PARADUN sprinted into an easy lead going to the first turn, was steadied in front while having good speed, opened up a long lead midway of the final turn, but was put to punishment during the final stages to make certain of victory. WAYWARD SON, placed to early pressure, wore down IDLE WORKER, but failed to threaten the winner seriously when the real issue came. COURT GOSSIP improved her position slowly and could not gain on the leaders in the closing drive. EOEON went evenly and had no excuses. VOLGADALE was held safe throughout. CANIMAR was never a factor. IDLE WORKER stopped to a walk.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:10. Off at 3:14½. Winner, S. L. Burch's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPIXI, $5.70, $3.60, $3.30; WATERSET, $3.40, $2.60; O'NEILL, $3.60.

SPIXI, slow to get going, worked his way up rapidly on the outside when leaving the back stretch, reached the leaders approaching the home stretch and held on stoutly after gaining command in the last furlong. WATREET, beginning slightly better than usual improved her position on the outside early, slipped through on the inside of the winner after being straightened into the home stretch and was going gamely at the end. O'NEILL, outrun for the first half-mile, circled his field and came on with a belated rush. WAR SAINT went prominently under strong urging and held on gamely at the end. SINGING HEART was gaining slowly during the final drive. DIXIE PRINCESS closed a good gap after a slow beginning. BOBBY BUXTON and SMALL CHANGE were used up settling the pace. BLUE ZIP went strongly for five furlongs.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:54. Winner, E. Cragle's b. m. †F. M. Alger, Jr.-G. Preece entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HEIRESS, $109.30, $31.10, $11.20; DAVOC, $3.50, $2.90; TRUE CHARM (entry), $3.70.

HEIRESS, going in smartly improved form, followed within striking distance of the leaders, swung to the outside when reaching the home stretch, closed fast and was up in the last 70 yards. DAVOC raced close to the front from the beginning, took command entering the home stretch, but could not withstand the winner. TRUE CHARM, rushed hard to take early command, showed good speed while setting the pace, but weakened after being overtaken. VEE EIGHT, placed on the outside after acting fractiously, raced strongly until reaching the home stretch, then tired steadily. VIOLATE was asked speed to enter contention and was unable to threaten when placed to a drive. CHICLE SHIP was not persevered with in the early stages. He closed full of run and appeared ready. DOMOLA stopped. WEST STAR ran off a mile before the race. He showed early speed.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. The Aberdeen Stakes. Purse, $7,500 added. For 2-year-olds. Start from barrier. Won driving. Time, same. Went to post at 4:33. Off at 4:40½. Winner, H. H. Hector's ch. c. (2), by Wise Counsellor—Desire. Trained by S. W. Ward. Value to winner, $12,900; second, $1,500; third, $750; fourth, $350. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47, 0:53 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE DUKE, $6.30, $7.00, $4.70; DELIBERATOR, $7.00, $4.70; BILLIE BANE, $6.20.

WISE DUKE, away in the first flight and a keen factor in the early stages, came to the outside for the closing drive and, finishing fast, was up in the last 50 yards. DELIBERATOR, quick to respond, had nice speed while setting the pace, was placed to punishment during the closing furlong, and held on willingly to the end. BILLIE BANE went up swiftly from his outside position, raced strongly after reaching contention and fought it out stubbornly all during the final drive. BRIGHT LIGHT began quickly, followed in the thick of contention, saved ground and held on well. SANTAN bettered his position steadily and was racing gamely at the finish. GRAND SLAM closed full of run after finding racing room in the last part of the trip. PARADE GIRL could not engage the leaders. BEAUFLOWER had early speed. DELIBERATOR broke in front and had no chance. DRAWN SWORD fell back after leaving the back stretch when crowded. POSTAGE DUE began slowly.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. The Walbrook. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:15½. Winner, J. W. Y. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK HOPE, $15.10, $7.10, $3.50; STAND PAT, $3.70, $2.30; ONLY ONE, $2.50.

DARK HOPE, rated off the pace until midway of the back stretch, moved up fast when shaken up, came to the outside of the leaders and, closing in resolute fashion, was up in the last few strides. STAND PAT went into a slight lead in the last three-sixteenths, saved ground, and held on stubbornly after being bumped a couple of times by ONLY ONE during the closing furlong. ONLY ONE raced WAR GLORY into early submission, was overtaken after showing a slight lead, but continued gamely after swerving to the inside and bumping STAND PAT during the stretch drive. HOWARD, eased back going to the first turn, improved his position gamely and was gaining slowly at the end. COLLATERAL was held safe. WAR GLORY tired after six furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:45. Off at 5:45½. Winner, Mrs. H. Heighe's b. h. (6), by Durbar II—Parco. Trained by J. A. Boniface. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:55.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLO BAR, $4.30, $3.40, $2.80; SIMPLE SINGER (field), $9.00, $4.80; TRIOLET, $7.50.

POLO BAR moved up steadily after reaching the back stretch, took command after wearing TRISTRAP down entering the home stretch, and had enough in reserve to withstand SIMPLE SINGER. Latter, gradually improved in form, weakened this position steadily, responded gamely and finished with good courage. TRIOLET, permitted to settle in her stride before being shaken up, went to the outside when put to a drive, lost considerable ground, but closed willingly. ONE LEAVE, slow to get going, was never a factor. TRISTRAP was hurried to the front in the last half-mile. JAMBALAYA came strongly at the end. SUN ABBOT stopped after seven furlongs. SHASTA STAR was held safe.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:15. Off at 6:19½. Winner, Foxcatcher Farm's ch. m. (5), by Court Day—Shanty. Trained by R. E. Handlen. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:54 2-5.

HUT, shuffled back going to the first turn, went to the outside for racing room when bettering her position, wore the leaders down readily, and drew out fast in the last furlong. HEREWARD gained command after being straightened into the back stretch, but could not stall off the winner when placed to a severe pressure. OLAMAY improved her position gradually and closed gamely. GAY PARTY entered contention stoutly to reach the pacemaker at the final turn, but could not stay the pace. ZEMBLA lacked speed and passed tiring horses in the late stages. BRIAR BLUE showed a good effort. GEORGE JESSEL closed a big sap. MARY'S MAY stopped early, as did MERIDIAN QUEEN.

Monday's Boxing Card Canceled by Turner

The Washington Auditorium will be dark to boxing next week. Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn have canceled the regular Monday night show because of lack of a suitable card. Operations will be resumed at the Auditorium Monday, May 6, with a card which Natie Brown and Buck Everett are expected to head.

Burch Peeved As Star Colt Is Claimd

New Owner Declines Bid of $3,000 Made for Bright and Early.

By a Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE, April 24.—Trainer Preston Burch is mad. Almost any horseman with a Kentucky Derby candidate of the caliber of Commonwealth in his charge would be in a happy mood at this time, but not so with the Washington sportsman. In fact, if such is possible for a cool-headed man of Burch's type, he is burning up. Through no fault of the horse, Commonwealth is partially to blame for Burch's state of mind.

Last Tuesday Burch had a promising 2-year-old in his barn which had never been to the races. The colt, the property of Mrs. Walter Jeffords, also the owner of Commonwealth, had shown nothing startling in trials at this track. Burch had no reason to believe that anyone was unduly interested in him.

When Bright and Early, by Golden Broom out of Early Vote, went to the post it was noted that his ankles were painted with what appeared to be iodine, which may or may not have been applied to make it appear that the colt's legs were not good.

Ran Smashing Race.

Those familiar with Tuesday's results know that Bright and Early ran a smashing race to graduate from the maiden class in good time and pay a $13.20 mutuel. Trainer Burch was entirely satisfied with that angle but when he found that Robert Robertson, father of Jockey Robertson, had placed $1,500 in the claiming box and was leading the colt to a new barn, Burch almost wept.

Robertson perhaps remembered that Burch started Commonwealth once in a $1,500 claiming race and again entered the Derby candidate for $2,500, thereby causing many horsemen to kick their pants full of holes for not making an investment.

But if Robertson was taking a chance he could have shown a big profit before the colt was cooled out after the race. A rich stable owner offered him $3,000 for Bright and Early while the rubbers were still at work on the juvenile. This morning, H. Guy Bedwell, who had not heard of the $3,000 offer, approached Robertson with a bid of $2,500, acting for A. C. Compton, the California millionaire.

Robertson declined both offers but he was doing a lot of thinking yesterday—thinking about grooming Bright and Early for the 1935 Kentucky Derby.

U. S. Aggies Are Set For a Banner Season

The Agriculture baseball club is counting on a banner season this year. Entered in the United States Government League, the Aggies will be managed by Homer Pryor, chief of correspondence and graduate of Mississippi A. and M. A number of former college stars are included in the Aggies' roster, including Walt Murphy, Bill Wyatt, Willis Bellner, and Bill Wolfe, of Maryland, and Bill Parrish, of George Washington.

Walter Murphy, pitcher with the Boston Red Sox in 1930 and 1931, gives the mound staff a solid foundation. Larry Snyder, former ace of the St. Joseph's nine, will share the pitching burden. Ed. Fox veteran sandlotter, takes care of first with Joe Bertolini behind the bat. Some other well-known sandlotters on the squad are Jack Casper, Henry Weigle and Robert Fuchs. The Aggies open their season Tuesday.

Central High Netmen Lose to St. Alban's, 7-0

A weakened Central High School tennis team gave St. Alban's School, prep school championship team, the toughest battle it has had in nearly a year yesterday although beaten, 7 to 0, on the St. Alban's court. The score hardly indicates the closeness of the encounter, four of the seven matches going extra sets, with two of the remaining three being carried to deuce sets. Central is interhigh champion and was playing minus its No. 1 and No. 4 men.

Singles.

Carver (St. Alban's) defeated A. Ritzenberg, 8—10, 6—3, 6—1; Freleigh defeated Channing, 1—6, 6—2, 6—1; Edson (St. Alban's) defeated Lansman, 6—2, 6—2; Fowler (St. Alban's) defeated McGinnis, 6—0, 2—6, 7—5; Beadles defeated Gelfand, 6—1, 7—5.

Doubles.

Carver and Freleigh (St. Alban's) defeated Al Ritzenberg and Channing, 8—6, 7—5; Edson and Beadles (St. Alban's) defeated Gelfand and Lansman, 7—8, 4—6, 7—5.

Burnett Cuts 5-Hole Lead, Beats Wilhelm in Creek Tourney

Meets Rippy In Play Today

By Dave Herman.

A FIVE-HOLE handicap is quite a deficit to overcome in an 18-hole golf match, but Volney Burnett, the fearless fireman, was equal to the occasion yesterday at Rock Creek's course.

Burnett, medalist, shot the last 12 holes of his match with Bill Wilhelm in two under par, to triumph 2 and 1 in the day's feature battle and enter the semifinals of the Rock Creek spring tournament.

Burnett's victory, which was nothing short of spectacular considering the uphill fight he waged, qualified him for a crack at Claude Rippy, defending champion, this morning.

Rippy won his quarterfinals match from his old rival, Harold Bowers, Anacostia champion, in a nip-and-tuck struggle, as Bowers sought futilely to gain revenge for the defeat he suffered in the Rock Creek turkey finals last November.

The other semifinals match will bring together Herman Allen, rugged municipal player, who is "poison" to his rivals in chipping and putting, and Ernie Garlem, 17-year-old Central High golfer.

Rippy and Burnett will clash at 9:40 and Garlem and Allen will tee off 5 minutes later. The finalists will meet around 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Semifinals and finals in the four other flights also will be played today.

Garlem, the lanky kid with the lazy swing, put out H. C. York, 3 and 2, and Russell Sullivan, the tall St. John's player, 2 and 1, while Allen defeated Chubby Oliveri, 2 and 1, and Bob Leapley, 2 up.

In fine fettle in his morning match, Burnett shot a sizzling 34 and was two under fours for 11 holes in eliminating Earl Bean, 8 and 7. It was by the same count that Rippy walloped P. A. Walton in his first match, the Carolinian being one under par when the match ended on the eleventh green.

Jittery at the outset, Burnett lost five of the first six holes to Wilhelm; and word spread that the fireman was taking the licking of his life. But Burnett is a fellow who can be down but never out, and so he picked up the comeback trail starting with the seventh hole. He won the seventh with a par, the eighth with a birdie 4, the ninth, the twelfth with a birdie 3, the fourteenth with a birdie 3 and Wilhelm's once proud 5-up lead melted like butter in a hot pan.

All even, Volney poked his second on the fifteenth green and got down in four for his birdie to go one-up for the first time. He won the sixteenth, and halved the short seventeenth to settle the issue. In winning, Burnett played the last 10 holes in 2 under par, which is some golf after a ragged start and a 5-hole handicap.

Rippy had a two-up lead on Bowers at the turn. He won the tenth with a 4 to go three-up, lost the eleventh, and birdied the twelfth to become three-up again. They halved the thirteenth and fourteenth, and Bowers' par won him the fifteenth. They halved the sixteenth and seventeenth. Rippy shot a 70, while Bowers had 73.

The day's big upset was Bob Marks' defeat in the morning at the hands of Leapley, one-up. Marks scored a 71 in the round. A birdie deuce on the seventeenth hole gave Leapley his margin of victory. In the afternoon Allen stroked a 40-footer into the cup for a birdie on the sixteenth to take a one-up lead on Leapley, and sank an 8-footer for a par on the home hole for his 2-hole margin.

Strength of Tech Nine Stimulant to Series

(This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the prospects of the various schools in the annual inter-high baseball series, starting Tuesday at Eastern Field when Western meets Tech.)

By John R. Vosburgh.

WHAT this interhigh baseball series generally needs is a good spring tonic before it gets started and Tech High has played the role of the doctor to perfection this year. The way the unheralded Techmen have zoomed to four impressive victories in a row has already given the 1935 series a brand new complexion and indicates that the scramble for the Clark Griffith Trophy, now held by Eastern, will be as full of fireworks as a Giant-Brooklyn game in Flatbush.

Yesterday, Tech knocked off Washington-Lee High, 3 to 0. Prior to that it had sunk Episcopal, 6 to 3; the Navy Plebes, 1 to 0, and Marblehead High, of Massachusetts, 12 to 11. Baseball is soaring in interest at Tech, for the school now sees a distinct possibility of adding a diamond championship to its undisputed titles in football and track.

Won Title in 1933.

When Coach Ed Foxley led another unhailed Tech team to the championship in 1933, which Eastern or Central was supposed to win, it was passed off as something of an accident by not a few people. Especially after Tech lost three out of four interhigh games last season, although Foxley had a squad as inexperienced as a kindergarten class.

But the Tech coach was building for the future and today he says "Tech will have the best defensive team in the series." About the hitting he is less optimistic. It seems, however, that when hits are needed his boys come through, especially against Marblehead, when it answered sock for sock to pound out its 12-to-11 triumph after the Bay Staters had beaten Eastern. Last year at this time Tech had lost four games in a row.

The mainspring of this year's team is a trio of pitchers named Bill Liggett, Specks Elgin and Ed Gray. It was Liggett who performed the nearly unprecedented feat of beating a Navy Plebe team on its own field, holding the Academy nine to three hits and fanning nine men. Gray and Elgin held Washington-Lee scoreless yesterday. No, Coach Foxley is not particularly worried about his pitching.

France Behind the Bat.

Neither is the catching giving him many troubled moments. Whitey France, of last year's team, has been showing to advantage, with Mickey Simons as a capable understudy. Bob Snow is back in uniform at first base. Although Snow is the only member of last year's infield back in uniform, Coach Foxley had some well-trained candidates whom he has slipped into vacancies left by graduation.

Jimmy Roland, one of the better hitters, will handle second base with Jim Dawson at third and either George Hahn or Don Fones, a couple sophomores, at short. In the outfield, Ed Skinner is the only veteran returning but Cotton Crawford, Morris Singer and Ed Deltacies, a sophomore, are performing in the outer gardens in a manner which rounds out the team impressively. Singer is developing into a hard hitter, while Crawford and Skinner are now also giving the team plenty of some of the offensive power which was lacking at the start of the season.

The team has a marked tendency to make few errors for a schoolboy team. This, combined with good pitching and a trend to hit when hits are necessary, make it appear that it will be no miracle if the Griffith Trophy is taken to the Northeast school this year.

Mungo and Frey Race Dodgers to 4-1 Victory

Brooklyn, April 24 (AP).—The Brooklyn combination of Van Mungo and Linus Frey had no trouble keeping the Dodgers at the top of the National League today as the pair produced a 4-to-1 victory over the Phillies.

Mungo pitched four-hit ball and fanned nine. Frey hit his second home run in two days and his fourth of the season with Boyle on base in the first inning.

College Golfers Gird for Tourney

Southern Intercollegiate Meet Starts Today.

By the Associated Press.

Athens, Ga., April 24.—College golfers representing a dozen Southeastern States tuned up over the Athens Country Club course today in preparation for the opening tomorrow of the first annual Southern intercollegiate golf tournament sponsored by the University of Georgia.

Ruling co-favorites are Charlie Yates, national intercollegiate champion and captain of the Georgia Tech team, and Freddie Haas, the young Louisiana State student who won the Southern amateur crown last year. In warm-up rounds today, Yates fired a 35, 1 under par, for 9 holes, while Haas traveled the full route in 75, 2 over par.

The best practice round card was turned in by Erwin Laxton, entered from the University of North Carolina, who carded a 72, 1 under par.

U. of Oklahoma Reins Taken By Jones

Victories Best Poison for 'Wolves,' Biff States at New Post.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Okla., April 24.—Capt. Lawrence ("Biff") Jones took up his new Army assignment as head football coach at the University of Oklahoma today and observed:

"The best poison for wolves (who have nipped the heels of one after another of his predecessors) is a winning team. We'll try to give 'em one."

"We" meant Capt. Jones of the Army and late of Louisiana State, and Assistants Rober H. ("Doc") Erskine, of Loyola, New Orleans, and Tom Stidham, Northwestern line coach, who used to play for Checotah (Okla.) High School before he starred at Haskell Institute. Jones introduced them at a press conference today.

Huey Smart, He Says.

His blue eyes twinkled when he was reminded that Senator Huey Long, whose attempt to run Louisiana State football caused Jones to leave, once attended "O. U." for a year, studying law.

"Well, he probably accomplished as much as the average man would in three years," Jones commented.

"He works terrific hours and he's smart as hell."

"What about next year's football team?" Jones was asked.

"I can't tell anything about that until I have seen the boys on the field. Those I have met seem to be nice, sizable boys.

"Our first practice session will be next Monday.

"I'll be here until the War Department tells me to leave," he added. "Maybe one year, maybe two, maybe three or four."

Erskine is the mite of the trio, weighing a scant 160 pounds. He never played football, having been hurt while trying to make the Waukegan (Ill.) High School team. He will assist Jones with the back field.

Little Wolf, Garibaldi Clash on Mat Tonight

By George Considine.

RIGHT this way, folks, to the big show. The old Auditorium tonight will sound and resound with no end of old-fashioned ki-yiing and yipeeing, particularly ki-yiing.

All of which is a very ridiculous way to say that Chief Little Wolf, naughty Navajo, uncrowned champion Indian death-locker, etc., is slated to clash with Grapple Gulch's wickedest villain, un-Gentlemanly Gino Garibaldi, in a one-fall-to-the-finish imbroglio.

If both contestants live up to their advance growling, tonight's shambles will be a thing of beauty and a joy forever to lovers of unmitigated mayhem. Each has sworn to tear the other asunder, dismantle him piece by piece, and indulge in other playful antics for the edification of the customers—cash and otherwise.

Be that as it may, the appearance of the chief is no doubt the most momentous event of the indoor season. Here is a man who, at 23, has trounced in record times every front-rank matsmith but the champ; whoever that is.

A Haskell man, the chief might well be called the soul of versatility. Besides his chosen profession, he is an expert blanket weaver, a proficient clothes designer and a master worker at fashioning bracelets and necklaces. Added to that, he is an all-around rodeo star. He does not play water polo!

Manager "Okay Toots" Mondt, when asked what are the Little Wolf's best holds is inclined to be slightly enthusiastic. We quote:

"He is master of all the holds, but he has come to the front so rapidly through his ability to execute the bulldogging headlock, an improvement on Ed Lewis'; the power-drive tackle, an improvement on Gus Sonnenberg's famous flying tackle, and the Indian Death-Lock, a devastating leg-hold that always gets his man."

Thirty minute songs and dances involve Rudy (Sweetie Pie) Dusek and gargantuan Tex Morgan, not to mention George Lenihan and Walter Underhill.

Amateur Boxing Delayed.

The amateur boxing card scheduled to be held in Falls Church tonight by the Young Democratic Club has been postponed until May 2, it was announced yesterday.

Widmyer, Maryland Relay D. C. Hopes at Penn

C. U. and G. U. Affected by Holidays

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A PALL of deep gloom yesterday settled over the camps where Washington's entrants in the approaching Penn relays are industriously engage in applying the finishing touches to their preparations for the gigantic carnival.

But the wave of pessimism apparently only affected the coaches, for their spike-footed charges displayd the same old vim and ginger in trials as on previous days, although the master minds walked around with crepe dangling from their arms and everready crying towels for emergencies.

The big depression started at Maryland where Coach "Swede" Eppley announced the withdrawal of Bob Sonen from the Terps' crack 1-mile relay team, and also the withdrawal of Joe Ryan, sprinter, whose old leg ailment bobbed up again in practice. To good Mr. Eppley this was a token from the gods that Maryland was doomed to disaster.

Slye Replaces Sonen.

Of course, he admitted, Bob Slye, who will replace Sonen, can run a pretty fast quarter-mile although he nominally is a hurdler, and with Slye helping carry the baton Maryland still stood a good chance of winning. But Eppley fails to see the matter in that light and had scratched the team in the championship event, although it will compete in the class mile.

At Catholic University, Dorsey Griffith was no little chagrined by the prospect of having no entries at all because of Easter holidays. The majority of his men did not return to school until last night and some are not due until today—just before the time trials this afternoon. Griffith did not hesitate to add that if any of the lads show enough to justify entering them in the games he will be not only agreeably surprised but a patient for a heart specialist.

Jim Mulligan, Georgetown's coach, refused to concede anythnig to old demon pessimism, but there was a trace of sadness in his Irish tenor. Mulligan's men are in tip-top shape and will have no excuse on that score if they lose.

Plainly the District's hopes for a championship rest on the sturdy shoulders of Ealr Widmyer, who will be defending his 100-meter title, the sprint medley team of Widmyer, Evans, Archer and Headley, and the half-mile quarter of Widmyer, Slye, Archre and Evans.

Agent Z-2-17, one of our best clockers, reports that Virginia and Louisiana State worked out together yesterday at Charlottesville. Coach Bernie Moore, of L. S. U., put nine men, including Jack Torrence, who will gvie a shot-putting exhibition since he is not eligible for the championship, and Glenn Hardin, a hurdler, through their paces.

Grover Everett, Virginia captain and defending champion in the 110-meter high hurdles, is in great shape and Cavalier supporters look to him for another crown.

Medler Released By Richmond Colts

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., April 24.—Herman "Cocky" Medler, of Chevy Chase, Md., and formerly of the University of Maryland, was released today by the Richmond Colts on the eve of the Piedmont opening tomorrow. Medler, a bespectacled right-hander, was here last year and did good work, and his release was a big surprise to the fans. He played last year under the name of "Specs" Dressen.

Just recently Manager Eddie Rommel had declared himself well pleased with Medler's work. "He has a fine cross-fire, a fine fast ball and needs a little more wrinkle on his hook as the one thing to make him a first-rate pitcher," Rommel said.

The Giants are sending Norman Masters here from Nashville, which is the direct reason back of Medler's departure. While rating Medler as a good prospect, Rommel said the youngster rated No. 6 on a five-man staff and therefore was the one to be cut loose.

St. John's Bows To Maryland Nine, 8-1

Physioc and Nelson Star; Annapolis Nine Is Weak Afield.

CAPITALIZING on the extremely weak and erratic fielding of the opposition, Maryland yesterday pounded out an 8-to-1 victory over St. John's of Annapolis in a loosely played game held together only by a few brilliant plays. It was the Terps' second win of the week—a new record.

Steve Physioc, as smooth and unruffled as the village slicker, pestered the visitors with some grade A hurling which St. John's dented for a paltry total of eight hits. One of these, a short cannon shot into the neighboring pasture by Nick Lambros, a pinch-hitter, was good for four bases.

Maryland pounced on Williams in round two, scoring five runs with three well-timed hits and as many untimely errors by the visiting firemen. Dick Nelson, who starred afield, led the attack, with able assistance from Keller and Lyman McAboy.

Chesapeake Wins From Aviators, 7-2

Wolfe Makes Long Home Run With 2 on Bases.

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, Va., April 24.—Chesapeake took a 7-to-2 game from the Langley Field Aviators here today in a game that was featured by a long home run driven over the left-field fence by Tom Wolfe. Chesapeake was leading, 3 to 2, in the sixth when Wolfe caught one of Tyrel's slants with Dee Evans and Bill Gwathmey on the bases and sent it over the fence. Wolfe also made a double and a single.

June Greene, pitching for Chesapeake, allowed five scattered hits and made two himself. Fielding honors went to little Earl Price who played a fine game at short.

Senorita From Chile Rated Best Tennis Prospect Since Suzanne

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 24.—If Helen Wills Moody should happen to invade Wimbledon in her reported "comeback campaign" this summer, she may find her biggest stumbling block since the days of Suzanne Lenglen in the person of dark-eyed Senorita Anita Lizana, youthful Chilean star from Santiago.

Already hailed as a "second Suzanne," the 20-year-old South American miss swept Miss Katherine Stammers, third-ranking British player, off the courts in two smashing sets, 6—4, 6—1, yesterday and then went on today to complete her introduction to international tennis by defeating Miss M. Whitmarsh, 6—3, 6—1, to win the Tallyho championship at Burmingham.

The pretty senorita, who is reported to be breaking hearts as well as opponents' services, learned tennis from her father at Santiago and her game, like Lenglen's, depends on machine-like accuracy and clever tactical shots rather than the speed and smashing attack of Mrs. Moody.

The quick-smiling Senorita Lizana has become an overnight sensation since her first appearance this week. She is being headlined with Fred Perry as the main attractions of the hard-court championships beginning next Monday at Bournemouth.

Early this year Senorita Lizana defeated Hugo Chiessa, the Swiss star, 2—6, 6—1, 6—2, in an informal match.

Middies Defeat Lafayette, 11 to 4

Academy Trails 5 Innings, Then Hits Everything; One Homer Secored.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24.—After trailing 2-to-0 for five innings, during which they made only three hits, the Navy baseball team pounded two pitchers hard to win decisively from Lafayette College, of Easton, Pa., here today, the final count being 11 to 4. Although Griff Sexton, Navy veteran, allowed ten hits, he kept them pretty well scattered and pitched a steady game in other respects.

Lafayette jumped into a two-run lead in the fourth, as the result of a pass, singles by Weiss and Einon and fast base running. Meanwhile, Dumont, who started on the mound for Lafayette had been going along in fine shape. But in the sixth he weakened and the Middies laced the ball to all corners of the lot, connecting for four singles, a double and triple, that brought in six runs.

Rippard was hustled to his rescue, but was only a trifle more effective. Schwaner connected with the second ball pitched for a home run to give the Tars their seventh run in the inning.

The sudden turn of affairs demoralized the visitors, although they plugged along and managed to get a marker in each the eighth and ninth innings. The Middies, on the other hand, added one in the seventh and three in the ninth, the latter coming from three bunched hits and a pass.

Richmond U. Nine Routs V.M.I., 10-2

Jacobs Fans 16 as Cadets Make 9 Errors.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., April 24.—University of Richmond's Spiders defeated V. M. I. here today, 10 to 2, cashing in on 10 hits and 9 Cadet errors.

Buck Jacobs, Spider hurler, fanned 16 Cadets and allowed only six hits, though four of the V. M. I. blows were for extra bases.

Wayne Lugar, V. M. I. pitcher, worked steadily on the mound but was constantly in hot water when his support crumbled behind him.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London—Stimulated by favorable revenue returns, the stock exchange registered a cheerful undertone yesterday, although trading was quiet. Gilt-edged securities, transatlantic issues, home industrials, and German bonds were firm, while kaffirs were quiet and silver shares hardened. Home rails exhibited dullness on disappointing traffic returns, and rubber and oil shares held steady. The market closed firmer.

Paris—The volume of business increased on the bourse yesterday. National bonds advanced on a strong market with metal and chemical shares also gaining. International issues weakened, while French industrials showed an increase. The market closed irregular.

Berlin—Buyers' hesitancy affected the boerse unfavorably yesterday, causing lower prices in automobile and brewery shares. The closing was listless.

G. W. Defeated By Shoremen On Errors

Score Is 6-5; Wild Throw to Third Lets Winning Marker In.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., April 24. Washington College's unbeaten baseball team came from behind to defeat George Washington University here this afternoon, scoring a run with the aid of two Colonial misplays to take a 6-to-5 decision.

After tying the score at 4 all at the expense of Bill Noonan, starting Colonial hurler, and taking a one-run lead off Vinnie De Angelis, the Shoreman broke another deadlock in the last of the ninth without making a hit. George Washington had tied it at 5 all in the previous inning when De Angelis singled home Melpolder. Shortstop Berry, first up in the final round, reached first on Dales' wide throw. He then completed the circuit by stealing second, going to third on a short passed ball and across the plate when Catcher Berg tossed the ball into left field attempting to nail him.

De Angelis was charged with the defeat, though undeserved. He checked the Shoreman in the seventh after they had filled the bases on an error and two intentional passes, and stopped another budding rally in the eighth by fanning Bilanconi.

George Washington's batting attack functioned well for the first time, the Colonials banging out 11 hits, Stapleton, Walker and De Angelis getting two each.

Early Stock Rise Halted By Realizing

Metal and Air Shares Show Strength; Rails Lose Headway.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The stock market was plagued with contrary and short-lived impulses today, and the net result was a distinctly uneven performance. Metals, especially the silver group, and the aircraft shares, changed hands at advancing prices, as did a few of the rails for a time.

The carrier stocks mostly canceled their gains in a light selling movement at the close, but the other two divisions held near their best. The whole market assumed a cheerful tone in early dealings, but realizing broke out in individual situations and checked the advance.

The silver shares ignored general market developments, as an advance of 1¾ cents an ounce in the price of the bar metal to 71⅝ cents was announced.

A half-dozen new highs were registered in the silver and allied stocks, including Federal Mining & Smelting, up 5 points at 56; Cerro de Pasco, at 57¼, Silver King at 14, and Howe Sound, at 52⅞, all up better than a point each. Various new developments focused attention on the aircraft shares, including the voyage of the Pan-American Clipper ship. The turnover was 1,299,270 shares.

Cotton Steady In Active Trade

General Market Closes a Point Higher to 3 Points Lower.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—Cotton was moderately active today with prices moving irregularly within a range of 5 to 10 points. After selling off to 11.48 July rallied to 11.57 and closed at 11.52, with the general market closing steady net 1 point higher to 3 points lower.

An early decline of about 3 to 7 points was attributed to near-month liquidation. Offerings were absorbed by the trade, but closing quotations were a few points off from the best under renewed liquidation.

The evening-up of May and switching to later deliveries in preparation for possible notices tomorrow was one of the trading features.

Huge Old-Age Reserve Fund Under Doughton Bill Gives Treasury Extensive New Financial Powers; Could Be Used to Control Credit Also.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, April 24.—Greatly enhanced control over credit conditions will be given the Secretary of the Treasury if the social security bill should be passed in its present form, it is believed by bankers who have given the Doughton measure, as passed by the House, careful thought. In fact, the opinion is expressed by qualified banking students of the Doughton bill that it could provide the Federal Government with more far-reaching control over the financial machinery of the country than does the pending banking bill.

From the financial viewpoint, the most significant feature of the social security bill is title 2 which sets up a contributory system of Federal old-age pensions. This is the section which provides, beginning with 1942, payments of $60 to $85 per month for the bulk of workers gainfully employed in industry for some period of time before they attain the age of 65. It is estimated that more than 25,000,000 people will be included in this plan from the first, and will be entitled to such benefits on reaching the age of 65.

Old-Age Reserve Account Largest Investment Fund.

The Treasury is directed to pay into an "old-age reserve account" a sum each year which, with 3 per cent earnings, will be sufficient to pay these old-age pensions. It will reimburse itself from an excise tax on pay rolls, to which employes and employers will contribute in equal parts, which will begin at 2 per cent of wages up to $3,000 in 1937, and increase by one-half of 1 per cent every three years until it attains a maximum of 6 per cent in 1949. The income from this tax is expected to equal approximately the amount which the Treasury will have to pay annually into the old-age reserve account.

This old-age reserve account is scheduled to become by far and away the largest single investment fund in the country. As a result, its activity will have a profound effect upon money market and capital market conditions. The House Ways and Means Committee estimates that the reserve account will reach $2,000,000,000 by 1940, more than $13,000,000,000 by 1950, over $26,000,000,000 by 1960 and more than $32,000,000,000 in 1970. No estimates have been projected beyond 1970, but further growth is likely. This fund would compare in size with aggregate assets of all life insurance companies at the present time of a little above $20,000,000,000, and a total direct national debt of $28,000,000,000.

The first serious problem raised by the old-age reserve account is the investment of this huge compulsory savings fund. The Secretary of the Treasury is directed to invest all sums credited to the account, except what he finds required for current payments. Hence, by 1970, he will be called upon, if the bill is enacted and the official estimates are correct, to invest some $32,000,000,000. He may invest, however, only "interest-bearing obligations of the United States or in any obligations guaranteed as to both principal and interest by the United States." Unless there is a further sharp increase in the National debt, therefore, the old-age reserve account would require virtually the whole of it by 1970 to keep invested.

Could Be Used to Control Bank Reserves.

If Government bonds are not available for purchase by the fund, the Secretary of the Treasury would have to urge Congress to authorize the sale of additional obligations so he could invest as the law requires. The proceeds of the sale of such new bonds could be kept on deposit at the reserve banks, pending the time when the Government might have some use for them. This would obviously encourage loose spending. Even more significant, however, is the fact that it would perpetuate the power of the Treasury to manipulate the size of member bank reserves at the Federal Reserve banks, through increasing and decreasing the size of the Treasury's own deposit at reserve institutions within wide limits.

The power to manipulate member bank reserve balances could be increased further through the operation of the Unemployment Trust Fund, which will hold the funds gathered by the various State unemployment insurance plans. Since large benefit payments would doubtless be made out of these unemployment funds, it is estimated that even in periods of prosperity the reserves are unlikely to exceed $2,500,000,000. The Secretary of the Treasury is specifically authorized in the law to sell special obligations at par to the unemployment fund if needed, so that he can raise or lower Government deposits at the reserve banks, also by selling or repaying such special bonds.

The social security bill, in its present form, is thus not only a sweeping piece of social legislation, but also a far-reaching financial measure. To have investments available for such large reserve funds, the Treasuray will have to keep as much of its debt as possible in short-dated maturities, so that securities can be provided by the Old-Age Reserve Account. The existence of this huge reserve, furthermore, will constantly encourage resort to ventures in State Socialism, such as Government ownership of railroads and utilities, which would furnish additional Government-guaranteed obligations. It will also encourage liberalization of benefits.

In order to avoid these financial and fiscal problems, there is strong sentiment among some bankers and insurance executives in favor of doing away with the reserves entirely.

Thermoid Sales Gain 32% in Quarter

New York, April 24.—Sales of Thermoid Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries for the first quarter of 1935 showed an increase of more than 32 per cent over the same period of 1934, according to Fred E. Schluter, chairman. In March, Thermoid and subsidiaries shipped more tonnage than in any other month in the company's 50-year history, excepting March, 1929, which exceeded March, 1935, by only 1½ per cent.

York Ice Machinery Sales at All-Time High

York, Pa., April 24.—Dollar value of orders booked in March, 1935, were greater than in any previous month in the history of York Ice Machinery Corporation, York, Pa., according to S. E. Lauer, general sales manager.

Brightwood, With 65,000 Lacks Bank

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

A complete lack of central banking facilities for 65,000 Washington residents was disclosed yesterday when a recent report of the Brightwood Business Men's Association was made public.

The petition, signed by 300 of the outstanding business men in Brightwood, declared that taking the old Brightwood Bank as central point of the sector, no bank was closer than 2 miles.

This part of the city, bounded by Buchanan street on the south, the District line on the north, Rock Creek Park on the west, and Riggs road on the east, has been without any central banking facilities since the old Brightwood Bank closed on July 13, 1932.

The latest police census made by the Sixth Precinct places the number of residents in this part of the city at 65,000, the report stated. The association advocated reopening of the old Brightwood Bank, which is free of encumbrances, as branch of a downtown bank.

Nearest Bank 2 Miles.

They pointed out that the nearest bank south of the old Brightwood Bank is the City Bank, Georgia Avenue branch, which is 2 miles south; the Chevy Chase branch of the Riggs National is 3 miles distant, and the Brookland branch of the Hamilton National Bank is 4 miles away.

The closed Brightwood Bank is located at or near the five principal roads of the Brightwood section, and at present is under the control of Claude H. Woodward, receiver.

Smith's Transfer Elects.

Clarendon Smith was elected president and treasurer of the Smith's Transfer & Storage Co., of 1313 U street northwest, at the quarterly meeting of the board of directors.

Other officers for the coming year were chosen as follows: Arthur Clarendon Smith, vice president and secretary; Mrs. George Burchfield, director and assistant cashier; Mrs. Buell Miller, director; Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, director; Mr. Jack Gaszner, sales manager; Mr. M. C. Richardson, traffic manager.

The annual report tendered by President Smith showed increases in all but the moving and storage departments for 1934. The crating, rug storage and cleaning, for storage, fumigating and long distance departments reported sizable increases.

Financial condition of the company at the end of the year was the best in its history, Smith reported. Liabilities were decreased, no notes were payable and bank deposits were higher. Payments on storage accounts during the year shared in the upturn.

Golden & Co. Report on Trust.

A. S. Golden & Co., local investment firm, yesterday distributed the latest report on the Massachusetts Investors Trust, which shows a substantial gain in net assets as of March 31. Shares outstanding numbered 1,917,473, compared with 1,628,460 at the end of the previous quarter. Net assets for each share were $18.07, against $18.80.

The report stated that during the quarter initial purchases of common stocks were made in the following corporations: Amereda Corporation, American Agricultural Chemical Co. of Delaware, American Cyanamid Co., Bulolo Gold Dredging, Ltd., General Electric Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and Union Carbide & Carbon Corporation.

B. & O. Loads Higher.

Car loadings on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the week ended April 20 totaled 40,893, of which 25,850 represented revenue freight loaded on the line and 15,043 received from connections.

Compared with the same week of last year, it was an increase of 4,138, when there were 24,550 loaded on line and 12,205 received from connections, or a total of 36,755.

In the comparison of last week's total with the previous week ended April 13 there was an increase of 3,221.

FDIC Deposits Increase.

Deposits of member banks of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, exclusive of mutual savings banks, totaled $38,996,340,000 on December 31, 1934, according to a condition report on insured banks by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. This was an increase of $3,182,746,000 over the total for the June 30, 1934, report.

Loans and discounts of the FDIC member banks declined $585,524,000 from June 30 to December 31, the report adds. Investments in Government obligations increased in the six-month period by $1,411,394,000 from $10,301,500,000 to $11,712,894,000.

U.S. Metal-Working Equipment 65% Obsolete, Survey Finds

Pent-Up Demand for Tools Is Now $724,410,648, Says Report, Which States That Old Machinery Lifts Manufacturing Costs.

New York, April 24.—Sixty-five per cent of this country's metal-working equipment is now over ten years old, American Machinist will report in its third five-year inventory and obsolescence survey to be published this week. This figure was reached after a study was made of 1,345,447 major items of machine tools, presses, forging machines and welding equipment, of which 879,522 were found to be over ten years old, or "obsolete." Plant service and miscellaneous equipment and foundry equipment are reported separately with 52 and 58 per cent, respectively, over ten years old.

In 1925 the corresponding figure for metal-working equipment, according to American Machinist's inventory for that period, was 44 per cent; in 1930 it was 48 per cent. Thus the 1935 figure shows a jump of 17 points as compared with only 4 points for the earlier five-year period.

Rate of Depreciation.

"By the end of 1935," it continues, "all equipment produced during 1925 will be over the ten-year mark. So, if we are to maintain our present percentage of modern equipment we must replace during 1935 an amount of machinery equivalent to that installed in 1925, neglecting the lag between placing the order and actual installation of a machine. Similarly output during the years 1936 to 1939 should approximate that during 1926 to 1929, respectively, if at the end of each year the industry is to keep its percentage of equipment over ten years old down to 65 per cent.

"In terms of machines, in order to maintain the present ratio of old to new equipment 336,745 major metal-working machines will be needed before 1940. The total indicated money expenditure over the same period would be $822,500,000, a figure which compares with that derived by a recent survey conducted by the Machinery and Allied Products Institute which gives a present pent-up demand for machine tools of $724,410,648.

"A more optimistic view would be that the metal-working industry would undertake to do better than this and recover the ground lost during the depression. The figure of 48 per cent old equipment reached in 1930 was considered a poor showing for a country after five prosperous years. Surely a return to this figure by 1940 would not be too high an objective. But in order to accomplish that," the publication observes, "industry would have to absorb new machines at an index rate of 179, or a level approximately the peak reached in 1929.

563,800 Machines Needed.

"To improve the ratio of new to old equipment and restore it to the level of 1930," the report continues, "563,800 machines will have to be replaced in the next five years. This does not include foundry equipment, plant service equipment, machine accessories and attachments. It is emphasized that these figures are not predictions. They merely indicate the minimum replacement that must be done to maintain our present status as regards obsolescence, or to restore it to the 48 per cent level of old equipment in 1930.

"The necessity for such action is obvious. Otherwise, we face an extended period of industrial inefficiency that will make for high manufacturing costs, create a wide spread between raw material prices and prices to the consumer, reduce purchasing power and further depress the standard of living."

Bristol-Myers Declares Extra 10 Cent Dividend

New York, April 24 (AP).—Bristol-Myers Co. declared an extra dividend of 10 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, payable June 1 to stock of record May 10.

Profits for the March quarter were equal to 79 cents a share compared with 95 cents in the same period last year.

Pacific Light's Net Up in Year

Earned $3.27 a Share for 12 Months Against $2.64 in Previous Period.

San Francisco, April 24.—Pacific Lighting Corporation earned $3.27 a share on the outstanding common stock for the 12 months ended March 31, 1935, according to the company's operating statement made public today. This compares with $2.64 a share for the corresponding period ended March 31, 1934. Gross operating revenues for the 12 months ended March 31, 1935, showed an increase of $1,799,301 over the comparable 1934 period, and operating expenses, amounting to $19,663,225, were up $989,444.

There was an increase of 27,846 domestic and commercial gas meters in the combined companies' systems during the 12 months ended March 31, 1935. This is an increase of 3.7 per cent for the 12 months' period and brings the total meters in active service to 771,792, the highest point in the history of the Pacific Lighting System.

Two Companies Call Bonds for Redemption

New York, April 24 (AP).—Goldman, Sachs & Co., fiscal agents, have notified holders of United Biscuit Co. of America 15-year 6 per cent bonds, due in 1942, that all outstanding bonds of this issue will be redeemed on June 22 at 103½ and interest.

The American Chain Co. has called for redemption at par its five-year first mortgage collateral trust 6 per cent bonds, it was announced today. The issue, maturing in 1938, is outstanding to the amount of approximately $1,992,000.

Curb Is Lifted By Specialties

Crane Co. Is a Feature With a Gain of 12½ Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—Miscellaneous specialties made wide advances on the curb market today. In the general list, however, profit taking was the restraining factor among leading issues. Activity was maintained at an active pace, transfers approximating 240,000 shares, compared with 251,000 in the preceding day.

Crane Co. preferred rose 12½ points on a small turnover, while New York & Honduras, Rosario got up 7. Other substantial gains were recorded by Consolidated Mining & Smelting, Babcock & Wilcox, United Shoe Machinery, A. O. Smith, Sunshine Mining and American Book. Small recessions appeared in Swift International, Wright Hargreaves, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker and Pan American Airways.

Industrials Lead Bonds In Advance

Displace Utilities and Rails as Favorites; Volume Higher.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 24.—The bond market had a new candidate for leadership today when the industrial group suddenly developed popularity and stepped out in front of the others with gains of 1 to 2 points well scattered.

While the utilities and rails, top ranking favorites for a week or longer, displayed no signs of distress, a breathing spell was well earned and the switch to industrials was not at the expense of quoted values. United States Governments were fairly steady.

The volume of trading picked up considerably, tranfers aggregating $16,331,000, par value, the largest since March 14, and compared with $14,205,000 in the previous session. The turnover in United States Governments accounted for approximately one-third of the total.

Bargain hunters who scented inflationary aspects in the further advance of bar silver concentrated in the lower priced division of the list, picking up such bonds as Pan American Petroleum 6s at 30, and Otis Steel 6s at 89½. The last was up 4½ points, close to its year's peak, while Chile Copper 5s went to a new high at 94, up 2⅛ on balance.

In the Government section Treasury 3¼s of 1941 and the 2⅞s of 1955 competed for major attention. The former declined 1-32d to 108.5, and the latter gained an equal amount at 101.18 after getting as high as 101.20 in early transactions. Libertys and indirect obligations were about equally divided between minor losses and gains.

In the foreign section improvement was shown by some of the Central American government loans as well as obligations of the government of Poland, Japan and Norway. German (Dawes) 7s also gained a trifle, but most of the Argentine and Colombian bonds were lower.

Bliss Home Open Again For Benefit of Sick

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss will open their home and garden at 3101 R street to the public May 1 for the benefit of the Washington Home for Incurables. This garden pilgrimage has become an annual event and each year attracts a throng. The home is partially supported by congressional appropriation, but this amount can only take care of 20 of the 167 patients. This will be the third year in which the Bliss home has been opened to the public for this purpose. The admission will be 50 cents.

Atlanta Official Hints Secession Over U. S. Edict

Commissioner of Farms Resents Scottsboro Jury Findings.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, April 24.—A message from Tof Linder, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, that "we still have the right to secede" from the Union went out to the farmers over the State today in the Market Bulletin, the department's official farm publication.

The statement was carried in a footnote to a long article written by Linder in which he drew a comparison between the Democratic Administration in Washington and the Russian government.

The secession reference was in the nature of resentment against a recent ruling by the United States Supreme Court reversing Alabama courts in the Scottsboro case on the ground Negroes were excluded from juries.

"P. S.—The Socialist Party believes in equality of the races; they say so. The Republican Party advocates equality of the races; they say so. The Democratic Party is supposed to be the white man's party. Let's see how far we have wandered from this.

"The United States Supreme Court a few days ago reversed all the courts of Alabama in a case where some Negroes had been convicted of an assault on two white women, on the ground that no Negroes were on the jury nor in the jury boxes.

"I notice where the Governor of Alabama has ordered the names of Negroes to be put in the jury boxes.

"It is extremely difficult for white men of Georgia to realize that this has happened in a sister State of Alabama.

"I ask you men and women of Georgia—do you intend to submit to this kind of a proposition? Do you intend to submit to the proposition that no Negro can be convicted of assault on a white woman unless Negroes sit on the jury to try him?

Cotton Men Greet McIntyre Today

By the Associated Press.

Augusta, Ga., April 24.—Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, will hear the sentiment of Southern textile manufacturers on the cotton processing tax when the annual meeting of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association opens here tomorrow.

The association comprises all textile mills of the South. Its president is W. D. Anderson, who heads the Bibb Manufacturing Co., of Macon.

United States Senator M. E. Tydings, of Maryland, and Frank P. Douglass, member of the Textile Labor Relaticns Board of Washington, will be among the speakers.

Former Kaiser Joins Tour of Tulip Fields

Haarlem, The Netherlands, April 24 (AP).—Setting at rest reports he was ill of influenza, former Kaiser Wilhelm today participated in the annual pilgrimage to the flowering tulip fields near here.

He was apparently in buoyant spirits as he strolled briefly in the rows of riotous color, stopping occasionally to pick blooms. Princess Hermine accompanied him.

SALE OF Pipes!

....that makes our buyer's "pipe dream" come true!

98c

It's a sale that happens once in a blue moon. They are discontinued models . . . that's how our buyer picked them up at a sacrifice. Because it is our policy not to quote comparative prices we can't publish what these pipes sell for regularly. But examine the finer selected grains.

Note the superb craftsmanship. You will recognize that these pipes are similar in every respect to a nationally famous make . . . nationally advertised at a much higher price. Come in today and stock up.
